Japan to Mass Troops Near Soviet Border As a Warning

Foreign Affairs.

French and British statesmen, now presenting a military-diplomatic front to the totalitarian axis, rejected Hitler's proposition to settle the Czech crisis and promise "durable peace," if the Franco-Russian alliance were scrapped.

Warning to Soviet.

By the United Press.

Tokyo (Thursday) July 21.—Japanese troops are planning a mass demonstration of force in the disputed Changkufeng area on the Manchukuoan border where Soviet troops allegedly have set up fortifications on a strategic hill in Manchukuo territory, it was learned today.

The reported Japanese demonstration would be undertaken in the hope that a display of a superior number of troops would cause the Soviet force to withdraw, it was said.

Foreign office sources said they hoped the strong attitude being taken by Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese Ambassador to Moscow, will make Maxim Litvinov, Soviet Foreign Commissar, reconsider Soviet contentions the area is Soviet territory.

As tension increased between Japan and Russia over the incident the Japanese foreign office awaited a reply from Moscow to two protests concerning fortification of the hill.

A general conference of high military leaders, to which the Japanese press attached a "special meaning," was summoned by Gen. Seishiro Itagaki, minister of war, after he had made a report to the Emperor.

The Domei (Japanese) News Agency said Itagaki had laid the entire situation before the Emperor, and then called in the foreign minister, Gen. Kazushige

Earle 'Grounded' By His Aide After Crashing in Plane

Harrisburg, Pa., July 20 (AP).—George H. Earle became a non-flying Governor tonight when the Pennsylvania chief of aeronautics lifted his flying license for two weeks after a crack-up.

Col. Camille Vinet, who taught the Governor to fly and later became head of the State Aeronautics Bureau, grounded the Governor.

A few hours earlier, Earle, flying through fog, had to land on the campus of a college near Philadelphia. He clipped the top of a tree, hopped a fence, smacked a wing into another tree—and was badly bruised.

'Baby' Craft 580 Miles Off Newfoundland at 11:44 P. M., Averaging 145 M. P. H. at Altitude of 7,000 Feet.

By the United Press.

Montreal (Thursday), July 21.—The Imperial Airways "Pick-a-Back" seaplane Mercury, en route to New York on a test flight from Foynes, Ireland, reported to Trans-Canada Airline it was heading into clear weather 580 miles off Botwood, Newfoundland, at 5:44 a. m., British summer time (11:44 p. m. E. S. T. Wednesday).

The plane reported an average speed of 145 miles an hour was being maintained. Altitude was 7,000 feet.

A scheduled stop at Botwood, Newfoundland, may be eliminated, Trans-Canada officials said, with the plane flying on to Montreal for its first stop if present favorable weather conditions continue.

The seaplane, which took off in midair over Foynes from the back of its mother plane, the Maia, at 2:54 p. m. (Eastern standard time), is expected to land at Montreal

Powers Reject HitlerSolution In Czech Crisis

By the United Press.

Paris, July 20.—France and Britain were reported tonight to have rejected Reichsfuehrer Hitler's proposal to solve the Czech crisis by torpedoing the Franco-Russian alliance.

Leading statesmen of the two powers, welded into a diplomatic and military front by King George's visit to Paris, conferred secretly on Hitler's suggestion for concessions to him in exchange for a "durable peace." The French leaders stubbornly refused to negotiate on the basis of his proposals.

The German Reichsfuehrer was also said to have suggested that the German minority of 3,500,000 in Czechoslovakia be given autonomy in exchange for an international guarantee of Czech neutrality.

Support Prague Position.

The proposal already has been rejected by the Czechoslovak government, which refused to tear up its French and Russian military alliances in exchange for what Prague considered were vague guarantees which failed in the cases of China, Ethiopia and Austria.

The French statesmen, meeting with British leaders while King Georeg and Queen Elizabeth attended a gala performance at the opera, stanchly supported Prague's position and rejected any solution forcing Czechoslovakia to abandon either its political or military alli-

TVA Workers Silenced, Says Ousted Chief

Morgan Charges 'Misleading' evidence Was Prepared But Not Used.

By the Associated Press.

Knoxville, Tenn., July 20.—Dr. Arthur E. Morgan charged today "misleading and misrepresentative" evidence was prepared but never used in the Tennessee Valley Authority's defense against a suit by 18 power companies at Chattanooga.

The former TVA chairman, testifying before a Congressional investigating committee, said the evidence "never was submitted after I pointed out to our counsel the injury it would cause the professional standing of our engineers."

The experts were asked, he said, to make estimates which would tend to show the cost of power generation was negligible.

Cites Two Surveys.

His charges climaxed a stormy session of the hearing, which at one time was thrown into an uproar when Morgan asserted TVA officials had instructed employes "not to talk" to him, and that he could question them only through the committee's counsel.

Dr. Morgan said E. L. Chandler, an engineer, was asked by James Lawrence Fly, TVA general counsel, to prepare a memorandum on the separate costs of two systems of dams, one for flood control and one for navigation purposes.

Points Out Objection.

Chandler objected, the witness said, on the grounds that to establish figures for the projects separately and then to add them would give only a "hypothetical figure" on costs.

Fly requested the memorandum be prepared anyway, Dr. Morgan said, and added Chandler reported the costs of a system of navigation dams at $144,000,000 and listed flood control projects at $132,000,000.

These sets of figures, Morgan said, "would tend to indicate that the power generated by the dams didn't

Corrigan Sours on 'Hero Stuff' And Spurns Offer of New Plane

By the Associated Press.

Dublin, July 20.—This hero business is rapidly turning sour to the taste of Douglas G. (West Is East) Corrigan, and he doesn't want anybody to give him an airplane.

In the midst of a busy day in which he had a good many new ideas, received congratulations from important people, and looked over cables offering marriage, movie contracts and what not, the young Californian who flew from New York to Dublin (by mistake) declared:

"I certainly hope they have stopped being Corrigan-mad when I get back to America."

Informed of a report that the Advertising Club of Newark, N. J., was opening a campaign to collect $25,000 to present him a new plane, Corrigan said.

"I hope they don't do any such thing. I don't deserve it at all. I appreciate the spirit in which they are planning it, but this contribution business isn't right in view of the circumstances of my trip."

The flier, who hopped the Atlantic in a $900 plane and contended all the time that he really meant to go to California but his compass was set wrong, planned to sail for home by the middle of next week.

He will have no trouble getting back. Five steamship lines were begging him to be their guest.

SEC Moves To Split Up Huge Utility

'Death Sentence.'

By the United Press.

The sprawling empire of the Utilities Power & Light Corporation last night was chosen by the Securities and Exchange Commission as the first target of the utility holding company "death sentence," one of the New Deal's most drastic business reforms.

The corporation, which last August had consolidated assets of $303,813,000 and which now is in process of reorganization under the bankruptcy law, and its trustee, Charles True Adams, were ordered to show cause at a hearing on August 8 why the so-called death sentence provision should not be invoked.

This provision, approved by Congress in 1936 after the industry spent millions of dollars to defeat it, empowers the SEC to force individual power units to limit their operations to geographically and economically integrated areas. Leaders of the industry complained that this gave the Government death sentence power.

SEC "Means Business."

In announcing issuance of the order, Chairman William O. Douglas said the commission "means business" about invoking the provision. He said, however, that the commission has no other plans at present to move against any other company; that the commission is not seeking to prod other companies to hasten putting their house in order, and that there has been no change in the SEC policy of co-operating with individual groups seeking to meet the restrictions under the act.

"Most of the responsible companies are demonstrating real sincerity to put their own houses in order," Douglas said. Selection of the Utilities Power & Light Corporation, he explained, was motivated by a desire to co-operate in the financial reorganization of the company.

"I do not believe it would be fair to wait until the corporation gets out of court with a conventional reorganization plan and then bluff them again with a proceeding under the utility act," he said.

He pointed out the "large degree" of disintegration of the corpora-

Workers Missing, But D. C. Heads Can't Find Strike

District officials yesterday were anxiously trying to run down a rumor that union steamfitters engaged on school building projects had gone on a strike in protest against a contract award to an open-shop heating company, but all they learned was that steamfitters had failed to show up for work on additions to the Bundy and Cleveland schools.

Union officials refused to admit that a strike was in progress.

Meanwhile, the District's school expansion program, much of which is due to be completed by fall, was in jeopardy.

Rumors of a steamfitters' strike reached the District Building earlier in the week after the Commissioners had awarded a contract for several heating systems to American Heating & Engineering Co., of Washington, which maintains an open shop.

The District heads are required by law to award contracts to the lowest bidder.

Rains Will Continue, Drought Will Remain

Intermittent rains since Sunday will continue through this morning the Weather Bureau predicted last night. The city will remain deficient in rainfall for the month and year, however.

Up to noon yesterday 1.41 inches of rain had fallen during the month, .97 inches since Sunday. This left a deficiency of 1.5 inches for the month and 8.52 inches for the year. High temperature was 85 degrees at 2:15 p. m. yesterday. No change of temperature was predicted today.

Federal Rule Is Not Goal, Doctors Told

Health Conference Gets Assurance of Medical Freedom.

Parley Ends in Debate on Government Plan for Spending.

By Gerald G. Gross.

Given assurance that the proposed program for betterment of the Nation's health does not contemplate Federal control, the National Health Conference closed here yesterday.

Winding up the epochal three-day meeting, a galaxy of "Who's Who" figures in medicine, dentistry, teaching, journalism, radio broadcasting, organized labor and social service took the platform to urge execution of the $850,000,000-a-year campaign submitted by the President's Technical Committee on Medical Care.

The keynote of dissent to the program was sounded by Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, who told the assembly that "medical care is not the most important problem before the people of the United States today."

Educators Favor Plan.

Taking the opposite view, President Frank Graham, of the University of North Carolina, expressed hope that the A. M. A. will do nothing to stop or slow down the contemplated health drive. Dr. Charles Edward Amory Winslow, professor of public health at Yale University, exclaimed, "Thank God the tide is coming in," and numerous other authorities voiced indorsement of the mass spending project.

The conference adjourned without adopting any resolutions on the proposed program, or anything else, in conformity with original arrangements.

A flurry of excitement occurred when Judge Henry Ellenbogen, of Pittsburgh, former Democratic member of the House, obtained the floor a moment after the conference had been declared adjourned and read a resolution which would have placed the conference on record in favor of the giant public health program under discussion since Monday.

Resolution Shelved.

Dr. C. W. Camalier, president of the American Dental Association, and other delegates, however, argued that the no commitment rule, cited a few minutes earlier in the closing speech of Miss Josephine Roche, be followed. Subsequently the resolution was shelved.

Miss Roche, chairman of the Interdepartmental Committee to Coordinate Health and Welfare Activities, appointed by President Roosevelt in 1935, pointedly invited co-operation of the American Medi-

Scientist Makes Valuable Finds on Roosevelt Cruise

By the Associated Press.

Aboard U. S. S. Houston, en route to Panama, July 20.—Prof. Waldo Schmitt, of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, told President Roosevelt today he had obtained biological and bird collections of great scientific interest at each of the stops on the President's fishing cruise.

Prof. Schmitt was invited by the President to cruise with him so he might conduct scientific investigations the institution had wanted for many years.

The Houston rode at anchor today at the southern end of Socorro Island, largest of the Revilla Gigedo group, while President Roosevelt and members of his party fished the seldom visited waters of that vicinity. Others went ashore to explore the face of this picturesque bit of land.

U. S. Speeds Spending For Farm Electricity; Trade Swings Upward

Steel Advances Against Season

Machine Tool Industry Is Also Up in Time of Normal Slump.

By William V. Neisly.

The downward trend of business has been reversed, purchasing power is reviving and industrial production has shown recovery in a season which usually is marked by slumping figures, J. Monroe Johnson, acting Secretary of Commerce, reported yesterday.

The rising surge of trade is definitely under way, he said, adding:

"Improvement is more than psychological; there are now definite figures to bear out the earlier promises.

There were other indications of easing of the economic strain under which the country has labored for months.

One Per Cent Relief Drop.

Reports to the Social Security Board covering 99 urban areas in 35 States revealed a 1 per cent aggregate decrease in the number of cases receiving general relief, and a drop of somewhat less than 1 per cent in the relief funds obligated from May to June.

Housing loan contracts totaling $43,458,000 for 13 cities were approved by President Roosevelt. The loans are made by the United States Housing Authority.

PWA brought to $835,934,154 the amount allocated in its 1938 program, by approving 39 new projects calling for $3,996,819 and expected to bring about $6,135,160 in construction.

The improved financial condition of cities and the greater ease with which they can borrow private funds were indicated in PWA figures showing a marked drop in the number of Federal loans asked to accompany grants by the PWA.

Revival Evident.

Johnson, present head of the Commerce Department, said:

"A revival of purchasing is evident in primary markets, as well as in retail channels. While this movemet has as yet not proceeded very far, it is significant mainly with reference to the reversal of the downward trend which had extended through the first half of the year, and particularly since it has come during a normally dull season.

"Industrial production has experienced some recovery so far in July, after apparently touching bottom in May and June on a seasonally adjusted basis. Whereas there is usually a letdown in factory operations during the summer months, it would appear that the lever of activity is being maintained and, for July, may show an increase which would be contrary to the usual seasonal change for this period of the year."

One of the brightest spots reported was the 8-point increase in

Americans Slight Their Own Liners

"Whenever United States Government officials go abroad, you can bet they'll sail on foreign ships."

The plaint comes from American shipping and Maritime Commission circles more and more frequently as the parade of ocean vacationers grows in volume.

HUGHES. Italian Line.

While the United States is paying out millions of dollars in operating subsidies to enable American ship lines to compete with foreign operators, these recent sailings have been noted:

Joseph P. Kennedy, Ambassador to London, who as head of the Maritime Commission, signed most of the subsidy contracts with American ship lines, recently returned here aboard the British Queen Mary, and went back to England on the French Normandie;

KENNEDY. French Line.

Secretary of the Treasury Mogenthau sailed Saturday on the Statendam of the Holland-America Line;

Secretary of Interior Ickes went to Ireland for his secret wedding aboard the Normandie and returned with his bride on another French craft, the Ile de France;

PERKINS. U. S. Lines.

Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes started their vacation trip to Europe aboard the Italian Rex;

But Secretary of Labor Perkins, who went to France and Switzerland on official business, sailed on an American liner, the Manhattan, as the law requires.

Ringling Will Codicil Is Found; Cuts Off Present Circus Chiefs

Sarasota, Fla., July 20 (U.P.).—The muddled affairs of the late John Ringling, circus king, became further involved today when a hand-written two-page slip of Ritz-Carlton Hotel stationery was offered for probate in county court here. The petition estimated the estate at $20,000,000.

NORTH.

The document, purported to be the long sought codicil to the will of Ringling, virtually disinherits John Ringling North, an executor of the vast Ringling estate and now head of the giant Ringling circus combine, together with his brother, Henry Ringling North, and modifies the bequest to Ringling's only sister, Mrs. Ida Ringling North, co-executor of the estate with her son John, to a payment of $5,000 a year for life.

Petition for probate was offered by Paul M. Souder, Sarasota attorney.

The original will bequeathed to the circus man's divorced wife, Mrs. Emily Haag Buck Ringling—who is now contesting the divorce in an attempt to establish dower rights in the estate—the sum of $1 and the estate, both outright and its management, to John Ringling North, his brother, Henry Ringling North, and their mother, Mrs. Ida Ringling North.

REA Plans Lending of Whole $140,000,000 in One Year.

$20,000,000 Ready For This Month

By Robert C. Albright.

The Rural Electrification Administration yesterday embarked on its most extensive rural power program in three years of operation, contemplating lending in one year the entire $140,000,000 made available by Congress against $90,000,000 loaned in its entire prior existence.

Administrator John M. Carmody dispatched letters to officials of 100 projects in 15 States and to sponsors of new farm power plans calling for State conferences and co-operation in expanding the program.

"I am sure that you will be glad to know that we are anxious to move the program forward and get as much construction under way in good weather as possible," Carmody wrote.

Remembers Caution.

"But I am also sure you will appreciate my position and agree with me when I say that even though the Congress has made $100,000,000 new money available, we shall be just as careful of the expenditure of these funds as we have been when we had only a few million dollars."

The REA administrator told The Post that by the end of the month his unit will have authorized $20,000,000 in new loans under the extended program—equal to two-thirds of all REA money available last year.

Although only $90,000,000 in unsatisfied requests was on file at the agency—insufficient to use up all funds appropriated—Cormody said the REA in the past has been forced to discourage new projects, and predicted the demand for funds will be greater than the supply before the year is out.

Wide Labor Effects.

He envisioned the REA program as a significant phase of the current recovery drive, and traced far-reaching effects in labor put to work on construction of transmission lines and wiring of houses, in materials going into equipment, in new power used and ultimately in electric appliances.

He said 22 per cent of the money loaned will go for construction labor and 70 per cent for materials

Inquiry Ordered In Baltimore Blast Which Killed Ten

By the Associated Press.

Batlimore, July 20.—An investigation into a dynamite blast that killed ten men and injured six others working in a tunnel far beneath the earth's surface was ordered tonight by Mayor Howard Jackson.

The blast of 450 pounds of dynamite in the solid rock water tunnel near the city pumping station killed seven of the victims instantly; the others died soon after arriving at hospitals. All were colored.

Cause of the explosion was not officially established, but it was believed the dynamite was detonated as the crew performed the last duty of its shift—planting a blast to leave a clearing-away job for the day workmen.

Labor Board's Chief Accused Of Aiding CIO

Pittsburgh Attorney Says Madden Discussed Weirton With Union.

By the Associated Press.

Earl F. Reed, Pittsburgh attorney, charged yesterday that Chairman J. Warren Madden of the National Labor Relations Board conferred secretly with C. I. O. officials on a case in which the C. I. O. accuses Weirton Steel of unfair labor practices.

In return, Madden called Reed a "demagogue." Implying that the talks to which Reed objected were of no significance, he said the lawyer should be ashamed of himself for "attempting to create a prejudice."

The two swapped the bitter words at a labor board hearing at which Madden presided. The proceedings grew out of the action of a board examiner, Edward G. Smith, in expelling a Weirton lawyer from a hearing on the Weirton case at Steubenville, Ohio, July 7.

Ousted Lawyer Appeals.

Examiner Smith declared that this lawyer, Clyde A. Armstrong, had been guilty of "defiant, contemptuous and contumacious conduct" and barred him from further participation in the case.

Armstrong appealed to the labor board here, with Reed as his attorney. No sooner had yesterday's hearing opened than clashes began. At one point Reed kept on talking, despite Madden's attempt to interrupt, leading Madden to announce that the hearing would end "unless you keep quiet when I tell you to do so."

A warning that the case would be fought up through the high courts, if necessary, was given by Reed when he said that he would prove all his charges "at the proper time in the proper tribunals." He challenged the power of board officials to exclude Armstrong from a case.

A demonstration at Steubenville that followed Armstrong's exclusion was described by two newspaper photographers and a reporter. The demonstration included the hanging in effigy of Board Examiner Smith.

The demonstrators hoisted Armstrong to their shoulders, according to the witnesses, who were Harry Cochran, reporter for the Steubenville Herald-Star, Ralph Romano, a photographer, and James R. George, reporter for the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

Board Examiner Smith testified about his order barring Armstrong. He said the lawyer refused to "sit down" when ordered to do so and threatened to "do physical violence" to the attorney for the Labor Board in the Weirton case, Isadore Polier.

Earlier Attorney Reed had told the board that its lawyers referred to Weirton witnesses as "spies, scabs and perjurers" without reprimand from the examiner.

As Reed continued his arguments, Charles Fahy, Labor Board counsel, protested that "the board is not on trial, and the examiner is not on trial here. Mr. Reed is using this for a general tirade against the board and his opinion of the national labor relations act."

"I would like to put my opinion of the act in the record, if I could expurgate it enough," Reed shot back. He was chairman of a group of lawyers, associated with the American Liberty League, which declared the act unconstitutional prior to the Supreme Court decision upholding it.

Continuing, Reed charged that Kenneth Koch, C. I. O. organizer, and Lee Pressman, general counsel for the C. I. O., held a "secret conference with the chairman of the labor board" on the Weirton case.

Chairman Madden explained that he had met Koch, recognized him as some one he had known in Pittsburgh, Madden's former home, and invited the C. I. O. leader in to talk for a few minutes. Madden said Pressman was at board headquarters here frequently, as were numerous other attorneys interested in cases.

Board Order Set Aside.

San Francisco, July 20 (AP).—The big Idaho-Maryland Mines Corporation had Federal Court authority today to ignore an order of the National Labor Relations Board to reinstate 61 discharged C. I. O. gold and silver miners.

The United States Circuit Court of appeals ruled that gold mining in California had only a "remote and unsubstantial" relation to interstate commerce. It dismissed the board's petition for enforcement of the order.

The decision overruled the NLRB argument that it held jurisdiction because the gold was transshipped from the San Francisco mint to the Denver mint.

"We regard such shipments not as commercial transactions but as administrative acts of the Government," the court held.

Still Likes Langley Plane, 'Well-Behaved People' at Smithsonian.

Capt. George Johnson retired yesterday from the Smithsonian Institution guard force with 42 years' service to his credit, an expansive opinion about "the good behavior" of museum visitors and one recollection that will outlast everything from the building of the dinosaurs to the accession of the Lindbergh plane.

They all rallied around the captain on his leave-taking; Assistant Secretary Alexander Wetmore presented a purse (a $100 bill sandwiched in), then spoke in appreciation of the captain's long services.

"If I could write," said the captain, "what a tale I could tell. It would be a book this high . . ." And his gesturing hand measured off an imagined book a yard tall.

"And what would I lead off with?" the captain asked himself. "I'd lead off with Samuel Pierpont Langley's flying machine.

"It must have impressed the captain tremendously," an institution official said: "You must understand that Capt. Johnson came here January 13, 1896, and airplanes, crates of planes, weren't flying the oceans then. It would have impressed anyone . . . the thought of a thing heavier than air sailing through the skies. And the captain had come here from rural Maryland . . ."

"Yes, from Charles County, Md., God bless it," the captain replied.

"I remember when Secretary Langley was building it in the deepest secrecy there in a shed behind the museum. But I didn't see the workout down at Wide Water. But being a guard I could see the plane in the shed and I was glad to be a guard then. . . ."

The talk went on, and he had seen the dinosaurs come and accessions by the thousands, and his constabulary lot had been a happy one. People always had behaved in the museum. Of course, high-school pupils got "mischievous" at times. And there were the moments when ladies fainted and the crowds came too fast to be counted. Here the captain's big face grew serious:

"I can't give the number; more than 2,000,000 last year; more than 2,000,000 the year before that and the year before that. They were coming fast all the time, back in 1896 when I came on, in 1903 when I was a lieutenant, in 1923 when I was captain.

"And of it all, the Lindbergh plane caused the biggest sensation, and for the women, those dresses the President's wives wore. . . ."

Somebody commented that the captain hadn't missed a day because of illness in 20 years, nor come as much as five minutes late to work in all the 42 years.

Air Maps Found, Speeding Survey Of Potomac Basin

Discovery of an aerial survey of the Anacostia River valley by the Soil Conservation Service, has expedited work on the $100,000 detailed study of the entire Potomac River basin being made by Army engineers, Maj. Walter D. Luplow, retiring district engineer, explained yesterday.

Residents of Bladensburg, Md., long have pointed to recurrent floods as indications of the need for controlling Eastern Branch and have urged remedial measures be started at the earliest possible moment.

As a result of the photographs discovered, ground surveys in the Anacostia Valley can be cut to a minimum, permitting flood control work to begin there ahead of schedule. A preliminary study of the upper Potomac valley is under way.

"We are pushing the preliminary reconnaissance as rapidly as possible so that survey parties may take the fullest possible advantage of the summer weather for their field work," Maj. Luplow stated.

New Child Welfare Advisors Meet on General Program

The newly appointed advisory committee on an authorized child welfare study yesterday held its first meeting at the District Building with Commissioners Melvin C. Hazen and Dan I. Sultan in attendance.

General plans for the study, which will be financed by a special social security grant, were discussed, but a definite program was delayed until after an expert investigator is employed.

Public Welfare Director Elwood Street explained he and Miss Katharine Lenroot, director of the Children's Bureau of the Labor Department, are still looking for an investigator. A $5,000 grant is available for the project.

Street said he felt confident the study will have progressed far enough by late summer for welfare officials to be guided in submitting their 1940 estimates. Other remedial legislation, he added, will be ready by January, when Congress convenes.

U.S. Cites 33 Movie Firms As Monopoly

132 Executives Are Named on Arnold's Motion; Hays Optimistic.

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 20.—The Federal Government today charged 33 motion picture companies and 132 movie executives with controlling 65 per cent of America's movie entertainment in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

On motion of Thurman Arnold, Assistant United States Attorney General, Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard ordered subpoenas served on the 165 defendants, summoning them to court within 20 days.

Most of the powerful names on the business side of the motion picture industry are listed in the action, one of the largest ever brought by the Government against alleged monopolies.

The reaction in Wall Street was immediate. Motion picture company shares broke sharply.

8 Main Companies.

Eight companies were named as the principal defendants. They are Paramount Pictures, Inc., Loew's, Inc.; the Irving Trust Co. of New York as trustee in bankruptcy for Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation; Warner Brothers Pictures Inc.; Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation; Columbia Pictures Corporation; Universal Corporation; and United Artists Corporation.

Because of their directorships in United Artists, the Government charges named Douglas Fairbanks, sr., Mary Pickford and Charles Chaplin. Other famous names in the list included Joseph M. Schenck, Edgar J. Mannix, Darryl F. Zanuck and Samuel Goldwyn.

The Justice Department's complaint, containing 119 printed pages, alleges that the eight principal companies, with the 25 subsidiary or affiliated companies named, operate such an efficient combination that effective competition is virtually eliminated.

Complaint Asks Injunctions.

The combination, it stated, is brought about in the production of pictures through the pooling of assets and making them mutually available, and in the distribution and finally the theater presentation.

The complaint asserted that although there are enough independent theaters in the country to furnish a basis for substantial competition, these independents were unable to obtain first-run pictures in competition with theaters affiliated with the major companies.

The complaint asked temporary and permanent injunctions against all the defendants.

Hays Is Optimistic.

New York, July 20 (AP).—Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, said tonight the movie industry would welcome the anti-trust suit brought by the Government against 33 companies and 132 executives.

'Christianizing' of Newspapers Is Called Republic Steel's Aim

By Sidney Olson.

The methods by which the Republic Steel Corporation was accused of striving to "Christianize" newspaper editors in the steel towns were graphically outlined before the Senate Civil Liberties Committee yesterday.

"Christianize" was the phrase used by burly Wade H. Oldham, of Birmingham, Ala., manager, Republic Southern division, in a letter to the Cleveland management describing his efforts to "cultivate" Jimmy Mills, editor, Birmingham Post, a Scripps-Howard newspaper.

"But," said Oldham's letter, "at one time he is right and the next time he is wrong. He won't stay put . . . But the Post has been decidedly less radical than formerly, dating from the time of Roosevelt's demand to change the Supreme Court."

Couldn't Reach Girdler.

A slight, graying newspaper executive from Canton, Ohio, Roy D. Moore, general manager of the Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., had related his difficulties in publishing an impartial account of the bloody Republic strike of May, 1935.

Moore said that on the first night of the strike he tried to get a statement from Republic officials. Unable to contact Tom M. Girdler, chairman, Moore finally reached White and told him that "We're going to put out an extra on the strike."

He said that White retorted sharply: "If you do you'll have plenty to apologize for!"

Chairman Robert M. La Follett (Progressive), of Wisconsin, asked Moore: "What did you tell him?"

"I told him we'd apologize after we printed the story."

"Did you print it?"

"Didn't Do Any Good."

Oldham, endeavoring to influence Victor Hansen, executive of both the News and Age-Herald, in Birmingham, according to the letters introduced into the record, sent a committee of influential citizens to see Hansen. "But it didn't do any good," he added.

In one letter he said: "My personal opinion is that too much publicity and attention is given to the editors of our local papers, as they are always taken to any gathering of any consequence, and carried to the speakers' table. Then they get out and write New Deal and other stuff in opposition to industry. Industry ought to resent it."

In another he reported: "Birmingham papers are certainly less radical and less New Dealish than they were a while back. Birmingham Post is run for income only . . . But the radically inclined Post has been less radical since the Supreme Court bill."

The president of Republic Steel, R. J. Wysor, took the stand in the afternoon to read a statement defending Republic's labor policies and criticizing the hearings as emphasizing "isolated labor disputes and incidents to such an extent that a distorted impression of the labor disputes of Republic Steel Corporation has been created."

Asserting that "to my mind, the form of collective bargaining is not so important as the sustance," Wysor stressed "the human relationship between employer and employes." At this point there was some giggling in the audience, which has heard three days' tales of violence by Republic's armed guards. Wysor complained of "confusion" and La Follette rapped for order.

Wysor concluded by attacking the national labor relations act and the NLRB. He declared one of the "great needs" of the day is for amendments to the Wagner act "to make it a fair law to both employer and employe. When that is done, the basis for industrial peace will be established."

Distortion Charged.

Earlier, T. F. Patton, Republic counsel, declared that the committee thus far had heard evidence "mainly from people who were hurt or who were not employes of the company and who are obviously hostile to the company. Consequently a distorted and one-sided version of the incidents described has been created."

He therefore asked La Follette to call 12 witnesses named by the company to present Republic's version of the incidents resulting in bloodshed and payment by the corporation of more than $50,000 for personal damages.

During the morning session, Kenneth Sodders, of Cleveland, who admitted doing labor espionage work for Republic, hinted to the committee that he had apparently received a threat of bodily harm last week in connection with his appearance before the committee. As he declined to go into specific details other than to make hints, the matter was dropped.

Rep. Fish Advocates James Roosevelt Quiz

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 20 (AP).—Representative Hamilton Fish, jr. (Republican), New York, said in an address tonight the next Congress "should insist on a thorough and impartial investigation" of the income tax and insurance activities of James Roosevelt, son and secretary of the President.

ances or control over any part of the present Czech state.

French Premier Eduard Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet were understood to have pointed out to British Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, who accompanied the royal couple to Paris, that a mutual guarantee of Czech neutrality would amount to scrapping the Franco-Russian alliance.

That alliance is valuable only because of liens attaching Czechoslovakia to it, and giving Paris and Moscow the right to plant soldiers and guns on Czech soil, at Germany's frontiers.

The treaty is applicable only in case of "foreign aggression," but Moscow, Paris and Prague can define aggression.

A communique issued after the discussion of Hitler's proposal, delivered in unwritten form to Lord Halifax in London over the weekend by Hitler's personal adjutant, Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, stressed that "complete harmony" had been reached on every point on Anglo-French foreign policy.

French diplomats insisted Hitler's offer was an lod one, disposed of long ago and now revived with new trimmings.

To obtain the "complete harmony" described in the communique, Lord Halifax was said to have consented to the French demand that any four-power talks (embracing Italy, Germany, Britain and France) must be shelved until the Czechoslovak and Spanish issues are settled.

Halifax also was reported to have agreed that the new Italo-British pact of friendship will not be fulfilled until Mussolini has withdrawn his blackshirts from Spain.

Discussions in Secrecy.

The French, on their side, agreed to bring new pressure on Prague asking the Czech government to cease dallying and turn over a complete draft of its minority reform statute to Konrad Henlein, leader of the Sudeten German party.

Extreme secrecy cloaked the diplomatic discussions at the Quai d'Orsay which lasted throughout the day while the King and Queen rode about Paris to the swelling cheers of millions of Frenchmen.

Czechoslovak diplomats, believed to be informed as to what transpired within the guarded council rooms, said Hitler had proposed the following:

1. Germany's desire for improved relations with the Franco-British entente.

2. Racial autonomy for the German minority of $3,500,000 in Chechoslovakia, with Czech neutrality guaranteed by the major powers.

3. Czechoslovakia's abandonment of her military alliances with France and Soviet Russia in favor of the neutrality guarantee.

4. British and French influence upon the Prague government, urging to turn over the official text of its proposed minority reform statute to the Sudeten German Party of Konrad Henlein.

5. Start of negotiations on a four-power pact of appeasement, embracing Britain, France, Germany and Italy, as soon as a solution of the Sudeten question in Czechoslovakia is obtained.

Czechoslovakia, it was understood, previously rejected Hitler's proposals because they would oblige the postwar democracy to abandon its military pacts with France and Russia, which carry promises of aid in event of unprovoked aggression.

The British Embassy stressed that Halifax brought no "formal German offer to Paris but the Agence Radio, semiofficial mirror of French foreign office views, said in an inspired dispatch:

"It is too early to give precise details of Hitler's proposal but every attempt to solve the Czechoslovak problem peacefully, regardless of its origin, meets the sympathy of France and Great Britain, who continue determined to avoid being split by any maneuver."

Japan

Ugaki, to discuss reports from the border.

These were understood to include information that the Soviet Far Eastern forces had detached 300 men, including field artillerymen, to fortify the disputed hill, regarded as of extreme military importance.

The reports said further Russian reinforcements were being moved into the area, including cavalry detachments. The Tokyo Nichi Nichi's Manchukuo correspondents said Russian troops were being transported into Possiet Bay, on the southern tip of Siberian territory below Vladivostok.

Although official quarters maintained a strict silence on details of the reports, indicating merely that it was believed an "amicable settlement" was possible, other reports indicated growing anxiety as to the significance of the dispute.

A report from Hsinking, capital of Manchukuo, said the Manchukuo foreign office had ceased negotiations with the Soviet consul general at Harbin, explaining that "further talking was useless."

Shanghai (Thursday), July 21 (U.P.).—Japanese forces attemping to drive a wedge past Kiukiang, the last major obstacle east of Hankow, have been smashed back in a sweeping Chinese counter-attack, reports from Chinese military sources said today.

Japanese military quarters were silent.

The Chinese reports said the Japanese "big push" had been directed at the neck connecting Lake Poyang with the Yangtze, where the Japanese attempted to gain a foothold on the west bank. They were repulsed with heavy casualties, the Chinese said.

Meanwhile, Japanese bombing planes continued to spearhead the drive inland, spreading over the middle Yangtze as they sought to blast open a path to Hankow for their land forces, which have been bogged down by Yangtze floods and stopped at several points by Chinese defenses.

Pieping, July 20 (AP).—A Japanese spokesman said today the Japanese army recently had settled several cases of war damage to foreign mission property in North China.

He said that as a result of a protest made in Tokyo by the United States Ambassador, Joseph C. Grew, the American Board's mission at Tsining, Shantung Province, had been paid 6,504 yen ($1,886) for damage suffered in an air raid in January.

from Prime Minister Chamberlain an explanation of secret negotiations between Great Britain and Germany.

The action came after a quiet conference between Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, and Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, Adolf Hitler's adjutant, had given rise to reports that the two nations were preparing to launch new diplomatic talks to end all points of misunderstanding between them.

Lieut. Cmdr. R. T. H. Fletcher, backed by other Labor members, gave notice he would ask Chamberlain tomorrow to "make a statement concerning the purport of conversations between Herr Wiedemann and members of his majesty's government."

Wiedemann talked with Halifax at the foreign secretary's London home Monday night.

Officials Disregarded.

The practice of sending "private visitors" on state missions of highest importance—disregarding regular officials—has become a popular custom.

Halifax himself visited a German "hunting show" last November, saw Hitler, and laid the foundations for British-German friendship. Anthony Eden, then foreign secretary, was disregarded.

More recently, Konrad Henlein, Nazi leader in Czechoslovakia, and Albert Forster, Danzig Nazi leader, conferred privately with members of the British government and others without visible official sanction. Henlein came to London May 12 and Forster, July 14.

In the case of Halifax and Wiedemann, both German and British official sources disclaimed knowledge of the subjects covered. But "unauthorized interpretations" which never were denied disclosed that the problem of Czechoslovakia's Sudeten German minority was uppermost.

Berlin sources said Halifax was willing to back Sudeten demands for autonomy from Czechoslovakia, but not so far as Wiedemann wanted.

London sources said Wiedemann brought hearty greetings and expressions of good will from Hitler and requested that Halifax, now in Paris, relay them to the French foreign office.

Wiedemann was reported to have said Hitler would be pleased to settle the Czechoslovak-Sudeten question peacefully and would like to improve British-German relations, which currently are "fundamentally sound but not quite satisfactory."

Halifax, it was said, suggested that Germany could show co-operation by joining in solving the Jewish refugee problem, but Wiedemann remained silent.

Chamberlain told Commons today that Germany has "categorically denied" a British newspaper report that she has "strategic aims" in Spain directed against France and Britain.

Loyalists Hurl Italians Back in Valencia Drive

By the United Press.

Hendaye, France, Spanish Frontier, July 20.—Murderous fire from "spider web" loyalist defenses outside Viver, stalled the insurgents' Valencia offensive today and drove back Italian blackshirts.

More than 180,000 government troops, forming a bristling 30-mile wall of steel from Viver to Sagunto and across the rugged countryside to Liria and Valencia, blocked the insurgent drive after a day of desperate fighting.

So intense was the government resistance along the Teruel-Sagunto highway that Gen. Franco withdrew his crack Navarrese columns from the spearhead of the attack and shifted them back to the Javalambre heights, south of Teruel, for the surprise thrust at Cuenca.

Franco apparently hoped to sever the vital supply lines between Valencia and Madrid.

The Italian "Black Arrows" under Franco's command were reported repulsed in the narrow valley between the Sierra Espadan and Sierra del Cid peaks south of Artana, walling the Teruel highway.

Unable to drive a breach in the loyalist "spider web," Insurgent Gen. Aranda drove around the town of Chilches, coming within sight of Almenara on the Valencia-Castellon de la Plana provincial border.

Insurgent dispatches said several counterattacks in the Sierra Espadan region centered on Jinquer had been repulsed.

A major battle for air supremacy occurred over Sagunto. The insurgents claimed to have downed four Boeing and the loyalists said their forces had shot down 12 Fiats.

Insurgent headquarters reported 3,000 prisoners had been taken in the past two days when Gen. Miaja was unable to withdraw his troops from threatened sectors. Since the drive began ten days ago, it is believed 9,000 loyalist prisoners have been taken and 6,000 casualties occurred in loyalist ranks.

Americans Slight Own Ships, Merchant Marine Complains

Sailings

Those have been the slogans, backed by millions of Government funds.

"But whenever a Government official heads for Europe he takes a foreign ship."

Inconvenient sailing schedules of the two flagships of the United States Lines, the Manhattan and the Washington, were advanced in some circles as a possible explanation. Short vacation periods that do not permit waiting for an American liner, it was suggested, might account for some of the selections. But the supposed freedom of a Cabinet member in selecting his vacation dates was offered in rebuttal.

Others were inclined to advance the repeated charges of lack of discipline among crews on American ships, emphasized at the time of the strike aboard the ship Algie while in South American waters. Charges of insubordination and impudence toward passengers were made in several high quarters.

Ocean Travel Declines.

The loss of American official patronage by American craft is said to be especially noticeable since the aggregate volume of vacation sailings this year is considerably below that of a year ago.

Despite earlier predictions of passenger traffic managers that last summer's business would be maintained this season, figures show a marked decline in ocean travel.

Comparable figures for four large ships sailing last week show 3,480 eastbound passengers, as compared with 5,223 in the same week of 1937. The ships were the Manhattan, United States Lines, which had 925 passengers as compared with 1,096 in the corresponding trip in 1937; against 1,518 previously; the British against 1,585 previously; the British Aquitania, 670 compared with 1,532 in 1937, and the German Deutschland, booking 670 as against 830 in 1937.

In the same week the French De Grasse and the Statendam, Holland-American, together took 855 passengers but this figure was more than offset by the 1,098 carried by the Columbus in the corresponding week of a year ago.

Bids Received for Line.

Yesterday's shipping developments included announcement by the Maritime Commission that it had received two bids for the charter, for three years, of the Government-owned American Republics Line and its fleet of 13 vessels, including the passenger liners California, Pennsylvania and Virginia, which will inaugurate the new express service between New York and the east coast of South America in September.

C. H. Sprague & Son, Inc., of Boston, which now operates the American Republics Line as the managing agent for the commission, submitted a bid for $16,970 per month for all 13 vessels, based on $4,000 per month for each liner and $4,970 a month for all the ten cargo ships.

Moore & McCormack Co., Inc., of New York, submitted bids for the charter of the line as of January 1, 1939, on four different bases as follows:

1. Charter of the entire fleet at $36,600 per month.
2. Charter of the three express liners at $18,600 a month.
3. Charter of the three express liners at $18,600 a month, substitution of six of its own cargo vessels for same number of cargo vessels of the American Republics Line and if additional cargo vessels are required in the service to charter one to four of the remaining vessels at $1,800 a month for each vessel.
4. Charter of the three liners at $18,600 per month, substitution of six of its own cargo vessels for six of the American Republics Line, and, if additional vessels are required in the service, to purchase outright from one to four of the remaining vessels at $60,000 apiece.

America is transit conscious. Some 250 million dollars were spent by our country's transportation companies on maintenance and improvements in 1937 and approximately the same amount will be expended during the current year. Capital expenditures will be devoted to the purchase of modernized surface cars, buses and other public conveyances.

Named in honor of the President's Conference Committee of the Electrical Railway Companies of the United States, these cars are as up tc date as tomorrow's streamlining. Incorporated in them are such new scientific features as distributed heating, controlled ventilation, compressed air door closures, safety glass and quiet operation. Their powerful motors provide swift, even acceleration and sustained speeds comparable to that of a fine motor car.

With a background of such up-to-the-minute modernity, car advertisements continue to be one of the five major media in the always progressive field of economic advertising. Appearing before the more than 35 million daily riders in the public carrier systems of America, car advertising enables advertisers and their Advertising Agencies to present their sales messages to this vast, responsive audience in the tempo of the times; succinctly, repetitiously, colorfully, pictorially.

Car advertising's work is continuous, for each new, twenty-four-hour day presents an opportunity to remind reader-riders anew of many different goods and services, to further strengthen consumer friendship and confidence.

Measured by the yardstick of returns on your advertising dollar, there is no substitute for car advertising. Its cost is the lowest known to Advertisers and their Advertising Agencies.

TVA Employes Were Silenced, Dr. Morgan Says

cost anything except the cost of constructing powerhouses."

His objection to this procedure, he testified, was pointed out in a letter he sent Fly and John Lord O'Brian, Buffalo, N. Y., attorney who assisted in handling the case, which is now in the Supreme Court on appeal from a TVA victory.

Dr. Morgan, who has been accused by his former associates, Directors David E. Lilienthal and Harcourt A. Morgan, of trying to "sabotage" the TVA's defense in the case, said he thought TVA lawyers did a "splendid job."

"I wanted to win that case," he said, "but I wanted to win it honestly and without subterfuge."

The deposed chairman testified workers told him they were under orders to discuss the Tennessee Valley Authority's activities only by permission and that he could interview them only by making arrangements through Francis Biddle, counsel for the investigating committee, and in the presence of committee counsel.

During the tempest Dr. Morgan's statements stirred, representative Jenkins (Republican), of Ohio, inferred Biddle was "in cahoots" with the TVA.

Threatens to Resign.

"If that kind of dirty slur comes again, sir," retorted Biddle angrily, "I will resign as counsel at once."

"I think," replied Jenkins, "you will do the committee and this country a great favor if you do."

Dr. Morgan leveled a new barrage of charges against TVA directors Harcourt Morgan and David E. Lilienthal, saying there was a "ruthless disruption of a project that is heartbreaking."

He previously had testified that Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan engaged in intrigue, held "secret meetings" and adopted policies that resulted in the loss of millions of dollars.

Jenkins asked Biddle if he had authorization for clearing witnesses through his office.

Consulted Donahey.

"I took upon myself the authorization for Dr. Morgan to see any witnesses, but I thought it wise to use my office," Biddle replied.

He explained further that he had asked Chairman Vic Donahey (Democrat), Ohio, if the same procedure was to be followed in interviewing TVA personnel as was followed in obtaining TVA records and files.

"He said it should," the attorney continued, "I don't know what the committee wants."

Jenkins moved that "anyone be permitted to interview any TVA employe at any time." His motion was seconded by Senator Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania.

Motion Is Tabled.

Representative Mead (Democrat), New York, protested that Jenkins' motion would permit "utility officials and everyone else" to go into the TVA files if personnel were interviewed without direction.

The committee voted to table the Jenkins motion until tomorrow, with Mead explaining the committee had agreed in Washington on the procedure to be followed in interviewing TVA personnel and obtaining records and files.

Later, Dr. Morgan told the investigators it was he who recommended Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan to President Roosevelt.

Favorable weather conditions were reported all along the transatlantic route.

The Mercury was released from the back of its mother craft after a six-minute flight following the take-off along the River Shannon.

The Mayo composite craft, permitting a take-off with a heavier load than could be carried on a flight starting from land or water, has been under construction and development for nearly three years.

The Mercury's cargo included photographs, newspapers and news reels describing the visit of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth to Paris.

S. E. Community Chest Plans Local Campaign

The 1938 Community Chest campaign in Southeast Washington will be thoroughly localized under the slogan "Southeasterners for the Southeast," Dr. Homer K. Butler, chairman of the Southeast area unit, said yesterday. All solicitation teams and captains, he said, will be Southeast men and women.

An area office, Dr. Butler said, will be established on Pennsylvania avenue southeast as headquarters, with a large thermometer indicating progress of the campaign. A meeting of old and new workers, he said, will be held at a date to be announced later at the Southeast branch of the Boys Club of Washington.

Lupe Velez Files Suit for Divorce

The explosive romance of Lupe Velez and Johnny Weissmuller wound up in a final burst of pyrotechnics last night when the Mexican actress filed suit for divorce from her one-time Olympic swimming champion husband. This time, she said, the break would be permanent.

Conference on Minimum Pay In Steel Plants Opens Monday

Hearings Under Provisions of Walsh-Healy Act Will Be Confined to Primary Products; Fabrication Industries Excluded.

Hearings beginning Monday for determining minimum wages in the steel industry under the provisions of Walsh-Healey act covering government contracts, will be confined to primary products, it was announced yesterday by L. Metcalfe Walling, head of contracts board, Department of Labor.

The decision was reached, Walling said, after a conference with representatives of the steel industry and labor, who were in agreement that efforts to set the scales for wages in the steel fabrication industries should be postponed until the facts had been established for primary production. He said wage rates as such were not discussed but efforts were made to determine what job classifications will be included.

Yesterday's conference, he explained, was merely "procedural" and designed to pave the way for the hearings, similar to those already held on the cement, aviation and tobacco industries.

Thus far only the scales covering the garment manufacturing industries have been promulgated by the department under the Walsh-Healey act but the proceedings have served to develop a technique which may be used in administering the wage-hour law. Those attending yesterday's conference were:

John E. Laughlin, jr., National Steel Corporation; E. F. Blank, Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation; Henry D. Scott, Wheeling Steel Corporation; R. M. Welch, Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.; A. J. Gentholts and J. A. Voss, Republic Steel Corporation; L. S. Harding, Crucible Steel Co. of America; William Beye, U. S. Steel Corporation of Delaware; C. S. Bullard, Inland Steel Co.; C. A. McLane, Bethlehem Steel Co.; John P. Frey, metal trades department, A. F. of L.

Paul Scharrenberg, American Federation of Labor; Paul R. Hutchings, International Association of Machinists, A. F. of L.; Philip Murray, Steel Workers Organizing Committee; Lee Pressman, Committee for Industrial Organization; Clinton Colden, Steel Workers Organizing Committee; Frank Bennett, Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel & Tin Workers of America.

steel ingot operations to 36 per cent of capacity for the industry.

"Since steel output usually declines about 7 per cent between June and July, this contra-seasonal advance is a significant development—the more so since it is based mainly on an enlarged volume of orders from a wide variety of miscellaneous sources," his survey states.

Another encouraging factor is a 5 per cent advance in the machine tool index.

Automobile assemblies also rebounded sharply from the July 4 holiday week to the best levels since late in May.

Mill consumption of cotton in June increased contra-seasonally, production of electric power and bituminous coal advanced, while prices of commodities and of shares advanced sharply last month. These factors reflect a "definite change in the business outlook based on factual evidences of improvement in activity."

In the Social Security Board reports decreases in cases were noted in 45 of the 99 areas. In 12 the drop was 10 per cent or more and in four it was more than 20 per cent. However, in ten cities increases of 10 per cent or more were listed.

Fifty-three of the 99 cities reported decreases of 1 per cent or more in the amount of obligations incurred for general relief from public funds. Forty cities noted increases of 1 per cent or above.

The loans by the USHA will make possible construction of 9,650 family dwelling units for 38,500 slum dwellers, it is estimated. Cities obtaining the advances are:

St. Petersburg, Fla., $959,000; Tampa, Fla., $1,524,000; Peoria, Ill., $2,559,000; Louisville, Ky., $4,185,000; Detroit, Mich., $2,307,000; Omaha, Nebr., $2,243,000; Dayton, Ohio, $2,624,000; Toledo, Ohio, $1,644,000; Philadelphia, $15,118,000; Knoxville, Tenn., $2,504,000; San Antonio, Tex., $3,588,000; Fort Worth, Tex., $2,028,000; Charleston, W. Va., $2,175,000.

Included in the PWA grants yesterday was $130,948 for schools in Washington County, Md.

Holder Approves.

New York, July 20 (AP).—Floyd B. Odlum, head of Atlas Corporation, the largest individual holder of Utilities Power & Light Corporation securities, tonight expressed approval of the plan of William O. Douglas, chairman of the Securities & Exchange Commission, to expedite simplification of the power company's structure to accord with section 11B of the public utility holding company act.

The Utilities Power & Light system, he said in a statement, "violates practically every basic provision of the holding company act, the company's subsidiary properties being mostly 'utility islands' entirely surrounded by major systems belonging to other major groups."

Odlum pointed out that Atlas Corporation's original plan of reorganization for Utilities P. & L. contemplated the elimination of isolated operating units, as did the Atlas amended plan submitted last week.

"We so drafted the plans," Odlum said, "not only because in this case it seemed good economics apart from any statutory requirement, but also because it gave us the satisfaction that comes with compliance with laws when voluntarily possible to do so."

U. S. Ought to Help Parochial Schools, Fitzpatrick Says

Federal aid for parochial as well as public schools was indorsed last night in a radio address over WJSV by Dr. John R. Fitzpatrick, provost of Columbus University, entitled, "Education—Ally of Democracy."

Dr. Fitzpatrick called attention to the report of a committee on education and its recommendation that $70,000,000 be appropriated for schools in 1939-40, and declared this fund would not lead to Federal control of schools. He pointed out safeguards set up by the committee in its recommendation.

"Its recommendations," he said, "erect adequate safeguards against Federal control, first, by providing that the Federal money be appropriated on a strict basis of need; and, second, by the stipulation that the Federal Government have no voice in what the schools teach.

"Some may assail the subsidy on account of its money cost. Yet the total six-year expenditure amounts to less than the Government will spend this year and next on the Navy alone; it barely equals the cost of ten battleships."

New Deal Preparing to Lend $140,000,000 on Farm Power

Power

manufactured in industrial centers far afield from the projects themselves. The REA estimated more than 200,000 farm families now are benefiting from the projects, while 450,000 more will share in the service if the entire $140,000,000 is loaned. As against one farm in 10 served with electricity when the REA started, they said one in six now has electricity. The bulk of this was attributed to stimulated private utility activity. Private utilities more than doubled rural construction in 1936. A record high of 41,000 miles of private rural lines were constructed last year, 9,000 miles more than in 1936.

Meanwhile, Carmody announced amicable settlement of an alleged "raid" by power interests on a Florida REA project, and dispatched a "trouble shooter" to Colorado to adjust another.

Protested "Spite Lines."

Three weeks ago he charged Electric Bond & Share Co.'s were "destroying" REA projects in five States by "spite line tactics" and "cream skimming." He protested "anti-social behaviour" by the Florida Power & Light Co., near an REA project in Florida, in following REA stakers, "erecting company poles and running service into farms unasked and without service contracts."

Carmody said Chester Lake, REA "trouble shooter" and engineer, had reached a complete agreement with the Florida Power & Light Co., under which the utility agreed to remove poles placed at the sides of the roads and to sell to the local co-operative the lines already built.

Lake yesterday was sent to Colorado, where Carmody had complained the Western Colorado Power Co. is building 15 miles of line in the heart of the REA's Delta County project, a new rural power development which has just completed its sign-up of members. He said the company is telling REA sponsors the area belongs to the utility and the utility will serve such portions as it chooses.

"Recognize Only Customers.

"We don't recognize any utility territory," said Carmody yesterday. "We recognize only served customers. If the utilities will serve all of them, all right. Our statute does not allow us to take their customers, but in building these spite lines they are constantly violating their own rules, and skimming on the thinnest ice possible. Once they run their lines in they might serve the whole territory, but generally not. Our projects are based on self-liquidating loans, and if a spite line blocks us off we are stopped at the start."

In embarking on the expended program, Carmody said the REA is handicapped by a short staff, especially in the field. Congress increased the agency's annual $40,000,000 appropriation by $100,000,000 in new money, but provided only $700,000 additional for administrative costs. Officials said this made only 7-10 of 1 per cent available for administrative expenses, but this was largely offset by a trained staff and a "going organization."

The additional $100,000,000 is available only if the REA uses it in this fiscal year, and Carmody said "we intend to move it all, as far as we can make the projects self-liquidating."

Calls Conferences.

Carmody said his letter to project officials in 15 States called for State-wide conferences at which farm electric co-operatives and other REA beneficiaries can weigh their needs for additional expansion, "see where they stand and provide for an orderly job."

He wrote the project officials that "for the past two years we have not had enough money to satisfy the demand for it" but the additional $100,000,000 enables REA to proceed.

"This money is available to build rural distribution lines, to build generating plants where they are essential to the success of the project, and to do adequate wiring and plumbing," he wrote. "To the extent that the demand warrants it, we wish to put this money through for the purposes intended by the Congress. . . .

"Splendid Co-operation."

"We have had splendid co-operation from almost everybody who has got into rural electrification in any way. We are anxious to continue this relationship, while at the same time, we want to assure you as borrowers and as citizens that we think it is in your interest, as well as in the interest of the Federal Government, that we check every proposal carefully and wind up in co-operation with you with a project that is sound physically and sound socially for the community."

The REA administrator estimated that 90 per cent of all energy used on completed REA projects is bought from private utilities, "with our transmission lines brought to their door without costing them one cent."

By the Associated Press.

Strategists singled out the Administration's power program yesterday as a major point of attack in the Senatorial campaigns.

Senator Townsend (Republican), of Delaware, chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committe, said he considered the attempts by the Administration to expand it public power programs a "live issue" because it affected millions of voters who had invested in private utilities.

The Senator intimated that a direct appeal would be made to women voters who were utility stockholders. Many women, he said, had invested their savings in public utility companies and these investments now were threatened by the Federal Government's activities.

The campaign committee chairman said his party expected to win five to eight Senate and 60 to 80 House seats in the fall election. He said chances for a Republican senatorial victory in Iowa were bright, and expressed the opinion Republican victory in Pennsylvania would return Senator James J. Davis to the Senate.

While he declined to name the States where he hoped to win senatorial seats from Democrats, he predicted House seats would be picked up in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Kansas, California and Iowa.

Colored Democrats Ask 3d Term for Roosevelt

A third term for President Roosevelt was urged last night by the Colored National Democratic League, meeting at its national headquarters here, in a resolution embodying the slogan, "Complete Your Program Before You Leave Us." Dr. F. O. Williston, national chairman, presided.

In 1936 the league published the bulletin, "We Want Roosevelt Again Because of Facts and Figures," compiled by L. O. Robison, its national statistician.

Rev. Schwitalla Sees No Link in Poverty, Illness

Scores Public Medicine for Ending Patient-Doctor Relationship.

Poverty of itself does not cause disease, the Rev. Alfonse M. Schwitalla, dean of the St. Louis University Medical School and president of the Catholic Hospital Association of the United States and Canada, said yesterday following the National Health Conference.

Addressing the conference earlier in the day, Father Schwitalla had challenged "the idea that illness increases with decreasing income." There were correlations, he said, but he insisted that it was dangerous to regard these as establishing a principle.

"Is it because of poverty that you get sick?" he asked. There is a direct relationship between poverty and living conditions. There is a probable relationship between living conditions and disease. Therefore there can only be an indirect relationship between poverty and disease.

"Poverty of itself does not cause disease. The human constitution often rises superior to living conditions.

Hits Public Medicine.

Father Schwitalla, though praising the National Health Conference, disagreed emphatically with the advocates of "socialized" medicine.

Discussing a committee's recommendation that the Federal Government appropriate $850,000,000 a year for hospitals, clinics, health insurance and aid to the States in fighting disease, the priest-physician said:

"If I cannot accept the recommendations unreservedly it is because the framework of medical care has always been for me the personal relationship between the patient and physician. We emphasize this in remunerated medical care; why should we deprive the indigent of that same basic right in the interest of medical economics?

"As I see it, it is only through this relationship that responsibilities in conscience and the welfare of the patient can be preserved and safeguarded. Medical practice is more than the physical care of the patient, more than hygiene and psychiatry. Considerations of ethical and moral import are basic, and I have not been able, even in these three days of thinking, to understand how personal responsibility will be affected under a diffused, governmental influence subject to political controls.

Medicine a Commodity.

"Without this responsibility, medical care becomes merely a purchasable commodity, and the meaning of a profession, as applied to medicine, must vanish.

"I am concerned, too, for the institutions under private control, not so much because of direct effacement of them, or replacements, which we have been assured will not take place, but because of gradual loss of significance in contrast to the expected growth of public institutions stimulated by unprecedented subsidies.

"I am distressed by the disregard of the service and achievements of private enterprise in the health field, in education, public health service, community welfare work and hospital activity.

"Private service is one of the finest expressions of the innate genius of the American people, and to set this aside now in the interest of a philosophy as yet untried in America, the inevitable trend of which is to make society coterminus with government, is too dangerous an experiment for me, particularly at this moment, when the conference has emphasized the magnitude of the Nation's needs.

"For me the conference has not afforded evidence of the advisability of changing so radically the present system of developing health facilities and dispensing medical care through a wise and generous co-operation of public and private agencies."

2-Month-Old Baby Boy Suffocates in Crib

An autopsy performed at the District Morgue yesterday disclosed that Thomas C. Deacon, 2-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Deacon, 1319 Euclid street northwest, died of suffocation.

The infant was found unconscious in his crib by his mother when she went to feed him. The baby was dead when a doctor from Emergency Hospital arrived. Coroner MacDonald said the death was accidental.

Among the Leading Lights at National Health Conference

Post Staff Photos.

cal Association, but the breach is far from healed.

The big three of the association—President Irvin Abell, General Manager Olin West and Dr. Fishbein—checked out of the Hotel Mayflower, where the conference was held, before adjournment. On each of the three days of the conference the delegates heard one or the other of the trio assail the comprehensive scheme of public health rehabilitation as unworkable, contrary to good economic policy and alien to American traditions.

Wrong Impression Hinted.

Saying he thought the medical profession, in presenting its case, had left the wrong impression, Dr. George Baehr, of the New York Academy of Medicine, conceded medical care is not adequate in all sections of the country but said that the blame lies with politics rather than the doctors.

Medical and dentals care are secondary to the fundamental needs of food, fuel, clothing, shelter and a job, said Dr. Fishbein, implying that the public health problem is over-emphasized.

"If we need hospitals in the rural and sparsely settled areas of the United States, why does this report which has been handed to us propose to spend $630,000,000 on hospital construction, of which $50,000,000 will be spent in rural areas?" the Journal editor asked. "That may be good economics; it is bad mathematics, as far as I can see it.

"There are many similar problems. I could tear to pieces many of these things and these figures. It is not the thing to do. We are not here to tear to pieces this program.

Sees Widespread Harm.

"We cannot all fly to Ireland and guide ourselves by a watch. That takes a genius. We haven't got that kind of genius in medicine because medicine is a different business from flying to Ireland."

He warned that the sweeping plan of hospital building, health insurance, disease control, etc., may play havoc with insurance companies, fraternal benefits, hospitalization groups and private hospitals.

"We must have integration, proper integration, of any plan into our civilization as it now is, or we will lose the benefits of that civilization," Dr. Fishbein asserted.

Reminding the audience that he had no authority to speak for the A. M. A., Dr. Fishbein said the program will be considered by the association's house of delegates.

Fears Fall in Standards.

"I propose," he said, "to recognize the needs which you people have dramatized for us, to go home and to recommend to the American medical profession through the Journal and through the house of delegates that they do all they can to meet these immediate and pressing needs without sacrificing the standards of medical care which will give them good medical service."

Cognizant of the A. M. A. leaders' antipathy toward the program, Miss Roche reiterated the desire of the interdepartmental committee to have the doctor's help.

"I think it should be unnecessary to specify that among those from whom we expect to receive constructive suggestions and aid are the members of the medical profession," she said. "We have welcomed most cordially and sincerely the offers of co-operation from the president of the American Medical Association, Dr. Abell, and from the spokesmen of other professional organizations, as well as from individual members of the medical profession."

Says Plan Aids States.

She pointed out that none of the recommendations of the Technical Committee on Medical Care contemplates a federally controlled program but, purposes use of Federal funds to aid the States, as is now being done under the social security act.

The American Medical Association opposed the act under which the National Cancer institute was set up here as a unit of the Public Health Service, and has indicated in no uncertain terms that no general public health program should be launched under Washington bosses.

Speaking privately at the conclusion of the conference, Surgeon General Thomas Parran, of the Public Health Service, said:

"The opening gun for public health on a National front has been fired. The only disagreement which exists, I believe, is on how fast and how far we should go and how the expenses should be divided between the Federal, State and local governments."

A. M. A. Liberals Heard.

Two physicians prominent in the organized movement to liberalize the American Medical Association were heard yesterday. They are Dr. Robert Osgood, professor emeritus of Howard University school of medicine, and Dr. John Peters, professor of medicine at Yale.

"Perhaps we may escape smugness if we suggest that practice of medicine involves as much unselfishness as do the other professions," said the former.

He denied the "rebel" group of physicians known as the "Committee of 430" bears hostility toward the parent A. M. A., or that it plans to secede.

"Some of us have felt that neither the leaders of the association nor the rank and file of its members have realized until recently the seriousness of the medical care situation of our country, nor the challenge which organized medicine would be forced to meet," he said. "The challenge has come with this conference.

"Complacency now has no justification. The situation would seem to be too big for the resources of medicine to meet alone."

He dropped a hint to A. M. A. leaders to "think in long range terms," yet warned that independence of physicians must be preserved. He suggested the possible usefulness of a national health council, which would be nonpolitical and act only in an advisory capacity.

"It might well serve as a most useful liaison between the Government and organized medicine and give us frightened doctors a little more confidence," Dr. Osgood said.

Dr. Peters advised that the problem cannot be solved merely by building more hospitals and clinics, that success will depend upon a combination of qualified personnel, education and investigation.

The matter of skilled administration also was emphasized by Dr. Baehr, chairman of the public health relations committee of the New York Academy of Medicine.

"There exists in the United States today only a very small number of communities which have as yet professional, expertly trained health officers," he declared. "The vast majority of communities are served by political appointees who do not know their business.

"You have permitted that to exist, you are responsible for this, and therefore to lay these evils at the door of American medicine, to make a scapegoat of the medical profession and not to acknowledge your own responsibility humbly and join with us in making such progress as can be made, is entirely wrong."

Many Coroners Incompetent.

Except in a few communities such as New York, Newark, Cincinnati and Massachusetts, there are practising today "incompetent coroner's physicians appointed as the result of political influence and without regard largely to their professional capacity," he charged.

"Do not harp upon our own deficiencies in medicine. Most of us are willing to help you go on and solve your problems. Help you perhaps with experiments both from a responsibility standpoint and any other that you may point the way, but you must give us the facilities, the instruments, with which we can do our best work."

Dr. C. Willard Camalier, president of the American Dental Association and one of the few Washingtonians in private life to be heard at the conference, mildly criticized the Technical Committee on Medical Care for not paying sufficient attention to dental defects in its recommendations.

Cites Dental Figures.

He cited statistics showing that 90 per cent of American children suffer from decayed teeth and emphasized the importance of prenatal and post-natal nutrition and medical care, and detection and correction of dental defects early in childhood.

The University of North Carolina president, introducing himself as the grandson of a country doctor and with a brother, two uncles and five first cousins practicing medicine, said the proposed program will require more private practitioners, not fewer, as the organized profession fears.

"The greatest medical scientists are for this campaign," said Dr. Graham. "It is an attack on no one, but the fulfilment of the purposes of the great profession of medicine.

"What we need is an emotional disarmament. When we start giving out tags we stop thinking and start fighting."

His reference evidently was to the wide use of the labels "state medicine" and "socialized medicine," especially by foes of Government spending for health purposes.

Miss Roche Praised.

Prof. Winslow paid warm tribute to Miss Roche and expressed confidence that "we have made it clear that criticism of this situation is not a criticism of the medical profession."

Other speakers at the closing morning and afternoon meetings included Fulton Oursler, editor of Liberty magazine, who stressed public health education; Charles W. Eliot 2d, executive officer of the National Resources Committee, who described that group's concern with the problem; David H. McAlpin Pyle, president of the United Hospital Fund of New York; Dr. Alice Hamilton, Labor Department consultant; Prof. Edwin E. Witte, of the University of Wisconsin; Dr. Kingsley Roberts, medical director of the Association of Medical Co-operatives, and Joseph Padway, general counsel of the American Federation of Labor.

The proposed public health program, drafted by three Public Health Service officials, one from the Labor Department and one from the Social Security Board and which was the raison d'etre from the conference just ended, made the following recommendations:

Expenditure of $200,000,000 annually for expansion of general public health services and $165,000,000 for improvement of maternal and child health services, both of these projects to be carried out under Titles V and VI of the social security act.

Expenditure of $146,050,000 for construction and maintenance of hospitals and diagnostic centers wherever needed.

Expenditure of $50,000,000 the first year, then gradually higher amounts, to make medical care available to the poor.

Cost would be shared by the Federal Government and by State and local governments.

The technical committee on medical care also provided, in its report, for a general program which would close all gaps and a system of health insurance which would assure a steady income to workers forced out of their jobs by illness.

U. S. Asked to Aid Homeless Strikers

By the Associated Press.

Officials of Labor's Nonpartisan League asked the Justice Department yesterday to furnish protection for more than 300 evicted strikers, who, they said, planned to return from Sacramento to their homes at Westwood, Calif., today.

E. L. Oliver, executive vice president of the league, placed before the Department a telegram from representatives of the strikers which asserted "these American citizens were driven from their homes by vigilante action" inspired by officials of a lumber company.

LEARN TO SAY FLEISCHMANN'S

When you drink you owe it to yourself to drink the best—even if you have to pay a little more and drink a little less.
When it comes to gin, we believe the best is Fleischmann's.
That's because we distill every drop of the spirits that go into our gin.
We know how to make fine spirits because we've been at it since 1870.

David J. Lewis Lists Campaign Cash at $1,183

All But $150 Is Spent, Md. Candidate Says; Tydings Reported $8,560.

Representative David J. Lewis (Democrat), of Maryland, yesterday wrote the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee he has received $1,183 and spent $1,033 in his campaign to unseat Senator Millard E. Tydings.

Lewis reported he had put up $500 of his total campaign costs out of his own pocket. His next largest contributor was Eugene Casey, of Gaithersburg, Md., who supplied $453.29.

In contrast, Tydings' report filed with the committee on Tuesday listed $8,560 in contributions and $5,512 in expenditures.

Denies Federal Coercion.

Running on a 100 per cent New Deal platform, Lewis is attacking Tydings on his anti-Administration record in the Senate in Washington's own sideshow version of the attempted Democratic "purge."

Like Tidings, Lewis answered "no" to all questions by the Senate committee on whether Federal patronage, public funds or Federal influence had been used in his behalf, and said he had no knowledge of "coercion" of any Federal employes.

In addition to the $1,033 spent in his campaign, Lewis listed $183 in "bills payable," including $107.50 for campaign buttons and $30 for a loudspeaker in his Cumberland address.

Contributions Listed.

Besides Casey and Lewis himself, contributions listed by the Maryland representative in answer to the committee's questionnaire were:

T. A. Calnan, Silver Spring, Md., $25; Jane K. Kirby, Baltimore, Md., $10; W. R. McClayton, Baltimore, $10; J. Joseph Sheehan, Bethesda, Md., $50; Conrad Reid, Kensington, Md., $10; David L. Waldron, Silver Spring, Md., $10; J. J. Williams, Washington, D. C., $50, and C. E. Royer, Chevy Chase, Md., $25. In addition, Lewis reported checks on hand totaling $50 from Mrs. Margaret Morgan, of Owings Mills, Md.

Earlier yesterday Senator Ellison O. Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, reported expenditures of $3,690 in his race for re-election, and no contributions. Senator Ernest W. Gibson (Republican), of Vermont, reported no contributions, but expenditures of $96.50.

Nine Persons Die In Four Scattered Airplane Crashes

By the Associated Press.

Four airplanes crashed yesterday, killing nine persons.

Lieut. Ralph Guy La Baw, 23, and Private Alney L. Tanner, 22, were decapitated when an Army plane buried its nose in a Madison County, Ill., tomato patch.

Everett Saunders, 34, Fort Plain, N. Y., farmer, took off from his private field in a fog. Killed with him when the craft fell were Mrs. Theresa Mendershott and Mrs. Allen Shelley, young neighbors of his.

Pilot Nicolas Mendzik and Paul Fadden, both 17, of Clifton Heights, Pa., and a passenger died when their rented monoplane fell back on to the Roosevelt Field, N. Y., runway. Apparently they took off in bad weather because all but 75 cents of their vacation money was gone.

Scores to Greet Hughes, Aides In D. C. Today

Special Police Guard to Convoy Him From Flying Field.

Howard Hughes and his four round-the world companions will be met on their arrival at Washington Airport at 11:30 a. m., today by cheering thousands.

After alighting from the airliner which will bring them to the National Capital, the flyers, accompanied by Grover Whelan, president of the New York World's Fair, will go to the State Department to thank Secretary of State Cordell Hull for his aid in cutting international red tape for their aerial trek.

Elaborate precautions have been made to protect Hughes and his fellow aviators from the fans who are expected to meet them at the airport. Special squads of Arlington County police will patrol the landing field and form an escort for the visitors on the ride to the State Department, where they will be met by Harold Brayman, president of the Press Club.

At 11:30 p. m., Hughes will speak at a luncheon of the Press Club. His remarks will be broadcast to radio audiences over the Columbia, National and Mutual systems.

The felicitations of the Nation will be extended to Hughes and his men at the luncheon by Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The R. F. C. head will be introduced by Brayman, who will be toastmaster.

During the afternoon the fliers will be free to rest before being guests of Constantine Oumansky, charge d'affaires, at dinner at the Russian Embassy.

Hughes and his party will stop overnight at the Mayflower Hotel.

The millionaire motion picture producer and aviator is a former copilot of American Airlines. After Hughes produced "Hell's Angels" several years ago he applied for the post and worked as a regular member of the crew on the Los Angeles-Fort Worth run. His ability on that assignment eventually won him his transport license.

Germany Objects, So Manila Alters Colt Hitler's Name

Manila, July 20 (AP).—The Government-owned stock farm has okayed this order:

"The office of the German Consul has complained regarding one of our stud colts named for Hitler. For this reason you are hereby directed to change its name."

The colt is named Hedjaz now.

Claim C. I. O. Chief Would Not Intervene Is Emphatically Denied.

By the United Press.

A delegation of United Automobile Workers local union presidents friendly to President Homer Martin's "purge" of his opposition last night clashed with Chairman John L. Lewis of the Committee for Industrial Organization over the question of C. I. O. intervention in the factional fight.

The delegation, claiming to represent 155 U. A. W. locals with a membership of 322,823, issued a statement after a three-hour conference with Lewis, in which they said, in part:

"Mr. Lewis told us the U. A. W. is a very important and autonomous part of the C. I. O. He assured us the C. I. O. would not intervene unless the U. A. W. was in imminent danger of collapse.

"He told us if we can settle our own affairs there will be no intervention by the C. I. O. We assured Mr. Lewis the U. A. W. is in no danger of collapse and we have no doubt we can settle our own affairs."

Lewis declared the group "had no authorization to make any such statement" when informed of the delegation's press release, which was signed by John Tate, publicity director for the international union.

"No one has any authority to quote me on this situation except myself," Lewis added.

Earlier he had told a press conference he still was considering the formal request for C. I. O. intervention, presented to him last week by a committee of 13 union presidents which claimed to represent between 175,000 and 200,000 U. A. W. members in Detroit, Cleveland, Toledo Saginaw, Mich., and Bay City, Mich.

Reid Heads Delegation.

Frank Reid, President of Dodge Local No. 3, headed the pro-Martin delegation which conferred with the C. I. O. chieftain and presented a seven-point program, highlighted by a request the C. I. O. keep hands off the controversy.

The Reid delegation urged the trial as scheduled next Monday of Vice Presidents Richard T. Frankensteen, Walter N. Wells, Ed Hall, and Wyndham Mortimer, who were ousted last month along with Secretary-treasurer George Addes. Addes already has been tried, removed from office and expelled from U. A. W. membership.

They disputed the claim of last week's delegation that it represented 200,000 members.

Membership claims of the two groups are overlapping and confusing.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

It's No Surprise That You're Constipated!

If constipation has you bogged down so you feel tired, sunk, all played out—it's time you asked yourself some questions!

What have you had to eat lately? Just meat, bread, eggs, potatoes? It's no surprise you're constipated! The chances are you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is what you lack, your ticket is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and take a new lease on life! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

Hull Gratified In Pact Barring War in Chaco

Negotiations, Arbitration of Bolivia-Paraguay Dispute to Follow.

Secretary of State Hull announced with obvious gratification last night that Bolivia and Paraguay had authorized their foreign ministers to sign today a peace treaty designed to prevent resumption of the bloody and protracted Gran Chaco war.

The treaty, the Secretary declared, and the negotiations that will follow its signing, comprise an "outstanding triumph for the spirit of peace and the principles of order based on law over the doctrine of force and aggression." His statement added:

"The happy outcome of the negotiations between Bolivia and Paraguay offers a powerful demonstration of the practicability and effectiveness of methods of co-operation in the settlement of international disputes.

"The fidelity of the governments of Bolivia and Paraguay to those basic principles which alone can assure conditions of peace and orderly progress offers an inspiring example to the friends of order based on law in every part of the world. It will give them renewed confidence and courage to resist the spread of lawlessness in the world and to strive vigorously in support of a program of peaceful and friendly relations between nations.

"In achieving a settlement of this long-standing controversy, this Government considers it a privilege to have been associated with the governments of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru and Uruguay, which have given at the Chaco Peace Conference a practical demonstration of the value of co-operation and consultation. Supporting the efforts of Bolivia and Paraguay and the mediatory countries, public opinion in all of the American republics, in particular as made manifest at the inter-American conferences at Montevideo and at Buenos Aires, and the moral influence of all the American governments, have been effectively insistent that a peaceful solution be found, thereby giving further proof of the solidarity of the American republics for maintaining the peace of this continent."

Corrigans Unite for Corn Beef Feast

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Chicago's fire marshal, Michael J. Corrigan, and Mary Corrigan, two members of the "First Chapter of the Honorable Society of Corrigans" organized yesterday, plot an itinerary for their honorary president, Douglas "Nonstop" Corrigan, to fly his "crate" to Chicago. The Corrigans promise him "the largest dish of corned beef ever assembled." The New York-Chicago air route map was sent to the flier so he wouldn't get "lost."

Appeal Decisions Scheduled Today On Gambling Ring

With the mandate of the United States Court of Appeals scheduled to come to the United States District Court today, several of the reputed members of the Carroll Peyton-(Nubby) Nuckols ring of alleged gamblers will be sent to jail to serve indeterminate sentences while others appeal to the United States Supreme Court for a final review.

Of those convicted of gambling charges, Moe Morganstein and Nicholas (Nick the Greek) Floratos, were sentenced to from six months to three years; Robert A. Murray, Anthony Costello, Harry C. Adams and George W. Godfrey were given from nine months to three years; while Bernard Newyahr, John A. Clements and Bernie M. Traub were given sentences of from six months to a year and a day. Morganstein and Floratos have appealed their convictions to the United States Supreme Court and as to them the mandate due today will not apply.

Punishment Later.

No objection is being raised to the Martime Commission's suggestion, Acting Secretary Commerce J. Monroe Johnson said yesterday, adding that he supposed arangements were under way. The Lehigh docked in Dublin yesterday.

Maritime Commission officials said last night the Lehigh is due at New York July 29. They added that if Corrigan prefers he can send his plane back to the United States aboard another Government-owned vessel, the Artigas, scheduled to reach the United States August 6.

Asked about the possibility that Corrigan may be disciplined for his transatlantic flight when he returns to this country, Johnson said: "We are not burdening our minds with that question; we are tickled he got across. Every one is having a good time over the flight and we don't want to cast a chill over the pleasure."

C. A. A. to Consider Action.

He added that any action against Corrigan will be discussed with the new Civil Aeronautics Authority which goes into operation next month.

Characterizing as "an excellent Irish Joke," the Californian's statement he misread his compass, Johnson laughingly asserted, "there could not possibly have been any such confusion in the mind of any man who could fly a plane."

Turning to the round-the-world flight of Howard Hughes, the Acting Secretary declared that every precaution had been taken against failure. He added that Hughes had gladly accepted every suggestion made by the Department of Commerce to insure safety and that the plane was as well-equipped as any aircraft could be.

"Do you think Corrigan was well-equipped and well-prepared?" Johnson was asked.

"Well, he personally seems to have been well-prepared," he said with a chuckle, "but his plane could never be well-equipped."

New Orleans Police May Refuse To Return D. C. 'Rose Burglar'

Louisiana Assault Count Complicates Case; Girl Absolved.

Return to Washington of Richard Bennett Heck, 20, the so-called "rose burglar," who was arrested yesterday in New Orleans, was not believed imminent last night.

Immediately upon learning of Heck's arrest Inspector Bernard W. Thompson wired Louisiana authorities for information concerning the arrest and whether they would be willing to return him to the District for prosecution on several burglary counts.

Delay in response at an early hour last night led to belief New Orleans authorities would keep him there for prosecution on reported charges of assaulting a policeman with a gun.

The youthful bandit had boasted he would never be caught alive. He was armed with a revolver when last seen in Washington.

Local police were notified of Heck's capture by Capt. John Cooney, of the Baltimore detective bureau. Cooney received a wire from New Orleans because, the telegram stated, Heck said he had escaped from a Maryland institution. Cooney noticed the description of the man in custody answered that of the Washington fugitive.

"Every effort will be made to bring him back here for trial," Detective Chief Thompson asserted.

Heck has been sought for almost a month in connection with numerous housebreakings in Potomac Heights. He accidentally dropped a rose in one of the places he ransacked and began the practice of leaving the flowers at other jobs as a defiant gesture.

A 16-year-old girl, who ran away from her home here to become the companion of the hunted youth, was released in custody of her parents after being held at the Woman's Bureau. Police said they were convinced she was not involved in the robberies.

She told police she went with Heck to Baltimore and Atlantic City, and slipped away from him to return home while he was asleep.

Records at police headquarters show Heck was sent to the National Training School in 1935 on several charges of unlawful entry and petty larceny. He was sentenced to serve two to three years in Lorton Reformatory December 6, 1935, and received a conditional release March 27, 1938.

Ganz Symphony Is Set for Tonight

Rains last night caused postponement of the fourth "Sunset Symphony" concert by the National Symphony Orchestra until tonight. The concert, to be conducted by Rudolph Ganz, former conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, now president of Chicago Musical College, will be given at 8 p. m. at the Potomac Water Gate near Lincoln Memorial.

Tickets for last night's performance will be honored tonight.

Making his second and final appearance as guest conductor in the summer series, Ganz will present the Washington premiere of a recent work by one of the most important modern American composers, Howard Hanson, head of the Rochester School of Music. A special feature of tonight's concert will be the raising of the new official flag of the National Symphony.

George King, Attorney Here 62 Years, Dies

Believed Before Supreme Court More Than Any Living Lawyer.

George Anderson King, 83, who had practiced law here for 62 years and is believed to have appeared before the United States Supreme Court more times than any other living attorney, died late Tuesday in Whitefield, N. H., while on vacation, his office announced yesterday.

He had suffered a paralytic stroke last Saturday. A son, George A. King, jr., and a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Jones, were with him.

Mr. King had actively practiced until he left the first of the month on his vacation. He was admitted to the District bar after he had graduated from Gonzaga College in 1863, and taken his bachelor and master of law degrees from Columbia College, now George Washington University, in 1871 and 1872.

Came Here as a Boy.

Although born in Minneapolis, Mr. King lived most of his life in Washington, coming here as a boy. He started practice in the office founded by his father, the late Charles King, in 1866. There are today four surviving members of the firm of King & King, with offices at 728 Seventeenth street northwest. Mr. King was senior partner.

Mr. King fondly recalled his admittance to the bar of the United States Court of Claims, Herman J. Galloway, former Assistant Attorney General and one of his partners, said yesterday. The court was meeting at the time in chambers of the United States Supreme Court, then in recess, in the Capitol.

Since his office specialized in claims against the Government, Mr. King had appeared before the Court of Claims for many years and was known as its Nestor. He also specialized in cases concerning pay of military and civil employes of the Government. One of his important cases resulted in postmasters throughout the country receiving pay for overtime.

Married in 1881.

In 1881 he married the former Ada Edmonston, who died in 1933. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Jones, wife of Lawrence M. (Biff) Jones, athletic director of the University of Nebraska, and Mrs. Marian Hinckley, wife of Commander Robert M. Hinckley, U. S. N., stationed at San Francisco, and two sons, George A. King, jr., of New York City, and Lieut. Col. Archibald King, U. S. A., stationed at Atlanta.

Mr. King was a director of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., member of the American and District Bar Associations, American Society of International Law, Association of Oldest Inhabitants, and Sigma Nu Phi. He was an Episcopalian and member of the Convention of Diocese of Washington.

His body will be returned to Washington today. Funeral services will be held Friday at Christ Church in Georgetown, where he had been a vestryman. The Rev. I. Gillespie Armstrong, rector, will officiate. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery. His residence was 1811 Twenty-eighth street northwest.

Lieut. Col. Seydel Succumbs at 52 In San Francisco

Lieut. Col. Fred Seydel, 52, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. A., retired, died Tuesday at Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco, the War Department was informed yesterday.

A native of Iowa City, Iowa, Col. Seydel was graduated from West Point and was commissioned a second lieutenant of Coast Artillery in 1910.

During the World War he commanded the Second Battalion, Forty-third Artillery, from August 30 until November 11, 1918.

Col. Seydel was on duty here in the office of the chief of the Chemical Warfare Service from July, 1925, until August of the following year.

He was a graduate of the Army Industrial College here and of the Command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Col. Seydel leaves a daughter, Miss Joan Seydel, of Oakland, Calif., and a brother, H. M. Seydel, of 7611 Fourteenth street northwest.

Burial Rites Today For Mrs. Riva Zeiler

Funeral services for Mrs. Riva Zeiler, resident of Washington more than 40 years, who died Tuesday, will be held at 10:30 a. m. today at her home, 1755 Lanier place northwest. Burial will be in Chev Sholom Cemetery.

Mrs. Zeiler leaves her husband, David Zeiler, retired grocer and commission merchant; two sons, Milton B. Zeiler, Washington, and Lieut. S. Francis Zeiler, U. S. M. C., stationed at Shanghai, China, and a daughter, Miss Anne Zeiler, of Washington.

John C. Heide, Ex-Policeman, Is Dead at 79

Final Services Saturday for Patrolman Who Became Veterinarian.

Born May 12, 1859, at Covington, Ky., he served from 1883 to 1888 in the Coast Artillery at Fortress Monroe, Va. In 1888 he became a mounted patrolman on the Metropolitan force in Georgetown.

Thirteen years after becoming a member of the department, Mr. Heide attended the old United States Veterinary College on C street in 1901, and after graduation was appointed city veterinarian. In that capacity, he cared for the city's more than 100 animals and taught during part of his service at the veterinary college.

He ended his service as veterinarian in 1916 and continued with the department until 1922. That year he was slightly injured when his horse was struck by an automobile. Soon afterward he retired.

In addition to being an expert on horses, Mr. Heide was an authority on plant life.

He leaves two daughters, Mrs. R. H. Childers and Miss Catherine L. Heide, and two sons, Thomas F. Heide and John C. Heide, jr.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 9 a. m. at 511 Third street southeast, to be followed by solemn high requiem mass at 10 a. m. in Church of Our Lady of Victory. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Sister Assumpta Dies; St. Mary's Academy Official

Sister Assumpta, superior of St. Mary's Academy at Alexandria, Va., and former member of the faculty of Holy Cross Academy in Washington, died yesterday at St. Mary's following a brief illness. She was 62.

Sister Assumpta had been superior and principal of St. Mary's for the last five years. She had earlier taught English at Holy Cross for 14 years.

Born in Baltimore at Mary Lee Dougharty, Sister Assumpta was educated at St. Catherine's Normal School there. She entered the Sisterhood of the Holy Cross and began teaching at St. Mary's Academy in Notre Dame, Ind. She later taught in Chatsworth, Ill.; Peoria, Ill., and Austin, Tex., before coming to Washington.

She was a sister of the late Mgr. George Dougharty, former procurator at Catholic University. Sister Assumpta had taught at several summer sessions of Catholic University.

Surviving are a nephew, Timothy Malone, and a niece, Mrs. John O'Toole, both of Baltimore.

Requiem mass will be celebrated at 9 a. m. tomorrow at Holy Cross Academy, 2935 Upton street northwest. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

The Sudeten Proposals.

If it could be considered merely from the viewpoint of political theory there would be much sympathy in the United States for the detailed plan of governmental reorganization in Czechoslovakia now proposed by the Sudeten German Party.

This is because the program, in summarization, seeks to substitute a federal state for what has heretofore been a strongly unitary government. It is calculated to increase local autonomy and to destroy the top-heavy centralization of governmental powers in Prague. The proposals are the more interesting because they seek to reverse the present general trend, whereby in every country the functions of local self-government are more and more absorbed by a tremendous bureaucracy concentrated in the national capital.

Americans who are familiar with the traditions of their own Nation, and to whom the phrase "State's Rights" still has vital meaning, will therefore be inclined to approve the Sudeten demand that Czechoslovakia should be divided into largely autonomous provinces, each of them exercising an important measure of self-control over police functions, social welfare, education, and essentially local activities. This would follow the general plan laid down in our own Constitution. And it should, theoretically, mean that the minorities problem would be solved by liberating those groups from their present subjection to Czech and Slovak politicians.

The difficulty with this theoretical analysis, however, is the evidence that the party which sponsors the federal proposal is not interested in home rule as an end in itself. Konrad Henlein, the Sudeten leader, is closely associated with the German Nazi Party. And certainly there is nothing in the philosophy of that party, whether in the defense of civil liberties or in the preservation of local autonomy (witness procedure in Austria) which can give comfort to those who believe in the philosophy of federalism. One is therefore driven to the conclusion that the Sudeten demands are designed more to weaken Czechoslovakia as a nation than to further the development of a federal republic on the Swiss pattern.

This is undoubtedly the opinion of President Benes and his advisers. But their attitude in confronting the Sudeten demands is made more difficult because, viewed superficially, they contain so much which is thoroughly democratic and reasonable. Therefore the delay in Prague in making counter proposals, even though that delay, following the heavy autonomy vote in the recent elections, is itself a source of danger to national stability.

Something To Conceal?

The highlight of the TVA invitation to date is Dr. A. E. Morgan's assertion that Francis Biddle, counsel for the Congressional investigating committee, has instructed him not to talk to TVA employes except in his presence. If Mr. Biddle has any valid excuse for such extraordinary instructions, it should be speedily offered. Otherwise, many will conclude with Representative Jenkins that Mr. Biddle would do the committee and the country a favor by resigning.

The TVA's general counsel, James L. Fly, made a bad situation look worse by informing the committee that the board has no objection to Dr. Morgan's talking to employes at any time, provided advance notification is given and the conferences "arranged through the proper administrative officials." The assumption of both Mr. Biddle and Mr. Fly that the employes of the TVA are not free to respond to pertinent questions put to them by the former head of the organization gives rise to strong suspicions that there is something to conceal.

Little imagination is required to envisage the constrained and profitless conversations that would take place between Dr. Morgan and subordinates whom he might interview in accordance with prearranged plans, or under the watchful eye of a third party. Mr. Fly's position in the TVA organization, and his alignment with the Harcourt Morgan-Lilienthal faction, would explain, even if it did not justify, a desire to hamper the movements of the former chairman of the board. But counsel for the investigating committee should scrupulously avoid acting in a manner that suggests sympathy with official efforts to handicap Dr. Morgan's access to pertinent information.

If a complete outsider were to demand access to TVA documents, and permission to interview employes, there would, of course, be good reason for checking his activities. But Dr. Morgan is not an outsider without legitimate claim to seek information. It was understood that he would be given access to documents and full facilities to acquire detailed evidence to buttress his general charges. And if the board's majority feel secure and confident of the wisdom of their own policies they should gladly afford such facilities to the deposed chairman.

National Health Program.

The proposals for a national health program are no surprise for those who have watched development of the social security movement. An interest in health follows naturally on the Government's concern for the well-being of its citizens in their declining years and at times of unemployment. But the general public will be startled by the billions casually mentioned in an interdepartmental report on the matter indorsed by the President.

Indeed, as far as the details are concerned, even the physicians, labor leaders and social workers assembled in a "National Health Conference" to consider the report were caught unawares. It was not published until after their arrival here. The explanation of this curious procedure has not been offered but it gives the opposition an excellent opportunity to raise a cry of "railroading!" This charge can only be effectively dismissed by subjecting the far-reaching proposals to thorough hearings before any move is started to translate them into legislation.

The recommendations have grown out of an extensive survey of the Nation's health, conducted largely through WPA funds, the conclusions of which were published several months ago. In general, they confirmed the findings of an earlier inquiry conducted by the American Foundation which indicated that as much as one-third of the population is receiving inadequate medical service.

The remedy proposed is an $8,500,000,000 program to extend over ten years and to be paid for by Federal, State and local governments. The money, which would be administered by the present Social Security Board, would be devoted to expansion of public health services generally, with special emphasis on improving maternal and child health; the addition of 360,000 hospital beds throughout the country; and care of the "medically indigent."

Some of the proposals, such as that which would designate the hospital clinic rather than the private physician's office as the health center of a community, were first heard six years ago when the Committee on the Costs of Medical Care made its monumental report. In this connection it is interesting to recall that of the 17 physicians who signed the committee's report, all were members of the American Medical Association. Today, spokesmen for the A. M. A. are raising categorical objection to the new program, maintaining that solution of the Nation's economic difficulties will correct medicine's deficiencies more or less automatically.

Proponents of the new Federal plan reply that even if the national productivity were doubled, and all incomes correspondingly increased, medical care would still be inadequate. The excessive costs of private as contrasted with group health service is the explanation given. This reasoning suggests that the current experiments in group health administration might hold the key to the problem. Such a solution would be particularly desirable if it would nullify the danger of mixing politics with medicine, implicit in the subsidy plan.

The interdepartmental committee mentions group health associations as an alternative to governmental subsidies. But, perhaps because of the difficulties encountered by the local G. H. A. in this relatively progressive and wealthy community, the report devotes principal consideration to the Federal subsidy plan. If it had not rashly committed itself to bitter opposition, organized medicine might well prefer to compromise with the group health movement as, from its viewpoint, the lesser of two evils.

Liquor And Accidents.

Repeal Associates, Inc., chose an inauspicious day for release of its recent report tending to show that the importance of alcohol as a cause of traffic accidents is exaggerated. On the same day Dr. Thomas A. Gonzales, chief medical examiner for New York City, revealed that about 40 per cent of the victims of automobile fatalities in that city during 1937 were shown by post-mortems to have been drinking alcoholic beverages.

The investigators who studied "the alcohol factor in automobile accidents" for Repeal Associates are doubtless correct in concluding that drunken driving is a less serious problem now than during the prohibition era. It does not follow, however, that consumption of liquor is today a minor factor in the traffic problem. The anaylsis only emphasizes the ineffectiveness of prohibition and the extent of surreptitious consumption while under legal ban. Because of the tendency to drink while on the road in areas where liquor is forbidden, it is not surprising to learn that the accident rate is higher in various dry States than in neighboring wet ones.

Since repeal is presumably here to stay there seems little point in comparing present accident rates with those of a period when liquor was contraband. The important question is what effect alcohol is now having upon traffic casualties. New York's findings suggest the extreme danger of either driving or walking on public highways while under the influence of alcohol. Of the adult pedestrians killed in New York last year 34 per cent had drunk enough to contain "one plus or more." "One plus" is the first measurement figure in the alcohol test made during autopsies.

Nothing is to be gained by the foes of prohibition in attempting to minimize the grave dangers of immoderate consumption of liquor in this age of mechanized transportation. Repeal will be made more secure by a realistic recognition of this problem and a determination to solve it by commonsense methods.

Hitler's Olive Branch.

The spontaneity of the cordial reception which King George VI and Queen Elizabeth are receiving in France is not surprising. Common aims and interests long ago forced both nations to forget ancient rivalries and to embark on a diplomatic partnership which, despite occasional stresses and strains, has proved very durable. Today every important element, both in Great Britain or France, regards the need of continued and whole-hearted co-operation between these two great democracies as axiomatic.

The state visit to Paris of the British royal pair was designed to signalize the profound community of interest that exists between the two nations. In a sense, therefore, it emphasizes the obvious. Yet such emphasis, coming at this juncture, may have far-reaching results for the stabilization of European peace.

Working in co-operation, Great Britain and France represent a most formidable combination of economic, financial and military power. Together they can serve as a great bulwark of peace against any aggressor, or even against any combination of aggressors. This is a fact which the dictators realize. They have, in the past, successfully made use of divisions between British and French policies to achieve their ends. But such tactics are practical only to the extent that they are tolerated by the Anglo-French entente.

Therefore it is the more significant that Chancellor Hitler should have chosen this moment to extend an olive branch to Great Britain, and through Great Britain to France, in the form of assurances of his desire for a peaceful settlement of the Czechoslovak minorities problem. This demarche comes at a time when Anglo-French friendship is being dramatically displayed to the world while, concurrently, the Czechoslovak problem is moving toward new difficulties.

Between the demands for far-reaching autonomy made by the Sudeten Germans, on the one hand, and the Prague government's unwillingness to do anything that might weaken the state and tend to make it an easy victim of aggression, on the other, there appears to be a wide gulf. Whether that gulf will be successfully bridged depends, in no small degree, on Hitler's policies. An overbearing German attitude on the Czechoslovak issue might at this juncture antagonize the British, who have been working hard for a negotiated settlement on a reasonable basis. Hitler's current gesture of amity to Great Britain may therefore be interpreted as a hint to London and Paris that the present demands of the Sudeten element should not be regarded as final.

Certainly nothing would more suit the Chamberlain government at this time than to find a peaceful and permanent solution of the Czechoslovak problem, and thus the liquidation of an issue second only to the Spanish civil war as a cause of apprehension. And such a development would make it easier to develop a constructive four-power agreement in western Europe to replace the tensions now existing between the Anglo-French and Italo-German combination.

It was not rhetoric but an actual statement of fact which King George VI expressed when, in his reply to President Lebrun's toast, he said that "there is nothing exclusive in the understanding between us; our friendship is directed against no other power." There is a hint to both Hitler and Mussolini of which the former, at least, seems anxious to take heed.

As usual for the season, strange tales are seeping in from Kansas about grasshoppers eating wagon tongues, feathers off chickens, grindstones, etc. The general and erroneous impression of Kansas is that what the cyclones don't blow away in the spring the grasshoppers eat up in the summer.

The Smithsonian Institution says the United States will be covered with glaciers a million years from now. That's an excellent solution to our many problems, but too slow of execution.

"The world will last a trillion years longer," declares an astronomer. Query to said astronomer: What'll you bet?

Yes, and something ought to be done for, about or to the one-third of the people who are ill-natured.

Called To The Colors.

Frank Sullivan in The New Yorker.

One of the most dangerous ideas undermining the foundations of this republic today is the belief that an American woman can deck herself out in the colors of the rainbow with impunity but that an American man who shows any desire to get a little color into his ensemble is lacking in virility.

This is arrant balderdash. A man has just as much feeling for color as a woman and he needs color just as much. Eighty per cent of the men of America should wear green velour hats with jaunty feathers in the band, and would if they dared.

The trouble with this country is too much tweed, and it is not going to run on all six cylinders until American men stop dressing like funeral mutes. No body of men can go about indefinitely in brown worsted and pepper-and-salts without suffering the consequences in a lowering of morale and a gradual depletion of optimism.

The "Stricken Eagle."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After an absence from the city of over seven months, it seems good to return to Washington and The Post. I regard the latter as much of a fixture as the White House itself, and certainly enjoy its many attractive features.

I was interested in your editorial of July 19, the "Stricken Eagle." It seems to me that you give this bird far more praise than it deserves. It is true that the bald eagle is a type of freedom in the air; but it also typifies barefaced robbery and injustice.

A large part of this bird's daily food is supplied by the osprey or fishhawk. A common sight along the coastal waterways of the country, both North and South, is one or more bald eagles swiftly chasing a fleeing osprey that has a fish in its talons, winging its laborious flight to its nest and young.

When the would-be robber reaches the osprey, the latter is compelled to drop its hard-earned food. Almost invariably the eagle, with a lightning dive, captures the falling fish before it reaches the water, and wings its way to an isolated dead tree near by, there to enjoy its stolen repast.

It is not generally known, but the bald eagle is a rank coward, and will ignominiously flee from the attacks of the little kingbird. I doubt if the eagle is becoming extinct. It is one of the last large birds to forsake a country neighborhood. Its only enemy, so far as I know, is man, but as it is one of the hardest of all birds or animals to approach within gunshot, it is seldom killed. I would be willing to bet two to one that a boatman could not ply the Potomac between Washington and Point Lookout without seeing several bald eagles.

Miss Thompson Today.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In his recent interview regarding my daughter, Katheryne, who is in China, your reporter got the names of the towns somewhat mixed up—which is no wonder. But, for the sake of her friends who like to keep track of her movements, I will try to straighten the matter out.

The Southern Presbyterian Church has maintained a mission station at Kiangyin, a city of some 80,000 people about 100 miles northwest of Shanghai, on the Yangtze River. This included a boys' school, a girls' school and a well-equipped hospital. Katheryne taught in the girls' school. Last November, when the Japanese army was close at hand, 4 Americans and about 30 Chinese got into 2 houseboats and went out about 16 miles to a little village, called Tsang Koh Tsen, on one of the many canals in that region. After they had left, and before the Japanese arrived, all their buildings had been looted and all but two of them burned; so they all lost everything but what they had in their handbags.

Since then the Americans had been living in the houseboat, which meant cramped quarters, and the Chinese in the little village, which was overrun with rats and fleas. Also it gets blazing hot there in the summer, so a change was desirable. A few miles away there is the town of Tsiao Tien, with a two-story schoolhouse to which an addition was nearly finished. One of the Chinese in the party is Dr. Dzen, a fine man and a thoroughly competent physician and surgeon. The use of the new part of the school was offered, rent free, if Dr. Dzen would set up a clinic there. This and a school have been established and everybody is busy—at Tsiao Tien, not Kiukiang, which is 150 miles farther up the Yangtze and is the center of the fighting in the effort to capture Hankow.

The Panhandlers Of Washington

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A letter in Thursday's Post on street beggars recalls an incident that took place in front of a restaurant located near a newspaper office. A bleary bum with a good line went up to a man leaving the restaurant, pulled the usual gag: "Say, buddy, I ain't et in three days. Cantcha gimme a lift? I'm hungry as hell."

The man accosted hesitated. "Sure this isn't just another gag? You're really hungry?" The bum put on a most convincing histrionic display. "I'd suggest the lamb stew special they've got carded in the window. Here's 30 cents."

"T'anks, bud, yer a w'ite guy," said the bum, adding the coin to other "touches" made on the same "lay." Leaving his benefactor he entered the food joint with convincing alacrity, asked the cashier for a match, stalled elaborately; then seeing the coast clear, barged outside again to resume his nickel snatching trade. He called it a day when another man, a notch lower in the "underprivileged" scale and a chronic reliefer according to witnesses, arrived with a cargo on the hip.

This drama, "Long live bay rum, whisky and gin," had one result. Its technique was witnessed by the bilked benefactor. He'd been educated and received his diploma. It was the last nickel any moocher would shake him down for. He'd quit shelling out.

That Washington is labeled a "soft touch" for transient panhandlers and local talent who work the stems is no news to persons of self-supporting outlook who have kept one ear wide open to handout pleas. Solicitations have been pressed to the point where many who'd like to aid legitimate cases have declared thumbs down on the whole racket. CURED.

Washington, July 18.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In connection with the recenly published letter of "H. O. W." and the accompanying editorial note in regard to "'Begging in Washington," I fear that there is considerable truth to the allegation that there are a large number of beggars on the streets of Washington.

However, I do not think that anyone can sustain the charge that these are preponderantly "professional," unless by that is meant that they beg for enough to keep them alive.

As your correspondent suspects, there are places in Washington where all of these cases can be refered and where they will be given what they need. All of the missions (many of which are independent of the Community Chest), including our own at 471 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, provide meals, lodging and other necessities for these people. At the Volunteers of America alone last month we served them more than 12,000 meals.

For many years we have supplied our supporters with "Helping Hand" tickes, which they in turn distribute to those asking them for aid. This system, in use not only by individuals, but by business firms and Government offices, insures that the "beggar" will get what he needs and what the donor expects him to have. Without this method there is no insurance that the money given will be used beneficially. Of course, those in need can and do obtain help from our mission even without these tickets, but they are of real assistance to those who want to provide help.

I hope you will find it possible to print this letter as a means of calling attention to the work which is being done for the deserving poor of the city and with a view to preventing the imposition of "fakes" on kind-hearted persons.

The "City Dog."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I take this opportunity to thank the people who have contributed letters to your column recently opposing "the city dog." Aside from their annoying barking at night and the dangerous biting dogs which have made it dangerous in all sections of our city to walk on the streets, the dogs are costing the city thousands of dollars in damage to flowers and shrubs in our parks and on our school lawns as well as damage to the neighbors' property.

Thousands of dollars are spent every year cleaning dog filth and replacing shrubs in our parks that are killed by dogs using them. Thousands of dogs are taken in our parks or on school lawns or private property by owners for just that purpose. I hope in the near future there will be a law requiring people to keep their dogs and cats on their own premises at all times.

I love dogs as well as other animals, but why not turn loose a cow and a horse and any other animal in our city? The destruction could not be greater and the soil would be fertilized instead of poisoned. Away with "the city dog."

I would like to know how many people on relief are keeping dogs and cats. This money could be used for our schools or in our hospitals to relieve suffering. I often wonder why so many people enjoy a smelly, destructive dog or cat to a window box of sweet flowers or clean, beautiful lawns and flowers.

Peace Lobby Letters.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please accept my thanks for the interesting series of letters which you have published from a Mr. Barefoot and his opponents on the subject of peace lobbyists. These have been among the most interesting I have ever read in The Post.

I am prompted to reply to Mr. Feldman's letter in The Post of July 19, wherein he applauds Mr. Barefoot for his "wealth of information, so well handled." I cannot agree with this correspondent, as I have read these letters carefully and as I remember it, the opponents seem to have had the "wealth of information." Mr. Barefoot wrote only a few facts and a great deal of prejudice and emotionalism. His opponents appear to know their subjects and seem to be less influenced by their own feelings.

It is a sad condition in our land, that in spite of our claims of a high level of native intelligence, it is the fellow who calls the worst names and shouts the loudest who is considered the greatest thinker. Mr. Feldman's letter is probably an expression of the feelings of a large percentage of people who don't bother to look behind the tub-thumping and oratory in order to learn the facts on important issues of the day. A. L. JOHNSON.

Freight Differentials.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As the program of the Northern railroads' rebuttal on rate parity unfolds at Buffalo, the South finds it has precipitated upon itself an avalanche of propaganda from what Mr. Roosevelt has been sacrilegiously blasting as "entrenched wealth." Without any skirmishing with small arms, the North led off with their biggest gun—the Governor of the State, whose banks are custodians of nearly all our money, the control of which they consider a sort of congenital prerogative.

They feel like shouting "Hell and Maria, who do those outlanders down there think they are? They've worn this badge of industrial slavery for over half a century and certainly should be used to it by now. Instead they are pleading the statute of limitations on us on preferred freight differential. Besides even at the high rates we make 'em pay, aren't the roads losing money?"

The Post-Impressionist

The Lawn Party.

YOUNG MR. Smith relaxed in a chair he had painted green last summer and rejoiced at the little breeze that came in the screen and quickly crossed the narrow apartment porch. In spite of the breeze Mrs. Smith fanned herself and Aunt Lydie sat silently in the darkness, rocking slightly.

"Well," Aunt Lydie," Mr. Smith said, in the manner of someone who has just remembered he should have remembered before, "we'll miss you tomorrow night. We've enjoyed your visit. What do you think of our fair city?"

I think it's a beautiful city," Aunt Lydie said.

That was all. Suddenly, Mr. Smith knew what Mrs. Smith had known for four and one-half days. Aunt Lydie hadn't had and wasn't having a good time. Mr. Smith was astounded. Aunt Lydie had been to the Smithsonian, where she stood "right smack under the Spirit of St. Louis," to the Library of Congress, and up in the Monument. She had been driven to the Lee Mansion, to Mount Vernon and had declined a trip to the Zoo. She had had dinner on the lawn of a farm house in Maryland and had sat in an air-conditioned theater watching Shirley Temple. And still Aunt Lydie hadn't had a good time. Mr. Smith wanted to say something and there was nothing to say.

Mr. Smith tried to look at Mrs. Smith in the darkness.

"We don't go to that church," he said weakly. "We don't know anyone there."

"You see, Aunt Lydie," Mrs. Smith said, "It's different in the city. You don't know as many people. You have your own friends, but it's different."

Aunt Lydie was silent except for one little noise that was curiously like a sniff. The silence became unbearable. Aunt Lydie had ceased even to rock.

"Would you—would you really like to go to the lawn party?" Mr. Smith heard himself say.

"Why, I'd love to!" Aunt Lydie said as though the suggestion were the biggest surprise she'd ever had. "I think you're both real sweet to ask me."

There were tables under the trees and the Japanese lanterns. People sat at the tables eating quantities of ice cream and slices of cake with thick chocolate or coconut or caramel icing. The ladies of the church, busy, a little officious, ignored the heat as they served. Aunt Lydie marched past a sign that said, "Stop—Look—Eat . . . Curb Service," with Mrs. Smith beside her and Mr. Smith lagging behind. A large lady with a pleasant face came up to Aunt Lydie and said:

"Good evening. You strangers? Come right over here and sit at my table before somebody else grabs you. I'm Mrs. Winterbottom."

"I'm Mrs. Summerville," Aunt Lydie said, "an' this is my nephew, Mr. Smith, an' Mrs. Smith. It just looked so nice down here we had to come."

"Of course," said Mrs. Winterbottom. "Now you sit right here. The peach is fresh fruit and delicious, and there's some of the chocolate cake left I made myself."

"I'll take peach an' chocolate," Aunt Lydie said.

Mrs. Winterbottom brought three paper dishes of peach ice cream and three pieces of chocolate cake. Mr. Smith paid her.

"We've got a band," she said. "Drum and bugle corps. They'll play in a little bit. Our Scout troop. My Homer's in it."

"Now isn't that nice?" Aunt Lydie said.

She was enthralled with the drum and bugle corps. Twenty-four boys dressed in white stood in two rows facing the Scoutmaster and more or less followed his directions. They "played" "The Stars and Stripes Forever," "Anchors Aweigh," and others that Aunt Lydie didn't know the names of. It didn't matter; she tapped her foot on the ground and clapped for encores. Mrs. Winterbottom paused in her serving long enough to bend over and say "That's my Homer, third from this end. Drum."

"He's the image of you," Aunt Lydie said.

The crowd had thinned perceptibly and even the curb service business was falling off when Aunt Lydie and the Smiths left. Aunt Lydie had told the choir director what her favorite hymn was and told the minister that even though she didn't belong to his church she had some mighty good friends who did. In the elevator she told the Smiths what was wrong with the city people.

"City people're no different from any other kind," Aunt Lydie said, "but you can't sit back an' expect everyone to come to you. If you're goin' to have friends you've got to get out an' mix. I've had a lovely time tonight, an' I declare the people of Washington are just as friendly as they are at home. If we hadn't gone to the lawn party I'd never have known that. Now take that Mrs. Winterbottom—she was just as nice as she could be. An' it didn't cost her a thing. Why, I think Washington is a beautiful city." PENDLETON HOGAN.

A Press Investigation?

THE MOST PROVOCATIVE editorial that I have read in a year was the one in which the New York Daily News, a New Deal paper, proposed an investigation of the press. There was one bug in it. That was where Capt. Joe Patterson, the editor and proprietor, proposed that this be President Roosevelt's answer to criticism of himself and to publicity regarding Jimmy's insurance business.

PEGLER.

He said Alva Johnston's article in the Saturday Evening Post entitled "Jimmy's Got It" in effect accused the President and Jimmy of being crooks and grafters—a conclusion with which I disagree, believing that at the very worst they have only been measured alongside the President's own expressed concept of ethical official conduct and that the decision as to whether they do or don't measure up has been left to the people. He puts the tape on other people's ethics, and their morals, too, doesn't he?

An investigation of the press would not be an answer. The investigation would defeat its own purpose if it were offered as an answer, because any publisher or publicist who got his bib caught in the wringer would holler "Persecution!" and "Lese majeste!" and play off the motive against the results.

• • • •

BUT, aside from this stipulation, I agree with the captain's idea and offer as a constructive amendment a suggestion that the investigation by all means include an inquiry into the foreign press of this country, which is a mystery to all of us nonforeigners or monolinguists and might be promoting sedition under foreign subsidy given in the form of money or official honors from European dictators.

These papers circulate in little clots of foreign-minded Americans, hyphen-Americans and anti-Americans, and it would be consistent with the investigation to see from their files what they have been saying about the country which is their host. Also, let's investigate our religious press. Let's make it a party.

Offhand I can't think of enough high-minded statesmen in both houses of Congress to make a quorum for such an investigating body, but we would have to stand for whatever we got in the way of personnel, even though it included Minton, of Indiana. Otherwise we would seem to be saying that an invstigation would be all right, but that our business is so noble and sensitive that men don't exist who are fit to ask us questions, and that, therefore, to our great regret, we would have to forego the pleasure of vindicating our honor.

• • • •

I WISH I knew the precise location of the go-to-hell point in such investigations at which a witness is justified in telling a Senator to go and kiss a pig, because some of these investigators, when they start taking a victim to town, do take fiendish joy in chasing him up Main street with his pants on his arm. But old Doc Townsend told them to go to hell, and, although they gave him 30 days in the flea bag, public opinion was such that the statesmen finally flinched and the doctor was pardoned.

I disagree with Capt. Patterson where he states a belief that the great majority of anti-New Deal newspapers and magazines are trying to build up a fanatical hatred of the President. That of itself is an incitation to the class hatred and the disastrous consequences which the Daily News foresees unless the boil be lanced by a press investigation.

The only square way to reply to the anti-New Deal editorial matter is to refute each criticism, remembering always that there is not and shouldn't be any law or other obligation requiring a publisher or editorial commentator to approve all or any part of the New Deal or to refrain from criticizing all or any part of it.

Walter Lippmann

Observer Believes Britain And France Now Secure From Sudden Knock-Out Blow; German "Revolution" Analyzed.

Paris.

THE KING AND QUEEN are in Paris and perhaps it may sound like conventional rhetoric to say that their visit is the outward sign that there has come into being a Franco-British alliance for the maintenance of European peace. But, Europe being what it is today, this is not conventional rhetoric. To a degree which one can hardly imagine unless one has known it at first hand, the peoples of all of Europe are conscious that they are threatened by a war more devilishly destructive than any which mankind has yet had to endure. No one doubts it. There is no sane man on this continent, certainly no informed and responsible man, who does not realize that all over Europe the guns are loaded and the triggers cocked; and that even if every government desires peace, there is no certainty than an assassination or a brawl engineered by a conspiracy of reckless men will not touch off an explosion.

LIPPMANN.

I know that this sounds alarmist. But the danger is real. It is not imaginary. The nervous tension is so great that the only way to maintain a cool and collected opinion among the peoples is to keep them convinced that their governments do not underestimate the danger and are not failing to prepare against it.

Rearmament Declared First Preparatory Move.

THE PRIMARY phase of the preparation is what is known as "rearmament." The purpose of rearmament is to make it impossible for Germany or Italy to deliver a knockout blow by a sudden attack on England or on France. It has been the fear of such a knockout blow which has paralyzed British and French diplomacy since they retreated before Mussolini in the Ethiopian affair. Until they felt certain that they could not be defeated suddenly and before they had time to mobilize their much greater resources, the British and the French have not been able to resist aggression or even to deal with Berlin and Rome on terms of equality.

Though there is still a great dread of what the bombardment of London and Paris might mean, rearmament has reached a point where it is no longer necessary to retreat on all fronts. The period of Franco-British impotence under the menace of a knockout blow came to an end in April of this year, and the end was marked by the creation of what is in everything but the name an alliance. This alliance was tested in the Czechoslovak crisis of May 21 and survived its first severe practical test. It has been tested again in the Spanish affair, where thus far it has proved to be impossible for Mussolini to persuade Britain to put the Anglo-Italian agreement into operation while he refuses to negotiate a similar agreement with France.

Armed Union Believed Only Peace Guarantee.

THE QUESTION then is whether this alliance, assuming as one must that it will endure, is in truth an instrument of peace or whether it is a coalition that aligns Europe into two camps, and leads certainly to war. All that anyone can say in answer to that question is that the soberest and most sincerely pacific men in Europe believe that there is now no other way to prevent war except by such an armed union.

Why do they think that? Or to put it in another way, what do they hope for as a result of this armed resistance? It is often said that Hitler will not start a war if he is certain that Britain, France and Russia will be against him. Most men take this view. But what then? Is this the best that Europe can look forward to, that there should be an angry stalemate of armed powers? A stalemate would, of course, be better than a war. But it is a poor prospect indeed.

There are men, very responsible men, who allow themselves to hope that something better might come out of a stalemate. They reason in this way: They say that Germany is undergoing a revolution which is as deep, as dynamic, as thorough as the French revolution of 1789 or the Russian revolution of 1917. We are in the presence, they say, of the German revolution. They then say that great revolutions in spite of all their superficial differences follow the same underlying pattern.

The revolutionists, having seized power, find it impossible to realize quickly the promises of the revolution, and confronted with the disillusionment at home which would shake their power, they enter upon a career of foreign conquest. The French revolution produced Napoleon who was not stopped till Waterloo. The Russian revolution started to conquer Europe and was stopped at the gates of Warsaw. The German revolution already has spilled over the German frontier into Austria, and it is in full intervention in every country of central Europe.

Failure of Conquests Abroad Indicates Crisis.

ACCORDING TO this view a great revolution reaches its crisis only when its leaders can no longer make conquests abroad. The Russian revolution, they say, reached this point between 1926 and 1932; the climax was marked by the triumph of Stalin over Trotsky and it has been followed by the ruthless extermination of the Russian revolutionary leaders. This dreadful, bloody business was, they say, the end of the Russian revolution, and the means by which Russia ceased to be a center of aggression and began to face the task of adapting itself to the outer world.

They argue that the German revolution can end only when the rulers of Germany find, as did the Bolsheviks before them, that the internal problem cannot be solved or masked by foreign aggression. At that point the Germans will have to get rid of their Trotskys in order to be able to find a solution of their internal problem by a more moderate policy at home and by negotiation with the rest of the world. For with the German revolution in its present phase it is as impossible for the rest of the world to negotiate a real settlement as it was with the Russian revolution when the Third Internationale was in the ascendant. It is only by bringing the revolution to an end that true negotiation can begin.

That is the theory for what it is worth. It is not, I can certify, the idle speculation of irresponsible theorists.

Abandon Okla. Recount.

Oklahoma City, July 20 (AP).—Leon C. Phillips became the undisputed Democratic nominee for Governor today when W. S. Key, runner-up in the July 12 primary, abandoned further attempts to obtain a recount of votes. Phillips led Key by 3,105 votes in the official count.

At It Again

By Barnet Nover

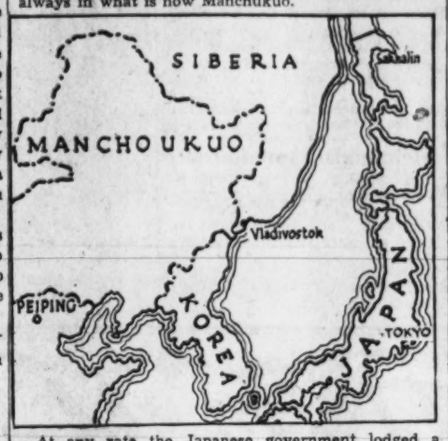
The New Russo-Japanese Crisis.

ON FRIDAY, July 15, according to reports given great prominence in the Japanese press, Soviet troops at an abscure place called Changkufeng fired on a Japanese frontier guard of four men, killing one.

Changkufeng is on the border dividing Manchukuo, Japan's puppet state, from Siberia. Like so many other places on the border its ownership is disputed. The Russians claim it as theirs. The Japanese say that old maps show conclusively that the area was always in what is now Manchukuo.



At any rate the Japanese government lodged a double protest with Moscow—against the attack on men wearing the uniform of the Mikado and against the invasion of the soil of Japan's ally.

All this follows a very familiar pattern. Equally familiar was the more or less inevitable sequel. Russia rejected Japan's protest. The Japanese press, with what validity it is impossible to say at this distance, began to print alarmist reports of Soviet incursions into other parts of Manchukuo. A second formal protest by Japan was filed with the Russian foreign office and handbills distributed in Tokyo demanded war on the Soviet Union.

IF THE COURSE of past Russo-Japanese crises serves as any guide, the present flare-up should sooner or later subside and relations between the two countries return to their normal state of armed uneasiness.

Certainly neither Russia nor Japan would seem to have any reason for going to war with the other at the present time. With the Czechoslovak problem still unsettled and the European situation dangerous, any large-scale imbroglio in the Far East would clearly not serve any useful Soviet purpose. On the other hand, Japan is having her hands full taking care of the Chinese, who after 12 months continue to fight on.

How awkward is Japan's position was revealed in the note recently sent by Foreign Minister Ugaki to Secretary Hull in answer to the demand made by the United States that Japan permit Americans to return to posts in towns and cities in the lower Yangtze Valley from which they had been excluded by Japanese troops.

"THERE ARE at present," says Gen. Ugaki, "hidden at many places, remnants of defeated soldiers who are continually appearing and departing, and it cannot be predicted when incidents will occur. In view of these actual conditions, the police of the Japanese consulates alone are not sufficient for the protection of nationals of third countries, and it would become necessary to withdraw for this purpose detachments from military units assigned in participation in the military operations, which would be a severe burden on the Japanese forces."

In other words, because of Chinese guerrilla activities, Japan does not have sufficient troops to give adequate protection to life and property in the area she has nominally conquered and continue the war, too. Indeed, Gen. Ugaki insists that even in Nanking, where there is a very substantial Japanese garrison, the 800 Japanese residents "have met with misfortunes, violence, robbery, etc., at the hands of lawless Chinese."

THIS IS a real confession of weakness, and it is also no secret that the expense of carrying on a prolonged war has begun to drain Japan of her financial reserves.

The Japanese know all this and they know that the Russians know it. What would be more natural, therefore, as they see it, than for Russia to use the present opportunity to settle accounts with the island empire at least along the Manchukuo-Siberian border.

It was the fear of just such a development which led Japan to keep in Manchukuo some 300,000 to 400,000 of its best troops even though these troops were badly needed in the fighting south of the Great Wall.

Japan's alarms, however, are probably exaggerated insofar as they suggest a frontal attack by Russia on Manchukuo. A much more effective blow to Japan could be dealt by an expansion of the aid given by Moscow to China.

But the very intensity with which the Japanese press has blown up the alleged Russian threat suggests that there is more to it than meets the eye.

AFTER TWELVE months of inconclusive war and mounting burdens, it would be surprising if the Japanese people had not begun to tire of their load and wonder where the undeclared war was leading them. In playing up real or alleged movements of Russian troops along the Manchukuoan border, in suggesting that these movements are preliminary to a large-scale invasion of "Japan's life-line," a fillip may be given to Japan's war spirit.

And there is also the possibility, remote and fantastic though it seems, that as a last act of desperation, the Japanese war lords may decide on a thrust into Siberia. It is no better than a 100-to-1 chance. But the odds might diminish considerably if the European situation became worse.

And there is the third possibility that Japan is simply playing Germany's game by creating the impression that now and for some time to come Russia will be too preoccupied with Far Eastern developments to have much energy left for European problems; hence that Russia must now be left out of the calculations of her allies, France and Czechoslovakia. In other words, Japan may now be paying the price for the withdrawal from China at Hitler's behest of the German officers who had been helping Chiang Kai-shek.

Not even one continent is big enough to serve as a chessboard for present-day diplomacy.

Treating Alcoholism

By Genevieve Parkhurst.

Holland's Example.

IN MOST public hospitals, the inebriate is held until he has sobered up and then allowed to go his way without any attempt having been made to help him.

Such neglect is a social waste and an economic blunder. Many of our young liquor addicts are intelligent and gifted. Because of their deterioration, their talents come to nothing. At the other extreme are the strays, of the earth, the inebriate poor, who keep on breeding their kind, swelling the list of the ineffective and adding to the burden of private and public charity.

• • • •

THAT THIS can be mitigated is seen in what is being done in other countries. Some years ago in Holland, a commission of medical experts and social scientists was appointed to make a study of alcoholism. As a result, a complete program of control was inaugurated.

Alcoholic wards with specialists in attendance were installed in public hospitals. Free clinics where the intemperate are given treatment have been established in cities and key villages. Intoxication is now a dwindling problem in Holland.

For 50 years, we have bungled the alcohol problem in America. Once again the reformers are stirring. From the platform and the pulpit and in the press, they are stating the case for prohibition. Might it not be wise, for a change, to bring a little honest knowledge and common sense to bear upon the situation by letting the scientists have their chance to work it out for us?

(Harper's Magazine.)

Mark Sullivan

Commentator Says Primary Contests Mark Beginning Of Struggle For Party Control Which Will Culminate In '40.

WHAT IS UNDER WAY is a struggle for control of the Democratic Party. It is under way not only in the conspicuous senatorial contests that figure in the newspapers, but also, very bitterly, in many contests throughout the country for Representatives in the House.

SULLIVAN

To call it a conflict between New Deal Democrats and anti-New Deal Democrats would be inaccurate. We need to have terms more exact. Offhand, I cannot think of any Democrat contesting in this year's primaries for a congressional or senatorial nomination who call himself "anti-New Deal." If that term is used about any Democrat, it is his opponents in the party—the New Dealers—who use it and use it as a term of reproach.

Hardly any Democrat anywhere, who is a candidate in Democratic primaries, voluntarily uses that term about himself. Even Senator Van Nuys, of Indiana, the most conspicuous of those who were to have been denied renomination, does not describe himself as "anti-New Deal." On the contrary his friends, when they insisted he should have his renomination, said that he was "95 per cent New Deal." The Republicans in Indiana who were unwilling to help return him to the Senate gave as their reason that in the Senate he had voted for practically all the New Deal measures except the President's court reform measure and the President's measure for reorganization of the executive branch of the Government.

Similarly, Senator Gillette, of Iowa, even when an open attempt to prevent his renomination was made by some of President Roosevelt's closest subordinates, declined to let himself be put in the position of being "New Deal" or "anti-Roosevelt." Senator George, of Georgia, though apparently the New Deal intends to try to prevent his renomination, nevertheless is careful to avoid any word or action that would label him as "anti-New Deal" or anti-Rooosevelt."

"Non-New Deal" Urged As Fitting Description.

NO, THE TERMS are not "New Deal" versus "anti-New Deal." Possibly "non-New Deal" might fit the dissenting side. Yet it is doubtful if many Democratic candidates for nomination would care to take on themselves even so mild a term as "non-New Deal." Possibly the accurate distinction is between "100 per cent New Dealers" and those who, like Senator Van Nuys, are described as having been, on their voting record, "95 per cent New Dealers." Yet in truth the two measures which Senator Van Nuys opposed, the court reform measure and the executive reorganization measure, are much more than 5 per cent of the New Deal.

But refinements of terminology won't get us anywhere. The unwillingness of some Democrats to be labeled "anti-New Deal" is beside the point. It is beside the point because the New Deal, as distinguished from Mr. Roosevelt, is not the real issue.

What is really at issue in the struggle is the future control of the Democratic Party. The real issue is Mr. Roosevelt—not Mr. Roosevelt as President, and not the Mr. President of the present, but the Mr. Roosevelt of the future, the Mr. Roosevelt of 1940 and after. None of those in the conflict wants to admit this. Mr. Roosevelt himself does not want to say or imply either that he wishes to be a candidate himself again or that he wishes to name the candidate. Those who want to take control of the party away from him in 1940 do not want to say this at a time when Mr. Roosevelt is still President and still popular.

Nevertheless, that is the issue and that is the struggle. On that issue many a Democrat running for renomination and re-election who today is careful to appear as a "100 per cent for Roosevelt" will in 1940 be opposed either to renominating Mr. Roosevelt or to letting Mr. Roosevelt name the Presidential candidate.

Phases Of Struggle Predicted By Observer.

THIS 1940 issue will pass through several phases. Until the close of the primaries, the latter part of September, the struggle will remain in its present phase. Thereafter, approaching the general election in November, there will be a new phase. During October, when the picture before the country is Democratic, candidates running against Republican candidates, the Democrats will come together more closely than they are in fidelity to Mr. Roosevelt, glorification of him and of his Presidency.

After the election will ensue yet another phase. Congress will meet early in January. It will be a Democratic Congress. Hardly by any possibility can the Republicans get a majority in the House, and as for the Senate, it is literally impossible for the Republicans to have a majority, or even make material gains.

The Democrats in the new Congress will be less deferential to President Roosevelt than in the recent one. When many Democrats in Congress last May reversed themselves and enacted a wage-and-hour measure which in December they had rejected in a different form, they did so mainly because they were within a few weeks of their primary campaigns for renomination, and they did not wish to incur the President's disapproval. The Congress that meets in January will at that time be some 18 months' distant from their campaigns for renomination in 1940. Many of them, who, in supporting Mr. Roosevelt and his measures recently, felt that they did so under duress, will in January feel free to give expression to their resentment. Hardly by any possibility will the Congress that meets in January be as deferential to the President as the one that ended last month.

Final Phase Foreseen In Presidential Primaries.

THE FINAL PHASE of the struggle for control of the party will occur in 1940. Early that year, before about the first of March, as the Presidential primaries approach, Mr. Roosevelt will be obliged to say, by action or by inaction, whether he is a candidate to succeed himself. And if he has some favorite person whom he wishes to succeed him, he will be obliged to show his hand about that also. If he tries to dominate the Democratic National Convention in June, 1940, either for himself or for another—then will occur the titanic climax of the struggle for control of the party.

Jerry O'Connell, O'Connor Win in Montana Primary

Helena, Mont., July 20 (AP).—Montana Democrats renominated the State's two "freshmen" Congressmen for second terms, unofficial and incomplete returns from yesterday's primaries indicated today.

Representative Jerry J. O'Connell, who told voters President Roosevelt instructed him to "'defeat Senator Wheeler's machine, so he wouldn't be back in 1940," was conceded renomination in the First District by his leading rival, Payne Tempelton, Helena school superintendent.

James F. O'Connor, of Livingston, incumbent, in 561 of 800 precincts, led his only rival, H. D. Rolph, of Joplin, Farmers Union leader, 29,919 to 12,415, in the Second District.

The unofficial Republican vote 597 precincts in the Second District gave W. C. Husband, Harlowton, 10,755; T. S. Stockdal, Billings, 8,978; H. O. Willard, Lewiston, 4,050.

FBI Police School Class Fetes G-Men

The class will be graduated Saturday.

The Federal Diary

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

Agent 2-R communicates: Contract examining section, audit division, GAO, loses approximately 25 trained file clerks for the next two weeks, because Coast Artillery National Guards are at training at Fort Monroe, Va. There was much gnashing of teeth and strained feelings, the number being considered too large to lose from one section and there being danger of disrupting the section during the two weeks' period. But the law is such! If every able-bodied man in every Federal Department joined up and marched off for two weeks' summer training, no one could say a word. The law:

"All officers and employes of the United States and of the District of Columbia who shall be members of the National Guard shall be entitled to leave of absence from their respective duties, without loss of pay, time, or efficiency rating on all days during which they shall be engaged in field or coast defense training ordered or authorized under the provisions of this title."

Under the head of inequities in the Neely bill let us turn our attention for a moment to the provisions of section 7. Briefly this provides that employes may, under certain restricted conditions, purchase additional annuities. A casual reading of the text of this section reveals no discrimination as between employes or groups of employes. However, when we apply the acid test we find such legislation will inevitably work to the advantage of certain high-salaried employes. Low-salaried employes will not be able to take advantage of the option provided in said section 7 for the simple reason that they cannot afford, out of their meager salaries, to purchase additional annuities. This will be particularly true if the rate of contribution is increased to 4 per cent.

Reliable information at hand is that this particular section of the Neely bill was sponsored by a few high-salaried employes who hoped to profit thereby, and that it was written into the bill as a trading proposition; in other words, certain groups who wanted the lowered optional retirement ages were willing to barter with the high-salaried employes in order to gain their support of the bill as a whole. Such are the ethics which, of recent years, seem to govern some individuals in sponsoring retirement legislation.

The point at issue is that any retirement legislation which provides benefits for one class of employes and which can not be enjoyed by all others is not equitable (Q. E. D.). To sum up, the provisions of section 7 are new and extraneous to our retirement system, and any such plan should be promptly thrown on the scrap heap.

There is a joker hidden in section 2 of the Neely bill. Those familiar with the history of retirement legislation will recall that certain groups of employes were always clamoring vociferously for the privilege of retiring at comparatively early ages. Since they have that privilege, they don't want it, and so we now find them supporting legislation which will provide for continuance in the service beyond retirement age. It is both anomalous and ludicrous. To provide for continuance under conditions defined in said section 2 is retrogression; it is going back to the "horse-and-buggy days" of retirement. While there seems to be ample justification for amending the present law in this respect, yet a more workable plan can and should be devised.

There were some good things in the Neely bill, but since it failed of passage, and justly so, there can be no profit in discussing it further. What should now be done is to take the Ramspeck bill, H. R. 8065, as a basis and write a liberalized bill based on equity for the Government and the employes alike, and strip it of extraneous provisions designed to give special benefits to a privileged class. In working up such a bill, it would be well to thrust the judgment of callow minds in the background, and to rely more on those who have had actual experience in formulating and administering our retirement laws.

N.Y. Legislator, Indicted for Fraud, Kills Self

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 20.—Julius S. Berg, Democratic State Senator from the Bronx for the last eight years, killed himself with a revolver today, less than 24 hours after the New York County grand jury secretly indicted him on charges of obtaining money by trickery and misrepresentation.

Berg shot himself in his Broadway law office after a 12-hour discussion and argument with his wife, Rose, who apparently had feared he was bent on suicide and had tried to dissuade him.

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's office had been investigating Berg for some time, and after his case had been presented to the grand jury last Wednesday, Berg was notified he could appear and explain the charges. When he had not appeared yesterday the indictment was voted.

Berg, the district attorney's office said, was accused of accepting large sums of money, in one instance $5,000, on his promise to get concessions at next year's World's Fair, and on his promise to help procure liquor licenses from the State Alcohol Beverage Control Board.

Boys Club Camp To Be Dedicated

The Metropolitan Police Boys Club Camp at Scotland, Md., named after Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown, will be dedicated at 2:30 p. m. Sunday, James E. Colliflower, president of the club, announced yesterday.

Over 100 guests are expected to witness the ceremonies. Morris Cafritz, vice president in charge of buildings and sites, will present a paid-up deed to the camp to Maj. Brown, founder and vice president of the club. John A. Remon, chairman of the board of managers, will speak and musical selections will be given by the Boys Club Band.

Rotary Amends Laws To Increase Charities

By-laws of the Rotary Foundation were amended after a luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club at the Willard Hotel yesterday, so that the charitable activities of the organization might be increased.

What form the enlarged activities will take will be decided at a gathering to be held about a week hence. At present the operation of the Rotary bus, which serves charity organizations, is the principal activity of the foundation.

Odets, Miss Rainer Set Record, Part, And Not Amicably

New York, July 20 (AP).—Something new in broken Hollywood romances was expressed by Clifford Odets, playwright, when he returned from London today aboard the French liner Champlain. He said his estrangement from Luise Rainer could not be described as amicable.

He did not say they parted "the best of friends."

To Miss Rainer's charge that he had a violent temper Odets replied, "In the relationship with women all men have a violent temper."

American men, he added, make the mistake of being too romantic. He said he prefers the point of view of Frenchmen and Englishmen who marry "for convenience."

Indian Fetish Back To North Dakota And Lo! It Rains

Science yesterday admitted that since the Sacred Bundle was returned to North Dakota by Foolish Bear and Drags Wolf—who recaptured the talisman from the Heye Foundation Museum in New York, where it had reposed for 30 years—the rainfall has been 3 per cent above normal. A year ago it was only one-third of normal. The Gros Ventre Tribe had figured it would be that way.

The Sacred Bundle, containing the skull of two thunderbird deities, was secured for $50 from the tribe in 1907 by G. F. Wilson, a Presbyterian missionary. He let the museum have it for $175. The average rainfall dropped one-fourth immediately thereafter.

Long negotiations between the Office of Indian Affairs and the museum resulted in the return of the bundle early this year. Foolish Bear and Drags Wolf were the emmissaries to New York. Now the tribe will hold a Thanksgiving celebration for all who helped in the enterprise.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

PRESIDENT'S BODYGUARD.
Coronado, Calif., July 20, 1938.

To illustrate the delicate, instantaneous decisions that must be made by the gentlemen of the Secret Service, I cite two incidents.

Russ Wood . . . in command.

At one railroad depot a slightly boisterous man in the crowd interrupted President Roosevelt's speech in the middle of a sentence.

"Pour it on 'em Frank," he yelled.

• • • •

The Secret Service men looked him over sharply. Should he be thrown out? Should he be cautioned?

They decided that his heart was in the right place, that his intentions were honorable, and left him unmolested, to become a local hero for a moment.

• • • •

Later in the trip another enthusiast, full of California vino, also vented his ardor for Mr. Roosevelt:

"Viva America," he shouted.

This cry fell upon the ears with an alien sound. Anyhow, he looked like a foreigner. The Secret Service fell upon him en masse, supported by local police, and gave him the bum's rush.

"—iron hand in a velvet glove"

With unerring judgment, small boys and beautiful (grown-up) girls spot the Secret Service men as the glamour boys of a Presidential caravan, which includes famous correspondents, breath-taking Senators and silver-tongued Representatives, intimates of the President himself. Everywhere the married SS men sternly ignore the bigeyed worshipful beauties; the bachelor SS men condescendingly bring an hour of glamour into the lives of a few local belles.

• • • •

Obviously they are a hand-picked lot; muscular, athletic, quick-witted, keen-eyed, diplomatic, unobtrusive as possible . . . Often they accomplish with a gesture what lesser men might do with a six-shooter. They carry guns, but never use them. In a pinch, they can say it with a punch in the nose or a flying tackle. Some of them were football stars. All are urbane men of the world.

• • • •

They wield more unquestioned power than any police officials in the land. At the President walked up the gangplank of the cruiser Houston just before he sailed, Secret Service Man Tom Qualters, of Notre Dame fame, out of the corner of one eye spotted a photographer perched high on the airplane deck, snapping pictures he shouldn't. Tom put the finger on him. Handsome, sardonic Mike Reilley, another of the bodyguard, corralled the cameraman and very quietly, expertly and swiftly removed the films from the camera and tore them up, in such an offhand manner that few people noticed it.

"—but very kind to children"

At the end of the transcontinental trek just ended, at San Diego, the Zangarra-Cermak assassination at Miami was in every mind. Col. Starling, head of the White House detail, traveling ahead of the train, had stationed a soldier on every hilltop, against the skyline, flanking the narrow valley north of San Diego. At the harbor he seemed more harassed than usual.

• • • •

But the precautions were just the usual precautions, no more intensive than those taken for Herbert Hoover, for example, on his 1936 campaign trip . . . Russ Wood, in command of the dozen on the train, massed his men closely around the President.

In a pinch, any of them would eat a little lead . . . Men who reached into a pocket for a cigarette were instantly spotted. Fidgeters were quieted with a gesture.

• • • •

One man who reached for a handkerchief was frisked before he could get his hand out of his pocket . . . In some places—like chilly Treasure Island in San Francisco Bay—topcoats were taboo near the President . . . Some front-row spectators were ordered to button their coats tight, so bulges would show . . The crowd was divided into sectors, with a Secret Service man watching each, and not the President . . .

• • • •

Zazu Pitts Loses Plea In Income Tax Case

Zazu Pitts, movie actress, lost an appeal yesterday from an income-tax deficiency assessment of $15,395 for 1932 and 1933.

The Board of Tax Appeals held that her earnings from January 14, 1932, when she instituted a divorce action, to May 2, 1933, when a decree was granted, were taxable separately and could not be reported as part of the income of husband and wife.

This is the second of a series of articles to aid Washington's underprivileged children. The third will appear tomorrow.

Five Washington children will soon trade crowded flats and hot streets for more enjoyable surroundings.

Speedy response to The Post's camp fund appeal brought them the promise of a two-week vacation which none of the five could otherwise afford.

A total of $68.83 was contributed to the fund yesterday. Allocated by the Council of Social Agencies among the first five of the 100 underprivileged youngsters who need the experience most, the money will provide each with 14 body-building days of fresh air and good food in one of the ten camps maintained by the council's agencies.

Until yesterday, the five boys and girls had little hope. They lacked money to pay tuition at a camp. A social agency had recommended them to the council's Camp Scholarship committee. But already the committee's $1,000 scholarship fund had been exhausted. The committee sought help from the Family Service Association, whose two camps, Goodwill and Pleasant, are open to white and colored children without cost.

The Family Service Association was forced to turn down the boys and girls. Some were ineligible for Camp Goodwill and Camp Pleasant because the age limit there is 12 years. Besides, the quota for the two camps already was filled.

Looked Like Another Summer.

So it looked as though it would be just another summer—until yesterday.

Today The Post presents the stories of ten more children. All were selected by the scholarship committee of the Council of Social Agencies.

Dick, who is 11, had looked forward for months to a summer at Camp Merrick Boys' Camp, Maryland Point, operated by the Christ Child Society. Dick is diabetic and cannot join the playground sports which Washington offers. But he loves the outdoor life of camp. Last month his father lost his WPA job and had to tell Dick the long-anticipated vacation was no longer possible.

Bernard and Frank, 12-year-old cousins, are crowded into a four-room home occupied by eight persons. Bernard's widowed mother supports him, his sister and two brothers with the $11 weekly she receives from the WPA sewing project. Frank's mother, whose husband deserted her when she became incurably ill, receives $15 a month from the Board of Public Welfare for his support. Her six other children are scattered in foster homes. Both Frank and Bernard are at an age when they are sensitive to the constant strain of illness and financial worry.

Works 2 Days a Week.

Thirteen-year-old Howard's father also deserted his mother. She now works two days a week and earns $2 a day. The $4 she receives must feed and clothe herself, her son and two daughters. The family's relief money barely covers the $13 they pay monthly for a small, ill-lighted apartment.

Mike, aged 10, is underweight, undernourished, and not always clean. But it's not his mother's fault. She has four younger children to look after and expects another next month. The grocery store which she and her husband own pays them little, what with the recession and competition from more up-to-date establishments. Two weeks at camp would take Mike off the street and teach him cleanliness, self-reliance and good habits.

Business isn't very good for Ellen's father, either. He is a cement worker by trade, and can make $6 a day—when work is to be had. His small and irregular income must provide for his wife, 11-year-old Ellen, another daughter and four sons. He would like to see Ellen put on some weight this summer and believes camp would do the trick.

The Smiths are a depression family. Hard times caused them to lose the home which had been in the family for more than a century. Illustrious ancestors, including a Vice President of the United States and a signer of the Declaration of Independence, have not kept 11-year-old Don Smith out of mischief. A nervous mother, worried about Don and discouraged by the dark financial outlook, makes life difficult for 13-year-old Tom. Two weeks away from home would give both the boys and the mother the change and rest all three need.

A small home crowded with relatives is preventing Dorothy, 12, from growing up. She lives with her father, who is a WPA worker, an 87-year-old grandmother, two aunts, an unemployed cousin, three sisters and a brother. Six rooms aren't enough for nine people, and a WPA salary doesn't go far toward feeding them. Dorothy needs a chance to gain weight.

Paul, 15, spends more time mowing lawns and doing other odd jobs than he does at play. An orphan, he has been adopted by an elderly woman who spends all she can spare from a small income on his health and happiness. Paul tries to show his gratitude by earning money for her. Two weeks at camp would relieve his guardian of her feeling of responsibility and teach Paul what it means to play.

Capt. Hedekin was a native of Arizona, the son of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Charles A. Hedekin, of Washington, D. C. He was graduated from West Point in 1927 with the rank of second lieutenant and was promoted to captain in 1937. He had been stationed at Fort McPherson four years.

Driver Held In Death of Child Here

Joseph Lee Davis, 3, of 122 E street southeast, son of Thomas Davis, employed by WPA, was fatally injured late yesterday when he was struck by an automobile in front of his home.

The driver, Newitt Van Hook, 44, colored, of the 200 block of Morgan street northwest, was held for reckless driving. Joseph died a few hours after he was taken to Providence Hospital.

Young Davis' death brought the toll for the year to 46 against 60 at this time in 1937.

The day's second traffic death was that in Casualty Hospital of Anna May Crawford, colored, 28, of 1501 First street northwest, who was injured in a crash Sunday at Muikirk, Md

Word was received here last night that Dr. Dennis Skidmore, chief of the Animal Industry Division laboratory, Department of Agriculture, and Mrs. Skidmore were injured in an automobile accident near Glens Falls, N. Y.

Lucille Fischer, 25, of 3397 Thirteenth street northwest, suffered several fractured ribs and possible internal injuries when the automobile in which she was a passenger hit a tree at Klingle road and Beach drive in Rock Creek Park.

JOSEPH LEE DAVIS.

She was taken to Garfield Hospital. George S. Sharp, 39, of 3500 Fourteenth street northwest, driver, was treated at Garfield

Martha Thorpe, of the Northumberland Apartments, passenger in a car driven by Louis J. Meilleur, 43, of 1335 Saratoga avenue northeast, suffered a fractured leg and cuts in a collision late last night at Eighteenth and G streets

Driver of the other car was Joseph Mattera, 26, of 4913 Conduit road northwest. Dot White, 25, of 3529 O street northwest, passenger in his car, was slightly injured.

Ripe watermelons—2,000 of them—came to the Capital by boat yesterday from Morehead City, N. C. They were the season's first Carolina melons by boat and were brought in on schedule again for the seventh year by Skipper Harry Self, who waves a greeting from the cabin.

A group of children of southwest Washington sat on the wharf at Eleventh street early yesterday morning. It was July 20, they remembered and something awfully important happened on this day, as in years passed.

They weren't impatient. Not much. It was 9 a. m.

"It should be here by this time," a little fellow said.

"Yes, it should," his friend agreed.

"Do you suppose he won't come this year?"

They were worried. But not for long. For up the river came the jaunty little Elva C, manned by Skipper Harry Self.

Watermelon.

Two thousand of them. All sizes, all shapes, and green outside and red inside.

No sooner was the little engine-driven boat tied securely to the dock, when Self yelled to the kids:

"Here she comes."

And the biggest, juciest watermelon you ever saw, found itself being torn bits by bits by the eager children, who happily exclaimed:

"We knew you wouldn't fail us, Skipper."

Harry Self, of Rappahannock, Va., fisherman in spring, oyster dealer in winter and watermelon dealer pro tem, had come to town.

Self started hauling North Carolina melons to this city seven years ago. You can check the records, he said, he always brings them in on July 20.

This haul came from Morehead City, N. C., he said.

Self expects to sell them all by Sunday. Then he leaves for North Carolina again. This time to a little place called Coinjack, where the melon grows the size of a yearling pig, he said.

3 Suites in Doctors' Hospital To Have Dust, Germfree Air

The obstetrical, operating and nursery suites of the proposed Doctors' Hospital, construction of which will begin this fall, will be equipped with the "precipitron," latest innovation in the air-rectification field, which filters the air of dust particles, foreign matter and bacteria.

Officials of the hospital said yesterday the new invention is now being used successfully at the University of Pittsburgh Hospital.

By making the air consumed in the hospital as near "sterilized" as possible, the recovery of patients would be hastened, they said.

The hospital suites which will be benefited by the precipitron comprise three floors, which will have no windows, but glass block panels providing adequate sunlight and preventing dust and germ-laden outside air from entering the operating sections.

The air from outside will be drawn through the machine and impurities will be eliminated by electrically charging all solid particles and pulling them out as they pass through an electrostatic field, in a manner similar to that by which a magnet attracts iron filings.

Plans for the hospital call for the erection of a parking building across the street in the 1800 block of I street northwest, next month. The hospital, which will cost $1,500,000, will be completed within ten months.

Veterans Ask New Rule on Health Tests

Move Follows Charges Civil Service Doctors Disqualified Some.

Disabled American Veterans last night called on the Civil Service Commission to have all physical examinations of veterans performed by medical officers of the Veterans Administration, a move resulting from recent charges that some examiners were disqualifying veterans whose physical fitness had been certified by Veterans Administration physicians.

The resolutions were introduced by E. Claude Babcock, a disabled veteran and president of the Federal Personnel Council, who said he could produce from the meeting veterans who had been given a bill of health by the Veterans Administration doctors, but who had been disqualified by other examiners for the Civil Service Commission.

One Examiner Cited.

No names were called, but the bone of contention was said to be one examiner in the Public Health Service. The resolutions passed in a parliamentary storm with Mahlon Ward, chairman of the national employment committee, D. A. V., in the middle and arguing for an "orderly approach" to the problem through the handling of individual cases without the contention being brought into the open.

The commission was asked to decline as proof of a disqualifying disease a diagnosis made on short examination and "without appropriate attention to the findings of the Veterans' Administration . . ."

List "Materially Reduced."

First concrete indication of the scope of the recent executive order extending civil service was given yesterday with the report that one large department has submitted to the Civil Service Commission a "very materially reduced" list of positions to be exempted from the merit system.

Every department and independent agency must inform the commission before September 24 of the positions it wishes to withhold from civil service, but thus far only two or three have done so. Name of the "large department" which is willing to extensively diminish the number of its non-civil service positions was not revealed.

Departments Warned.

The Civil Service Commission, which passes upon the departmental suggestions before forwarding them to the President, reminded the various agencies yesterday that they have barely two more months to submit their recommendations for exemptions. The commission warned them:

"If no reply is received from any department or agency within the 90 days (from June 24) as set by the Executive Order, the commission in its report to the President will state that such department is apparently agreeable to the inclusion of all its exempt positions within the classified service."

It was pointed out yesterday that practically every agency would request some exceptions from the blanketing order of June 24, under which even private secretaries would be covered unless exempted.

District's Amateur Radio Operators Form League, Prepare for Any Emergency Here

Earthquake or tornado, fire or flood—some day they make strike Washington, destroy all lines of communication, and isolate the Capital from the rest of the United States.

Unlikely, perhaps, but the unexpected sometimes happens, and a little group of local "hams" is going to be prepared.

Roy C. Corderman, of 4401 Leland street, Chevy Chase, Md., is the recently appointed emergency co-ordinator of the Washington area for the American Radio Relay League. The lengthy title merely means that in case disaster overtakes the city, Corderman will direct 40 amateur radio operators in maintaining contact with the outside world.

Military and naval establishments centered here would bear the brunt of the emergency communications problem, but the amateur radio operators would form an essential second line of defense.

Corderman is prepared, even if Washington's entire power system breaks down. "I have a portable set that works on two ordinary storage batteries. At trials not long ago, I reached a point 400 miles distant," he said. "That's one of the things we want to encourage; the building of portable sets. They may come in useful some day."

"Our experience in the Midwestern floods of 1936 and to a lesser extent in 1937 showed us the necessity of preliminary organization," Corderman said. "The President himself suggested it. Emergency co-ordinators are being appointed in every part of the country. It's all being done through the American Radio Relay League, the organization of 'hams.'"

For nearly 30 of his 40 years, Corderman has made a hobby of radio. Surrounded by instruments he largely built himself, he has talked to other "hams" in 89 countries, in every continent, and within the Arctic and Antarctic Circles.

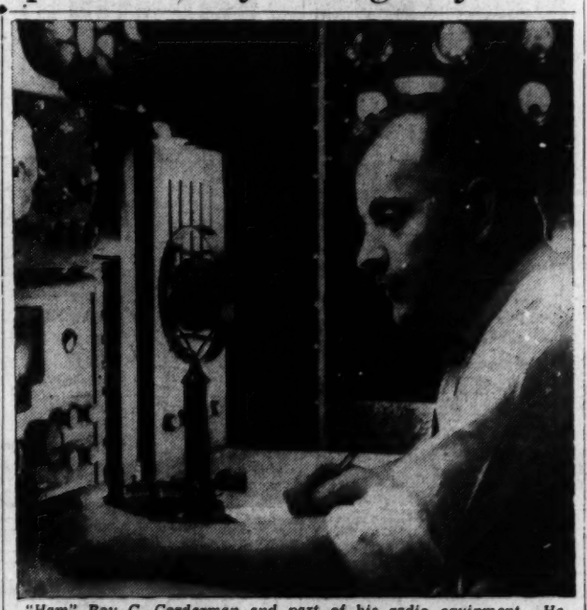
"Only this morning, I talked to Madagascar," he said yesterday. "Australia? Why, that's a daily occurrence."

A framed trophy recalls that Corderman was the sole recipient of messages from Salisbury, Md., during the violent storms of August, 1933. "I worked about 18 hours straight on that one," he said.

"Do you remembers what 'hams' did in the Louisville flood? Well, we now have the whole Susquehanna Valley organized in case of flood, and in the near future we hope to establish a network over the Potomac Valley, too."

Anxious to give credit for the emergency organization to other prominent "Hams" in Washington, Corderman said that local leaders in the movement include Robert A. Gallery, of Bethesda, Md.; Eppa Darne, of 132 Tennyson avenue northeast; Lieut. J. H. Nicholson, of Arlington, and Miss Elizabeth Zandonini, of 3633 Everett street northwest, "one of the best known woman radio operators in the world."

Corderman, who in his working hours is commercial representative of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., has a wife and four young sons.



"Ham" Roy C. Corderman and part of his radio equipment. He operates Station W3ZD.

Charles McGehee, Retiring Housing Chief, Is Feted

Charles C. McGehee, retiring deputy Federal Housing administrator, was feted last night at a dinner in the Hotel Carlton by his associates in the administration.

The 32-year-old housing expert, who submitted his resignation three weeks ago, leaves office Saturday to join a soft drink concern on August 1.

As a parting gift, beside the banquet, his associates gave McGehee six bottles of the soft drink, with the order to drink them. He drank one and passed the others around the table.

Farewell speeches were kept at a minimum. William D. Flanders, deputy FHA administrator, said "We're sorry to lose Charley McGehee." This was echoed a moment later by Jay Keegan, McGehee's successor in the administration.

He entered the administration four years ago, shortly after its organization, as State administrator in Georgia. He had earlier been in the real estate business in Atlanta.

A New Theater, New Pictures For Next Week

Diversified Bill Indoors and Out on Way; Olney Opens Monday.

To be numbered among the most natural young actors on stage or screen, the famous "Dead End" kids are said to give full play to their unique talents in "Little Tough Guy," the new Universal production opening today on the screen at RKO-Keith's. Foremost of these amazing youngsters are Billy Halop and David Gorcey, who are supported in this subject by Helen Parrish, Robert Wilcox, Jackie Searl and Marjorie Main. The story, of course, is in the nature of an astonishing document of reckless youth. Also on the bill will be a new issue of the "Screen Snapshots" and "Mickey's Trailer," a Walt Disney cartoon comedy.

Shirley Temple, a recent visitor to the Capital, will be seen again on the screen as star of "Little Miss Broadway," her latest release, opening tomorrow at Loew's Palace Theater. In this typical Temple vehicle, important roles also are played by George Murphy, stage and screen dancer; Jimmy Durante, Edna May Oliver, El Brendel and a score more of high repute. In this subject, the star is said to reveal tremendous development both as dancer and as comedienne, one of her numbers with George Murphy affording a remarkable miniature of Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire in action.

"Cowboy From Brooklyn," featuring Dick Powell, Pat O'Brien and Priscilla Lane, supported by Johnny Davis, Dick Foran and a large number of others, will be the major film attraction at the Earle Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. The story concerns itself with a Brooklyn crooner who has to go West to make good in the East. On the stage, the headline attraction will be the "Lake Placid Ice Follies," a skating spectacle in which will be seen Norval Baptie and Gladys Lamb, Eric Wait, Roberts and Farley, May Judels, Bobbie Dorree, Claire Simone, Martha Carter, DeLories Ziegfeld, Bobby Duffy, the Trado Twins and "16 Lake Placid Ladies."

Wallace Beery, Frank Morgan, Maureen O'Sullivan and John Beal appear in the principal roles of "Port of Seven Seas," chief feature of the screen bill at Loew's Capitol Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. The scene of this seriocomic drama is the Marseilles waterfront. Among the supporting players are Jessie Ralph, Cora Witherspoon, Etienne Girardot and E. Allyn Warren. Two headliners will distinguish the new stage bill. Little Jackie Heller returns with his voice and songs and Paul Haakon will demonstrate the highest reaches of the dance. Other acts will augment the stage show.

"The Count of Monto Cristo," a "million-dollar picture," adapted from the Alexandre Dumas novel, will be brought back to the screen at the Metropolitan Theater, in revival, for the week beginning tomorrow. Robert Donat and Elissa Landi head the cast, which also includes Louis Calhern, Sidney Blackmer, the late O. P. Heggie, Irene Hervey, William Farnum and Raymond Walburn.

Freddie Bartholomew, Mickey Hooney Charles Coburn, Herbert Mundin and Master Terry Kilburn will return to the screen at Loew's Columbia Theater, for the week beginning tomorrow, in a repeat F street engagement of "Lord Jeff," the film play based on the activities of the Bernardo Homes in England. An added attraction will be the final chapter of "The Lone Ranger," disclosing the identity of the player in that part.

The "March of Time," relating to the duties of the United States Coast Guard, will top the short-reel features of next week's program at the Trans-Lux Theater, beginning tomorrow. Other short subjects will include a FitzPatrick travelogue devoted to New Brunswick and a Disney cartoon comedy, "The Three Little Wolves." The bill will be based on complete newsreel coverage of the world.

The romantic stars of "Robin Hood" and "Captain Blood," Errol Flynn and Olivia de Havilland, will be seen on the screen at the Little Theater, for the week beginning Sunday, in a revival of the Warner Brothers production of "The Charge of the Light Brigade." Patric Knowles, Henry Stephenson, Nigel Bruce, Donald Crisp, David Niven, Spring Byington and numerous others are prominent in the support.

The new Olney Theater on the Georgia avenue pike between Olney and Ashton, Md., will be opened as the "South's first professional summer theater," next Monday night with Elissa Landi in "The Lady Has a Heart." A competent supporting ensemble will be seen in the star's support. The inaugural performance will begin at 8:45 p. m. Matinees will be given on Thursday and Saturday at 2:45 p. m. The Olney is Washington's latest addition to summer theaters and distinct in policy from any of the others. Seats are on sale at 615 Fifteenth street northwest, and at the theater.

The Roadside Theater will present "The Miner's Daughter, or The Fatal Confession," another rousing old melodrama, for the fortnight beginning next Monday night. One of the Roadside's most capable melodrama casts will be seen in the principal roles of this venerable thriller. Performances begin nightly at 8:40.

Noel Coward's "Private Lives" will be the bill offered by the Cross Roads Theater, over in Virginia, for the week beginning next Monday night at 8:40. The foremost roles will be taken by virtually the same cast as scored so decisively in the Cross Roads' initial production of the season.

The Wilson Line steamer City of Washington continues its schedules of daily trips to Mount Vernon and moonlight excursions down the Potomac as a means of escaping the muggy heat of the city. Many organizations take advantage of these cruises on the river.

Herbie Holmes and his excellent music, with Nancy Huttson's singing as a feature, are pleasing patrons of the Spanish garden ballroom at Glen Echo Park this week. The crystal pool, with its cooling waters, also is pleasing sweltering humanity as a convenient and perfectly appointed place to swim.

William Milton will appear in the leading romantic role of Orlando in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," in the National Sylvan Theater next Tuesday night. A sterling cast of resident players will also be cast in this annual revival of the Shakespeare, presented as the sixth Summer Festival program.

The Picture Industry Welcomes Legal Clarification of Practices

Will H. Hays, in Statement, Sees Benefit in Civil Suit Brought by Department of Justice Against 8 Companies; Foreign Films and Entr'actes; Notes of the Theater.

COMMENTING on the civil suit brought by the Department of Justice to explore certain procedures and customs in the motion picture industry, as set forth in other columns of today's issue of The Post, Will H. Hays, president of the motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., yesterday said in part:

"Motion picture producers, wholesale distributors and leading exhibitors of the Nation will generally welcome the prospect of a comprehensive, fair and conclusive endeavor to clarify the application of existing laws to the trade customs inherent in the development of the motion picture industry. The entire matter is being approached in that spirit through which beneficial results can come to all concerned. Courts clarify and explain the meaning of law. Such a suit as this can do just that.

BELL.

"The trade customs of the industry were born and have developed under unique and peculiar necessities never before encountered in commerce or law . . .

"The relationship between producers and consumers of motion picture entertainment is better today than ever before. The millions who comprise the motion picture audience feel a definite sense of partnership with the industry and an appreciation of the progress and the quality of entertainment shown on the screen. Such values should not be impaired.

"In all of its world-wide relations, the American motion picture industry has found its government to be helpful and understanding in every respect.

"On the economic side, an industry starting a few years ago with nothing, now normally employs more than 280,000 people, keeps 17,500 theaters in more than 9,000 cities and towns in the United States alone in regular operation, produces $1,000,000,000 worth of business in the local communities and pays to the Federal Government about $100,000,000 a year in taxes. It has pioneered in a labor policy which has kept wages high, working conditions much above the average, and the industry relatively free from unfortunate labor disturbances.

"It is hoped that judicial clarification will dispel the fog of uncertainty with regard to some customs which have grown up in the industry.

"In this great field the keenest competition always is the order of the day. With every studio competing to produce the best entertainment, every distributor competing for sales, and every theater competing for the best film product, involving 12,000,000 individual transactions every year, the problems and trade relations have grown with the growth of the industry. This industry has not shirked its responsibilities for the solution of these problems. A committee of leading producers and distributors is now engaged in considering readjustments in the intricate machinery of this business to the end that it may even better serve the public interest . . .

"The middlemen of the industry, the wholesale distributors and the retail exhibitors have seen in self-regulation, rather than in legislation, the final solution of the trade problems peculiar to the business. If the present action instituted by the Department of Justice, in civil proceedings, clarifies the law applicable to the complex business operations of the motion picture industry, it should promote the further progress of the screen."

This is a significant commentary upon the motion picture industry's attitude toward the civil suit in question, since it is voiced by the president of the national organization, of which all eight defendant parties to the legal action are members. The MPPDA, however, does not represent the industry's 100 per cent united front.

There are lesser groups within the industry's ranks that might conceivably entertain views of which Mr. Hays' conciliatory statement is not wholly expressive. That, no doubt, is one of the things that will be determined in court.

• • • •

The judges presiding in this case will have many obtuse conditions submitted for their consideration before the suit can be equitably decided. This column is aware of nothing in the commercial world that presents quite the complexity of the production, distribution and exhibition of motion picture entertainment. This is due largely to the fact that motion pictures represent a creative, rather than a strictly manufacturing business—or art, if it may be so denominated. There are so many delicate gradations in the value of the cinema's product that, it seems to me, it would be a task of almost insuperable difficulty to enact rigid laws that would adequately cover every possible contingency that might arise in the marketing of studio output. The present system has been evolved from an inflexible rule to supply the highest quality of entertainment at the lowest possible cost to the ultimate consumer—the public. It is that policy that has made the motion picture the supreme medium of world-wide, mass entertainment and made available to the low-income brackets classics of literature, history, drama and music they otherwise never would have been permitted to enjoy.

The Roadsiders are at it again.

Recalling the hilariously enthusiastic reactions of earlier audiences to "She's More to Be Pitied Than Censured," sung by soprano, alto, barytone and bass, between the acts of "Murder in the Red Barn," and "Don't Swat Your Mother, Boys," by the same combination of voices in "The Drunkard," the Rockville pike group are reviving the entr'acte mixed quartet idea for "The Miner's Daughter, or the Fatal Confession," scheduled to open a fortnight's engagement in the haymow next Monday night.

Frances Brunt, Betty Gray, Edward Stevlingson and Norman Rose will comprise the new foursome, dedicating their voices to a concord of more or less sweet sound, and the object of their vocal gymnastics will be that old pseudo tear-jerker, "The Fatal Wedding."

This alone should be worth the price of admission.

The Boro Theater, in Bethesda, Md., has discovered a surprising local interest in the better of the foreign-made pictures, in revival. The discovery was made through the medium of "Mayerling," co-starring Charles Boyer and Danielle Darrieux, booked largely as an expreiment. This recent engagement was so successful that it will be repeated for two days on July 31 and August 1. And on the strength of that record, "The Life and Loves of Beethoven" has been jotted down on the booking sheets for Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. At least, Bethesda knows the good ones.

For theater lovers who hover over the newsstands, the current issue of the Theater Arts Monthly should prove unusually entertaining. The editors, in collaboration with Miguel Covarrubias, celebrated Mexican artist, have compiled a special issue devoted to the drama of his native land.

Senor Covarrubias, it seems to me, has hit upon a pretty nifty title for his own contribution to the magazine. It is called "Slapstick and Venom" and has to do with the theater in politics, indicating how effectively the stage may be employed as an agitational weapon.

This is not the first time Senor Covarrubias has "gone to town" in the public prints. Back in 1936 he did a piece on Bali—and now look where Bali is! An international museum piece, no less.

Return in Highly Charged Film

OLIVIA DE HAVILLAND AND ERROL FLYNN as they appear in the romantic costellar roles in the Warner Brothers production of "The Charge of the Light Brigade," announced for a revival engagement at the Little Theater for the week beginning Sunday. The climax of the picture is reached in the thundering cavalry charge at Balaclava, renowned in history and literature.

By M. LINCOLN SCHUSTER

FOOD: Andre Simon, Gastronomer Royal of the Wine and Food Society, doesn't know it, but Simon & Schuster would like him to write a gourmet's autobiography under the title "Nobody Knows the Truffles I've Seen."

• • • •

ADVICE: Following the success of Frank Scully's "Fun in Bed" books for convalescents, Simon & Schuster are again going off the deep end with trick titles. The next one will be "What Every Girl Should Know Before Marriage." It will be a cookbook for brides.

• • • •

RECORD: A magazine interviewer recently asked one of the partners of Simon & Schuster for a brief summary of the firm's history, and this was the answer: "Fourteen years in business—25,000 manuscripts submitted—450 books published—250 still in print—70 best sellers—92 flops l'estime and succes de fiasco . . ."

• • • •

RUBBER: Hendrik Willem van Loon cabled his publishers from Stockholm that he had just found a Swedish masseur who was curing his sciatica and thus making it possible to complete his long-projected book on "The History of the Average Man." The publishers replied: "Delighted Swedish rubber curing you. Stop. Suggest you write little book about him entitled the man who carried the massage to Garcia."

• • • •

WORDS: When motion-picture companies were negotiating for the title "Wake Up and Live" for a screen production, the publishers were asked to name a price. They suggested $5,000 per word, based on the rate paid per word for the last title they had sold to the movies—"Caught Short." The reply came back that "up" was only a little word! But the deal was closed with Twentieth Century-Fox—at an even higher price. A year later another company—M-G-M—paid a still higher rate per word for an even bigger best-seller. "How to Win Friends and Influence People." And at that they will probably use only the first four words of the title!

• • • •

GAGS: Several years ago the book stores featured a plaid-covered collection of Scotch jokes, published by MacSimon & MacSchuster. To their very close friends the publishers confided that this was the first of a series of jake books—the next to be a volume of Irish wit and humor, issued by O'Simon & O'Shuster, and the third a book of Jewish jokes under the straight imprint of Simon & Schuster . . . The climax was to be a supercolossal omnibus of Hollywood gags, bearing the title, "The Wit and Wisdom of Samuel Goldwyn." This plan was dropped, however, because the publishers were afraid that Goldwyn would sue—and they weren't even sure whether he would sue for royalties or for libel!

• • • •

Films' Birth Rate Highest in World

The low California birth rate, which is just now alarming the eugenicists, cannot be blamed on Hollywood.

The film capital has the largest crop of babies, born and expected, in its history. There are six recent or prospective fathers and mothers on the Warner Bros. roster of players. Babies already born include a daughter for Claude Rains, sons each for Dick Foran and Patric Knowles. Those expected within the very near future include the prospective Dick Powell-Joan Blondell heir and Allen Jenkins' baby.

This represents a birth rate among Warner Bros. players of almost 10 per cent higher than the average rate anywhere in the world.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Man Offends Sweetheart; Fails to Apologize; Wishes to See Her Again; What Should She Do?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I a ma girl 18 years old and have been going with a boy of 19 for the past two years. We didn't go steady, although he claimed to be in love with me and I with him. Six months ago my father was transferred to another city by his firm. Naturally the family went along. I kept in touch with the boy by correspondence and he came to see me twice. Later, I cams back on a visit to some friends who live in his neighborhood.

• • • •

The first night of the visit, I went out with this boy on a double-date. We went to a show and afterward, for a drive. He asked if I minded parking for a while, and seeing no harm in it, I consented. I trusted him completely. We kissed a few times and then his manner changed. He put his arms around me in such a way as to render me helpless and started to pet. Before I could get him to stop, I was in tears. He didn't try to apologize and took a very indifferent attitude toward the incident. I told him my frank opinion of him, which was not flattering. I said I was through with him.

He took me home and the next day called and begged me to go to a show this week-end. Then he called again and said we needed to see each other and talk the matter over. I have accepted tentatively. But how should I treat him when I see him? Should I act as if nothing had happened, or should I have nothing more to do with him? Please answer without delay, as I need advice badly. DISTRESSED.

Don't Encourage Him.

DEAR DISTRESSED: Many supposedly worldly-wise persons would tell you, knowingly, that the boy's behavior was no worse than could have been expected, under those particular circumstances which you permitted to develop; that any man is liable to "lose control of himself," emotionally, when tacitly encouraged by a girl's innocent, ignorant or reckless lending of herself to such a situation. And that is true, up to a certain point.

• • • •

However, any man, in such circumstances, who really respected the girl in question; or who was deeply fond of her; who "loved" her, as this boy has claimed in the past, to love you, would—if he were the right sort of man—immediately express sincere contrition and vigorous self-condemnation for having offended and alarmed the girl. He would, moreover, probably scold the girl, or give her something of a lecture, for being such a naive little fool as to let him—or any man, for that matter—entice her into a situation that, of itself, placed her character and motives under suspicion; that made her appear, for the moment, at least, rather cheap and easy.

• • • •

As a gesture toward reconciliation with a girl whose friendship he valued, as a means of restoring some equilibrium to their relationship, and in sheer self-justification, he would have felt called upon to explain to her that a girl who acts in such-and-such a manner is tacitly inviting familiar advances from her masculine companion of the moment. He would have explained, however briefly, the reasons—now regretted—why he had acted as he did, and by the time the car was headed toward home, each would have arrived at a better understanding of the other, and would have known whether or not it was possible, or worthwhile, for the relationship to be continued.

• • • •

Only a boor; only a man who lacked essential refinement of feeling and behavior; a man fundamentally incapable of thoroughgoing decency of mental and emotional attitude toward womankind, would take "a very indifferent attitude toward (such an) incident," or try to laugh or scoff it off, or ignore it out of existence, as an episode of no importance. And because your beau "did not try to apologize," and did attempt to carry off the situation with a high hand, in an insolent manner, I think he deserves to be cut off your calling list.

• • • •

To continue seeing a man of his mentality and thwarted social development, after such an affront followed by such a denouement, is to encourage him in the sneaking supposition that his unflattering estimate of you as the plaything of an hour was justified. I daresay the advances of the recent evening would prove—on continued association—to be but the beginning of a stubborn and ugly assault on the citadel of your emotional reserve. Such a campaign would be occasioned as much by your ineptness as by his lack of intuitiveness, self-restraint and delicacy—in dealing with what is, no doubt, for the time being, a pronounced mutual physical attraction. I advise you to forget him, as quickly as possible, by returning to your home and the new environment and new social opportunities it affords for making other boy friends.

• • • •

I doubt that he loves you; and since you "didn't go steady," even while living in the same city as he, it is likely he has made the same brand of love to other girls all along, and may even have chalked up some sordid conquests. It's greatly to his discredit that he should have attempted familiarities on the one occasion when you were entirely divorced from your family's hypothetical chaperonage and protection. It implies that he assumed you would go berserk, emotionally, at the first breath of freedom. I think you should tell him that you don't care to go out with him again; that there is nothing to discuss; and thereafter leave it to him to devise ways and means of eating enough humble pie to restore himself to your good graces—if he's sufficiently interested to try.

• • • •

Get these facts firmly in mind: No decent man forces his attentions on the girl he loves, not even for a split second. Furthermore, when he is conscious of having given offense, no matter how unwittingly, his apologies are instantaneous and fervent. This man's behavior, on the evening in question, was more that of callow pseudo Don Juan, whose pride was sorely injured by rebuff, than it was the behavior of a man in love who lost his head for a moment. M. H.

For Summer Doldrums—'Type-Changing' Coiffure

JUDY GARLAND, Hollywood star, changes adolescent awkwardness into poise and dignity with a new coiffure. Curls massed in tiny front clusters graduate from shadow wave at crown into soft ringlets.

HAIR WAVED up from temples and neck with curls massed high on the crown in the modern style changes Florence Rice's girlish ingenuousness into womanly sophistication by adding a wordly depth to her personality.

New Coiffures Are Adaptable to Varied Moods

Change of Styles Urged to Perk Up One's Personality.

By Carolyn Abbott.

IF SUMMER'S heat keeps you feeling spiritless and looking dowdy or you're just tired of being the same person from day to day, change your hairdress. For there's nothing like a new coiffure to lift you out of a rut and perk up your personality.

And this season's hair styles offer a wide range of choices. In fact, you can have a hair-do that can be easily adapted to suit your needs as well as the occasion. There are many variations of the upsweep trend to give you sophistication and other styles to make you demure, carefree and flirtatious.

Dignity Accented.

Hair swept up from the temples and neck with curls massed high on the head induces a mood of softness, dignity and sophistication. This style also accents a regal carriage that is necessary to give a worldly gown the proper amount of femininity and verve. It also gives an illusion of greater height.

But if you prefer the carefree personality to that of ultra sophistication try a modified page boy treatment that's adaptable to your features. You can have the hair softly shadow-waved from the crown and turned up under to lengthen the nape of your neck. Or you can have a soft roll brushed up from the forehead in front and long in the back. Remember the page boy coiffure is not for you if you show any signs of age. The long flowing effect of the page boy accentuates sagging lines in the face and makes you look much older.

Add Poise to Bearing.

The very young girl who is passing through the awkward stage of trying to grow up may add poise to her bearing by wearing her hair in a tiny front cluster of curls accented with flowers (for evening). The remainder of the hair should be shadow-waved from the crown and allowed to fall in soft ringlets around the face and neck. This is one trick that one of the adolescent movie stars practices regularly. In fact, whenever a Hollywood actress wants to change her personality or type, she changes her coiffure.

No two faces are ever alike, so don't imitate someone else's style. Study your features, arrange the hair in many different ways until you find the style most becoming to you. If you aren't sure of your own judgment, seek the advice of a good hair stylist.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, July 20.

THIS MONTH those town-bound New Yorkers who still survive try to "eat out" as often and as long as possible, for an apartment kitchen in July is as close to Hades as this present life can come. And when we go forth to peck gingerly at our victuals, we have two general choices. One is a sidewalk cafe, which assures us of soot with our salad. The other is an air-cooled eatery, which may give us a slight fit of summer sniffles.

ALICE HUGHES

The indoor lunch counters, cooled by the wonders of science, are more comfortable, perhaps; but those of us who still seek out and revel in a certain nostalgic charm, prefer to munch under the heavy skies and take our chances with dust and thunderstorms. We can go to the hotel roofs or various terraces in the parks, but my pick for open-air dining is that short stretch of lower Fifth avenue which runs from the Washington Arch to Four1 teenth street. That bit of the old highway, on the northern rim of Greenwich Village, has miraculously retained much of its old-time charm, in spite of huge apartment warrens and the assaults of trade.

Down there are old churches, and old brownstone houses, and old ladies and gempmen who have lived into the era of the neon light. And, thanks be, there is still the old Brevoort Hotel, aged, historic and alive with memories. On its sidewalk the spouse and I are fond of dining—eating its ever-excellent food, and consulting with the venerable waiter, Louie, whose avocation is the raising of high-grade canaries. The old Brevoort is an oasis of peace in the screaming, nerve-tortured city—and so let's sit long there tonight, over the iced coffee, before we dive once more into the hot Gehenna of midtown!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN. What the honeymooner will wear home! The new Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Manuela Hudson, of Californy, that was, returned from Bermuda with Al (pardon me, Al!) wearing a sheer black suit topped by a huge white sailor hat and looking extraordinarily pretty. The couple, of course, is off to Saratoga for the races, since they are the young royalty of the horsey set.

Margaret Mitchell, the Atlanta author of "Gone With the Wind," has gone home after a week here in which she broke all records for avoiding cameramen and those vicious "literary teas." Her local pal and bodyguard is Lois Cole, associate editor of the Macmillan publishing house. As Lois' guest, Miss Mitchell met a few close New York friends, but was spared all botherment.

By the way, the feeling grows here that the story of Norma Shearer's playing Scarlett in Miss Mitchell's amazingly successful tale was some sort of a publicity toy—as though the yarn hadn't had enough. So we can just wait—as we have for nearly two years—and see. I've always had a hunch that Katharine Hepburn would be a natural for the part, and so, I suppose, have others. Many adverse votes on the Shearer report are said to have been cast by mail.

Our mounted coppers are notoriously handsome and gallant men, and Horse Cop Joe Kennedy has just proved it by galloping to the East River at the sound of a little girl's holler, and then leaping into that distressing torrent to rescue a pair of twins, two, who had waded out of their depths. On their steeds or off, our mounted constables are mighty fellows, and Joe will undoubtedly scoop up a few nice medals.

Tulsa Lee Barker (hail to Oklahoma!) is our local tropical fish queen. She sells all sorts and sizes of aquaria, and is now running a drive to get more of our finny friends into sickrooms and hospitals. My pet among her merchandise is a fish called the "Dither" (perfect name) which has large, sailboat ears like Dopey. Mrs. Barker says doctors recommend such fish as soothing influences on the ill. Well, they're certainly better than a howling parrot, or a tenor-singer!

By Ida Jean Kain.

IT MAY BE only coincidence that a man's so-called dangerous age seems to correspond very closely to that at which his wife lets herself go and loses her girlish figure.

But John J. Anthony, radio adviser on domestic relations, says that it happens too often to be merely coincidence. "Women often forget that a man marries a woman with a lovely figure," declares Mr. Anthony. "He may go for a long time without paying very much attention to the changes, but one day he stands back for a good look and thinks, 'I didn't marry anyone like that!' And off he goes."

At this point, of course, we women would like to know what about the man and his waistline? It probably never occurs to him that his aldermanic front is quite a change from his football days!

It's a Man's World.

But Mr. Anthony may know best, because his conclusions are based on the analysis of thousands of cases over a period of 14 years. And while it's a man's world, Mr. Anthony insists that, from the beginning, the success of a marriage depends upon the woman. He even has the temerity to add, "It is mainly a woman's fault when she loses her man."

Strangely enough, although this practical psychologist blames overweight as a definite cause of marital difficulty, he thinks it is far worse to have a badly proportioned figure! And there we'll concede that Mr. Anthony is right. Many a man prefers his wife to be pleasingly plump—but he does like her shapely.

Besides helping you to keep your figure, diet and exercise are important from still another standpoint. "They are the means of keeping in excellent physical condition, and no man likes to come home from a hard day at the office and listen to his wife's tale of woe about some minor ailment, or how tired she is," Mr. Anthony observes. Instead of calling attention to your troubles, he advises that you make every possible effort to build up your health. (And why about the man and his neuritis, neuralgia and rheumatism!)

Sports Best Answer.

Mr. Anthony's recommendations for a happy marriage are that a woman try as closely as possible to maintain the same radiant health, normal weight and perfect proportions she had as a bride. "The smart wife keeps up her tennis game and gets her husband to play with her . . . There's no better way of settling an argument than by trouncing your partner at a good swift game of tennis. It clears the atmosphere and makes for a smoothly running marriage."

Now, I wouldn't presume to question any of Mr. Anthony's conclusions, since he could and would back them up with statistics, but it does seem to me that he is a bit inclined to the masculine view. The next time I talk to a domestic relations authority, it will be a woman!

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

On Their Uppers.

"Hello! Are you downtown to buy a fur coat too?"

"Not me! I've got to make my old mink do another season."

"Well, I really can't afford a new coat, but I'll be run in if I wear that old Hudson seal another winter."

"I'm dying for a real Persian lamb, but we're too dead broke now to buy anything."

"Say, we're virtually on relief."

"All I hear at home is losses . . . and taxes. Arthur is so depressed."

"Howard's terribly cross. Every time we get a letter it's to tell our dividends are cut."

"Arthur's simply disgusted at the way things are going."

"I know. You're just afraid to do anything. I didn't buy any clothes this summer . . . with the exception of a few little prints . . . and linens . . . and things like that."

"I didn't either. I haven't a thing on earth except what I've got on my back."

"That's an awfully good looking dress. Where did you get it?"

"Oh, Mme. Renee. She made me an awfully cut white linen too . . . and a darling pique for evening. But, of course, I haven't gotten any really nice clothes."

"We've never been so poor in our lives as we have this summer."

"Arthur says he doesn't know what the country's coming to. It looks as if there's no place you can even put your money—where it'll be really safe."

"Well, I tell Howard I'm certainly thankful we've got the ranch. After all, if it came to the worst, we could go there and live some way . . . I suppose."

"That's the way I feel about our little place down on the bay. Of course, I'd hate to live down there the year round——"

"Are you going down there this summer?"

"No, we rented it. We had planned to take that North Cape cruise, but it cost so much and, then, times being so hard and everything—well, we just decided we'd stay home and put in a cooling system."

"Well, we just hadn't intended to go anywhere, being as we were so hard up . . . but I guess we've just got to do something. You know you simply can't live in this town in hot weather."

"Well, after all, I guess a person could really save money by spending the summer in Europe."

That's what Howard says. He says anyway, its no use to stay here and make money, because you'll have to give it all up in taxes."

"Arthur says he wouldn't be surprised at anything that'd happen."

"That's it exactly. That's why I tell Howard we might as well go to Europe this summer and spend what little we've got. We'd at least have the fun out of it."

"You know, that's exactly the way I feel about getting a Persian lamb coat."

Pleasant Homes

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

"DON'T START OUT by feeling sorry for us," writes Kay R., "because we're having a swell time. Even if we don't have much money and a family of four children to live off of it. Only don't recommend anything expensive in the way of refurbishings, because we just could not afford it. The only really nice thing we own is the radio, but that's our chief pleasure so we put all our entertainment budget on it.

"The living room itself is pretty dowdy and likely to stay that way while the children are at the chasing age. The only quiet we have is at night after they're all in bed. But I do want to freshen things up and make it as attractive as possible. I'd thought of tan curtains because the rug is rather a tan color. And perhaps flowered slip covers for the furniture in something flowered on a spring? What would be the thing for the walls?"

Not tan! That's a drab color unless it's highly stylized and so we'd suggest something that will do more toward brightening up the effect. What about a light ground paper with a fresh green leaf design in it? Or even a stripe in white and green. Then full crisp white curtains made to tie back with a valance and tie backs in a textured fabric (of interest on its own) in a sort of tan about the same value as the rug. For slipcovers we'd have plain green in a vibrant tone. With maybe a few odd cushions of the tan. Then some pictures with lots of yellow in them. And maybe yellow flowers—when they're in season—in copper or brass bowls.

Admiral Richardson Fetes Aides at Tea

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Anyone who thinks there's no such thing as social circling in a Washington summer should have been around yesterday. A calendar that for days has been threatening to go completely blank came through with four weddings, several tea-and-cocktail parties, and at least half a dozen luncheons.

Biggest gathering on schedule was out at the Army-Navy Country Club, where the new chief of the Bureau of Navigation, Rear Admiral James O. Richardson, and Mrs. Richardson, entertained a flock of their friends at a tea from 5:30 to 7:30. The guest list, had it taken in all their acquaintances, would have gone out of the bounds of informal summer entertaining, so Admiral and Mrs. Richardson limited their invitation to officers of the bureau and their wives.

HOPE R. MILLER.

Wearing a floor-length frock of yellow crepe with a wide-brimmed brown picture hat, Mrs. Richardson received the long line of guests. Standing with her was Admiral Richardson, and assisting both of them were the latter's assistant, Capt. Frank Jack Fletcher, and Mrs. Fletcher, who was gowned in blue chiffon worn with a leghorn hat. Introducing the guests was Lieut. John S. Blue, aide to Admiral Richardson.

The spacious rooms of the Army-Navy club were decorated for the occasion with vases of roses, gladioli and larkspur. Cocktails, tea and sandwiches were served at a long table in the dining room.

Admiral Richardson, who has been assistant to Admiral William D. Leahy for some time, succeeded Vice Admiral Adolphus Andrews when the latter left Washington not long ago to take command of the United States scouting force. Admiral Andrews, whose headquarters are in San Francisco, is now on his flagship, the U. S. S. Indianapolis.

Wainrights Fete Six Polo Teams

Meanwhile, as the Richardson party progressed at the Army-Navy Country Club, Col. and Mrs. Jonathan Wainwright were entertaining at tea at their quarters at Fort Myer. Their guests of honor were members of the six polo teams playing yesterday afternoon in the Southeastern Circuit polo tournament.

The party began late—after 6 o'clock—so that the matches on schedule could be completed. Among the guests were members of the Fort Myer Cavalry Greens, Capt. T. Q. Dobaldson, Capt. John L. Hines, jr., Capt. L. G. Smith and Capt. T. J. Trapnell. Visiting teams included the one from the Maryland Polo Club in Stevenson, Md.; the Loudoun players from Middleburg, the quartet from the War Department and the Quantico Marine group.

Capt. L. W. Smith, of Fort Myer, who was in charge of arrangements for the polo tournament, was also among the guests, as were Maj. and Mrs. John C. Daly, who have been house guests of Col. and Mrs. Wainwright the past few days. Maj. Daly recently was transferred from Fort Des Moines to the Army War College for a course of instruction.

Miss Pope Fetes Mr. and Mrs. Bliss

At 5:30 yesterday afternoon a small group assembled at the Georgetown home of Miss Eugenia Pope for a cocktail party given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Don Bliss, who recently arrived in Washington after an absence of several years. Mr. Bliss, who is connected with the American Embassy in Paris, has a number of friends here. He and his wife plan to be in Washington for another week.

Miss Pope's house, which incidentally is next door to Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt's Georgetown home, was decorated with masses of summer flowers yesterday afternoon. The hostess wore a floor-length figured dress patterned with gayly colored blossoms on a yellow background. Among her guests, in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Bliss, were Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Myers, Miss Jane Woolfitt, Dennis Mulligan, G. H. McEwen and Thomas C. Barringer.

SOCIETY GO-ROUND: Mrs. George Barnett, whose birthday falls on Friday of this week, will celebrate the event with a small, informal party at Wakefield Manor, her Virginia home. The gathering will be a quiet affair, due to the illnes of Mrs. Barnett's sister, Mrs. C. Phillips Hill. Among those who will be present at the party are Mrs. George Murray, another sister of Mrs. Barnett, who recently came East from her home in California. . . . Miss Betty Hopkins, of Watsonville, Calif., and Mrs. David W. Knowlton, of Bristol, R. I., who have spent the past few days in Washington, left today for Mrs. Knowlton's home in Bristol. . . . Miss Olivia Phelps Stokes, daughter of Canon and Anson Phelps Stokes, who is spending some time in New York, will join her parents next month when they go to their summer home in Lenox, Mass. . . . Mrs. Mondell Gregg, who is visiting Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss in Newport, R. I., will return to Washington the latter part of this week.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

OF HOUSING NOTE: Senator and Mrs. Charles McNary, of Oregon, have leased the home of Miss Anita Phipps, 3023 P street, and will occupy it when they return for the opening of Congress next winter. One of a series of old, red brick homes in Georgetown, it was remodeled several years ago by the owner. Miss Phipps prefers to live in a house she did over still more recently on Thirty-second street, in old Georgetown.

DUDLEY HARMON

The residence which the McNarys will occupy is a comparatively small, though very charming one. The low-ceilinged living room extends all the length of the house, and has a huge fireplace. Behind is a narrow garden, with a tiny terrace, all entirely surrounded by a brick wall, giving that feeling of privacy which is so rare in a city. Mr. and Mrs. Horace Peters have the house until autumn.

Senator and Mrs. McNary are spending the summer quietly at their ranch in Oregon. For the past few years they have lived in apartments, either at the Hay-Adams House or 2101 Connecticut avenue, but their little daughter, Charlotte, has now reached the active age of 4, and so they decided it would be nice to provide her with a yard to play in.

* * * *

MR. AND MRS. Donald DeVeau have decided they definitely prefer the charm of the country to the clatter of the city. They are now supervising the building of a new home near Chevy Chase Lake and hope to move in early in the fall. The house will be a spacious red brick colonial model.

Since their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. DeVeau have been living in Silver Spring, Md. Mrs. DeVeau, the former Jane Esther Platt, is the daughter of Landra Platt. The DeVeaus are not going to take a vacation this summer, preferring to put all their extra time and money into their new home.

Their new house is near "Hayes' Manor," the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas Dunlop. Built in 1750, the estate was occupied several years ago by Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, and the late Mrs. Ickes.

Miss Elsie Ekengren says the report that her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hawkins, would sail tomorrow for home are greatly exaggerated. They will go instead to Dublin, where they will be spectators at the famous Horse Show there. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins are enthusiastic over horses and they take part in most of the meets held around Washington. They expect to embark August 7 to return to this country. Before her marriage last spring, Mrs. Hawkins was Miss Christine Ekengren.

Speaking of Dublin, Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., who sailed for Ireland only to receive word of the death of her father, Harold Walker, shortly after she landed, hopes her mother, Mrs. Walker, will come over and join her there.

* * * *

THE numerous members of the Tuckerman family being scattered more or less all over the country, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman have decided not to open their place in Southampton this summer. Instead, they will return to Stockbridge, Mass., in the Berkshires, where they already have spent some time this summer.

* * * *

Mrs. Charles Darlington will depart shortly to spend the remainder of the summer with her family in Arizona. Mr. Darlington, who is with the foreign trade agreement section of the State Department, will join the ranks of summer bachelors, remaining at the residence on California street.

Julia Metcalf, Donald C. Kline Wed in Church

The Chapel of the Resurrection in the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul yesterday afternoon was the scene of the wedding of Miss Julia Deane Metcalf and Donald Chenoweth Kline. The Rev. Edwin B. Niver officiated at the ceremony, which took place at 4:30 o'clock. The former Miss Metcalf is the daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Clyde Hill Metcalf. Mr. Kline is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Kline.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white taffeta, fashioned with a fitted bodice, draped neck, circular skirt and square train. Her bouquet was of tube roses to match similar flowers on her short tulle veil.

Mrs. Frederick W. Denniston, the matron of honor, wore fuchsia chiffon made with puffed sleeves, a fitted bodice and square neck and she carried an all-white bouquet of gladioli, larkspur and bouvardia. Bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth Ray Williams and Miss Harriet Brundage. Their frocks of hydrangea blue chiffon were made like that of the matron of honor, and they carried bouquets similar to hers.

Robert E. Kline, Jr. Is Brother's Best Man

Robert E. Kline, jr., brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Joseph H. Lapish, Harold L. Boutin, Walter G. Peter, jr., and Philip S. Kline. Small Elizabeth Anne Kline was flower girl, and her brother, Richard Kline was ring brother. Both are children of Robert E. Kline, jr. The flower girl wore a bouffant frock of pale blue taffeta, while the ring bearer had on a white suit.

Following the wedding, there was a reception for members of the wedding party and guests at Tilden Gardens. The bride's mother, who received, was gowned in white chiffon over American beauty chiffon, and she wore a wide-brimmed lace hat. Her corsage was of lilies of the valley. Mrs. Kline, mother of the bridegroom, wore black net, made with a full skirt and puffed sleeves and her corsage was of roses and gardenias.

On Wedding Trip To Mexico City

Shortly after the reception, the couple left on their wedding trip. They will sail today for Mexico, where they will spend several weeks. Upon their return they will make their home in Washington. Mr. Kline is associate professor of architecture at George Washington University, and he is also assistant editor of art and architecture for the Federal Writers Project. He was educated at George Washington University, where he specialized in art and architecture, and he later attended L'Ecole Americaine in Fontainbleau, France.

The former Miss Metcalf attended George Washington University before she entered Mills College, where she was graduated. Later, she and her parents made an extensive tour of Europe, where she continued her study of art and architecture. This year, she has been a student at the Abbott Art School here. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi Sorority.

Leave for Mexico.

Dr. Carlos Adalberto Alfaro, First Secretary of the El Salvador Legation, and Senora de Alfaro are en route to Mexico City for a vation of two months.

Reunion Fete Held to Honor Mrs. Tarrant

Mrs. Cecil Sherman Baker, wife of Capt. Baker, U. S. N., entertained at luncheon yesterday in the Louis Seize room of the Shoreham in honor of Mrs. William T. Tarrant, wife of Vice Admiral Tarrant, recently of the Pacific fleet and now en route to his new post as commanding officer of the Boston Navy Yard.

Other guests were Mrs. Frank H. Schofield, wife of Rear Admiral Schofield, U. S. N., retired; Mrs. Robert L. Ghormley, wife of Capt. Ghormley, U. S. N.; Mrs. Greene W. Dugger, jr., wife of Commander Dugger; Mrs. William D. Upshur, wife of Gen. Upshur, U. S. M. C. and Mrs. Austin Kautz, widow of the late Capt. Kautz.

This luncheon was in the nature of a reunion as most of the women lived in California when their husbands were attached to the U. S. S. California, where Capt. Baker was aide to Rear Admiral Schofield.

Adolph Millers Back in America

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Caspar Miller were on the Holland-America ship Nieuw Amsterdam, which arrived in New York yesterday from Rotterdam, Boulogne and Southampton. Mr. and Mrs. Miller left last spring and spent several weeks in Italy.

Also on board the Nieuw Amsterdam was Manley O. Hudson, formerly of Washington, now of the World Court at The Hague.

The United States Ambassador to Peru and Mrs. Lawrence Steinhardt sailed from New York yesterday on the Queen Mary for Sweden, where they have leased a castle for the summer. They were accompanied by their daughter, Miss Dulcie Ann Steinhardt.

The former Secretary of State, Henry L. Stimson, and Mrs. Stimson, are also passengers on the Queen Mary.

Mr. and Mrs. Blair Give Luncheon to Mrs. Cummings

Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the Attorney General, was ranking guest at a luncheon yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Blair at the Mayflower.

Other guests were Miss Josephine Roche, Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Oursler and John L. Lewis. Mr. Oursler, editor of Liberty magazine, addressed the National Health Conference yesterday afternoon at the hotel.

Miss Roche, formerly Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, gave a tea yesterday afternoon for delegates to the conference.

Cave-Cullinane Troth Plighted

At a quiet ceremony in the rectory of St. Ann's Catholic Church yesterday morning, Miss Ann Cecelia Cullinane and Edward F. Cave were married. The bride is the daughter of Jeremiah Cullinane. Mr. Cave is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cave.

The Rev. Morris King officiated at the 10 o'clock ceremony. Mr. Cullinane gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a white silk suit with a blouse of soft rose and blue print. With this she wore a white turban and white accessories. Her corsage was of red roses and lilies of the valley.

Her only attendant was her sister, Mrs. A. J. Rosetta, who was matron of honor. She was gowned in dusty rose crepe, worn with a white hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of gardenias. Earnest Eaton, of Baltimore, was best man.

Following the ceremony there was a small reception at the home of Mrs. Rosetta on Connecticut avenue. In a reception room banked with gladioli and roses, Mrs. Cave, mother of the bridegroom, assisted in greeting the guests. Her frock was navy blue and white print, worn with a white rough straw hat and white accessories.

St. Matthew's Church yesterday morning at 11 o'clock was the scene of the wedding of Miss Helen O'Donoghue, daughter of Mrs. John A. O'Donoghue and the late Dr. O'Donoghue, and James Francis Leahigh, son of Mrs. Frank Leahigh and the late Mr. Leahigh, of Washington, Ind. The Rev. Wilfred Parsons, S. J., dean of the graduate school of Georgetown University, officiated at the nuptial mass.

Sisten Serves As Maid of Honor

Miss Florence O'Donoghue, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Stephen W. Nealon, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Joseph J. McHale. All three attendants wore dresses of white tucked silk net over taffeta and white maline off-the-face hats. They carried old-fashioned bouquets of red roses and white larkspur with ribbons to match the roses.

Robert C. Graham, jr., of Detroit, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Dr. John A. O'Donoghue, jr., and Ross O'Donoghue, brothers of the bride, and Robert E. Heffernan and William C. Flaherty.

Immediately following the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast in the patio of the Carlton Hotel. The bride's mother, who received guests there, wore a frock of Paris and marquisette and lace with a wide-brimmed brown straw hat and brown accessories. Her corsage was a cattleya orchid. Mrs. Leahigh, mother of the bridegroom, was gowned in white embossed chiffon, and she wore a large white hat and a corsage of purple orchids.

Couple to Live In Washington

When the couple left on their wedding trip, the bride wore a beige crepe frock with an orchid corsage and a black off-the-face felt hat with black accessories. Upon their return from a motor trip to the West, Mr. and Mrs. Leahigh will make their home in Washington.

The bride is a graduate of Georgetown Visitation Convent and Catholic University. The bridegroom is a graduate of St. Mary's School, Kansas, and received his M. A. and Ph. D. degrees at Georgetown University.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. J. B. Adams, of New York; Miss Alice McGough, of Westfield, N. J., and Miss Catherine Nolan, of Reading, Pa.

Mrs. Montanari, the widow of an Italian army officer, is the former Miss Helen Day, of Boston. Her mother, Mrs. Frank Day, is a frequent visitor to Washington. She and her daughter live in Vermont. For the past two years, Mr. Montanari was vice consul from Italy to Jibuti, in French Somaliland.

Paul Ferrarys On Honeymoon Trip in South

A lawyer and a physician were united in marriage yesterday when Miss Ethel Marie Kroger, daughter of Bernard Stephen Kroger and the late Mrs. Kroger, became the bride of Dr. Paul Bernard Ferrary. He is the son of Mrs. Anthony E. Ferrary and the late Mr. Ferrary.

The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock at the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Chevy Chase Circle, with the Rev. Thomas G. Smyth officiating. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white housseline de soie, fashioned with a gathered bodice. The sleeves and skirt of the gown were trimmed with rows of narrow satin ribbon. A toque of white tulle and a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley completed the costume.

Miss Kathryn Kroger Is Bride's Attendant

Carl Ferrary was best man for his brother, and there were no ushers. The mother of the bridegroom was gowned in navy blue embroidered in marquisette worn with matching hat and gloves. Her corsage was of red roses.

Shortly after the ceremony the newly wedded couple left for a motor trip through the mountains of North Carolina and Tennessee. At the conclusion of their honeymoon they will go to Totowa, N. J., where they will make their home. For her traveling costume, Mrs. Ferrary wore a black silk jersey frock, relieved with touches of white at neck and sleeves, and a box coat of white linen.

Bride Is Member Of District Bar

The bride attended the Immaculate Conception Academy and the Columbia University Law School, and she is a member of the bar of the District of Columbia.

Dr. Ferrary is a graduate of Georgetown University Medical School and is now located in Totowa, where his father was first mayor.

Business Girls Present 'Cap'n Ezry's Showboat'

Y. W. Group Gives Lively Entertainment With Music Provided by the 'Captivators;' Audience Joins in With Hissing for Numerous Villains.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

The audience as well as the players had part in last night's production of "Cap't Ezry's Showboat," by the Business Girls Department of the Y. W. C. A. It was given in Barker Hall, and singing between acts as well as hisses for the villains in the two melodramas on the program, represented the spectators' contribution.

The entertainment was gay from beginning to end and the music provided by "Cap'n Ezry's Captivators" made up in rhythm and melody whatever it may have lacked in the way of instrumentation. Marion Allen, wearing an impressive black beard as well as her band leader's suit, conducted.

Gill Picquette, who included a hairline moustache in her make-up, played a lively banjo. Others in the orchestra were Bertha Athanas, Elizabeth Pyle, Jean Carr, Libby Burner, Gertrude Howard, Virginia James, Alice Getty, Virginia Johnston and, at the piano, Helen Weitzel.

Margaret Hibble Acts as Captain

After a greeting by Cap'n Ezry, in the person of Margaret Hibble, the orchestra struck up and played three good old tunes which had the audience tapping its feet. Following this prelude, the curtains were opened for the first of the gripping melodramas, "The Fatal Necklace." Frances Lowe had the role of the heroine, a maid in the House of Spondilucks. Frances Nichol was the hero; Clair Pillish, the countess whose jewels they were accused of stealing; Marie de Novens, the villain, and Marye Power, the villainess, who really committeed the crime. Both evil-doers came to timely ends just before the show ended.

Punch was sold between acts by a group from the Business Girls Department, headed by Helen Sunday and Rosina Carlo. The audience divided its attention between refreshments and singing "O Them Golden Slippers," "Old Folks At Home" and other familiar airs, under the leadership of Miss Allen, who managed to conduct the orchestra and singers with equal skill.

After the intermission a Floradora group, including Frances Lowe, Marie de Novens, Marion Butler and Myrtle Thompson, opened the second half of the program. Their Floradora number was interrupted by Louise Hamby who appeared in shorts and illustrated the modern version of trucking, into which they joined with alacrity.

Western Theme In Second Play

The second melodrama was "Wild Nell, the Pet of the Plains—or The Final Sacrifice." Mabel Hutchins took the role of Nell and Florence Nichol that of Handsome Harry, the object of her affections. Marye Power was Lady Vere de Vere, with whom Harry falls in love, and to whom Nell gives him in the "final sacrifice." Three Indians in the cast are Sitting Bull, Sara Motley; Bull Durham, Mary Ann Putnam, and Hula Hula, Virginia James.

Just before the finale Margaret Mowbray sang a group of Showboat favorites, accompanied at the piano by Miss Weitzel. At the end all members of the cast, including the dead "villains, came out for a bow before the curtain.

The girls have been rehearsing since early in June for the performance, which was one of the jolliest and most successful of the summer season at the "Y. W."

Group Leaders Present Gift to Moose Regent

Columbia Unit Committee Chairmen Discuss Plans for Season.

Newly appointed committee chairmen of Columbia Chapter, Women of the Moose, met last night at the home of Mrs. Calvin Giles, senior regent, to discuss plans for the coming season and to present her with a birthday gift.

Each of the ten major committees will present a program on a chapter meeting night during the year. The following assignments were made for these programs: September, publicity; October, alumni; November, library; December, Moosehaven; January, membership; February, ritualistic; March, social service; April, homemaking; May, child care and training, and June, Mooseheart.

Monthly meetings will be held by the committee chairmen to map plans and set dates for the activities of the following month Each chairman will be hostess one month and invite the group to her home.

Mrs. May Sine, homemaking chairman, announced the details for the doll dressing contest to be sponsored by her committee next month, and said the dolls should be entered by August 1. She gave specifications for dressing the dolls and asked approval of her plan to send them, after the contest, to Mooseheart, to be given the girls there for Christmas.

The membership chairman, Mrs. H. J. Clark, proposed that her committee sponsor a social evening after a short business session of the chapter, August 26. Her plan was enthusiastically received. She requested the birthday chairman, Miss Margaret Mitchell, to assist her by including as a feature the celebration of the August chapter birthdays at that time.

It was proposed that the ritualistic committee have rehearsal once each week during August, to prepare for the State conference at Annapolis, September 2, 3, and 4, where the local chapter will have charge of the initiation ceremony when the conference class is presented. It will be composed of candidates from the various chapters in the jurisdiction of the Maryland and Border States Moose Association. New uniforms were advocated for this occasion and ritualistic chairman, Mrs. Anna Wagner, was authorized to submit specifications for them.

D. C. Goucher Club to Mark College's 50th Anniversary

Luncheon Set September 24 to Plan Unit's Share in Nation-wide Celebration to Be Held October 13-16.

The Goucher Club, of Washington, of which Mrs. G. R. Wilhelm is president, is preparing to join alumnae groups of the college throughout the country in observing the institution's fiftieth anniversary. The club will present a gift of money to the college on he occasion of the celebration, October 13 to 16.

Luncheon has been planned for September 24 by the Washington Alunmae, to complete arrangements for their participation in the golden jubilee.

Leading architects of the country were invited to submit plans for the removal of the college from its present location in Baltimore, to its new campus in Towson, Md. The jury of awards will announce the winners on October 14 and designs and plans will be displayed the following Saturday and Sunday in Goucher Hall.

Mrs. A. M. Armstrong is chairman of the committee in charge of promoting the local club's part of the celebration, assisted by Miss Isabel Baldwin, Miss Helen Dyer, Mrs. Leslie Gager, Mrs. E. O. Keller, Mrs. H. R. Harmon and Miss Frances B. Patten.

Club Established 19 Years Ago

The Coucher Club of Washington was organized in 1919. Before that time a group of alumnae had been meeting informally. Among those who were active in the early days of the club were Miss Alice Deal, for whom the junior high school was named; Miss Mary Owen Dean, Miss Mildred Dean, Mrs. Georgette Ross Howard, current events lecturer; Miss Mildred Ross, Miss Alice Wood, Miss Isabel Baldwin, Miss Edna Stone, Miss Lottie Magee, Mrs. George Sullivan, Mrs. John R. Yates and Mrs. Leslie Jackson.

Miss Jessie Wilson, later Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, also belonged to the club and entertained the members at the White House. Mrs. Howard is among the early members still actively interested in the organization.

The club has raised money for scholarships, furnished the Goucher Room at the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women, helped raise the first $1,000,000 endowment fund for the college, and has promoted Goucher interest among high school students of Washington.

Officers, in addition to the president, are Miss Ruth F. Kimball, vice president; Mrs. Miriam W. Chisholm, recording secretary; Miss Jane Crawford, corresponding secretary; Miss Sarah Regar, treasurer; Miss Edith Ray Saul, delegate to the alumnae council; Mrs. Cyril B. Smith, publicity chairman; Mrs. Armstrong, membership chairman; Miss Elizabeth Bourn, nominating chairman.

Other Meetings Are Scheduled

Plans for the year, besides the September luncheon, include the annual diner in February and a spring luncheon. In addition, the club has regular business and social meetings.

Madame Chairman

THE SOROPTIMIST CLUB has discontinued its regular luncheon meetings during July and August but that doesn't mean the members don't get together during the midsummer months. Every Wednesday there is a Dutch treat come-if-you-can luncheon at Willard Coffee Shop, where those still in town can enjoy a little gabfest. News is exchanged about members who are off on their vacations, and postal cards telling of their trips add interest to the gatherings.

Yesterday a letter was read from the mother of a little patient at Children's Hospital to whom a Soroptimist doll was recently sent. For the past three years, the club, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Marie Pierce, has sent a doll to little girls who have been injured and sent to the hospital.

The doll is dressed in a complete knitted outfit, made by Mrs. Pierce or one of the members of her committee, is then wrapped in celophane and tied with a ribbon, across which are the words "Soroptimist doll." Many letters of appreciation have come both from the children and their parents for the gifts.

Among those at yesterday's luncheon were Mrs. Agnes Newman, the club president; Mrs. E. Richard Gasch, recently elected second vice president of the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs; Mrs. Claudia Brown, Miss Sallie Dillard and Mrs. Rose Cohen.

MRS. ELLA S. KNIGHT, mother of Mrs. Gasch, who 26 years ago founded the Sunshine and Community Society and has long been one of the prominent club women of the Capital, has just returned from spending the winter in Florida with another daughter, Mrs. F. G. Aulsbrook. She makes her home with Mrs. Gasch and Mr. Gasch at 1638 R street.

MRS. CALVIN GILES, senior regent of Columbia Chapter, Women of the Moose, yesterday received a shower of handkerchiefs and greeting cards from members of the chapter on her birthday. The cards, with handkerchiefs inclosed, came to her by mail from her coworkers.

Mrs. Giles took office as senior regent the first of this month as a climax to her long service in other chapter activities over a period of years. She has been chairman of various committees, has served on the officers' escort, and was junior regent before being elected head of the chapter.

The Cure.

Who freedom doth at last regain
A panacea hath for pain.
—Old Mother Nature.

"We'll set our patient free this morning," announced Farmer Brown's Boy to his cousins, Sue and Sammy.

"Why?" they demanded in chorus, and then Sue begged that the young Fox be kept a little longer. "He's so pretty. Let's keep him a few days, Tommy," she concluded.

Tommy shook his head. "I don't like being a jailor," he said. As long as that hurt leg of his was in a bad way he was a patient in a hospital, but to keep him confined longer, now that the leg is practically well, would be to make him a prisoner, and that's different. He isn't happy and he won't be until he is free. Besides I am afraid to keep him longer—afraid that something will happen to his mother."

Tommy led the way to the pen where the young Fox was and pointed to the dead pullet lying on top of the pen. "His mother brought him that last night," said Tommy. "There is only one flock of hens of that kind anywhere in this neighborhood, so I know just where this one came from. Being from the city you wouldn't know that this is a fine specimen of a very choice breed, but that is what it is. The man who owns the hens is death on foxes, and when he discovers his loss he is going to lay for the thief, and that will be just too bad for Mrs. Reddy if she goes there again."

"I don't see what difference letting this fellow go will make," said Sammy.

"He is a prisoner now, so she thinks she must do it for him and that the best is none too good for him, but when he is free she'll stop worrying about him," explained Tommy. "And," he added, "she's too smart to be found fooling around a flock of hens when there is plenty of other food to be obtained, as there is at this time of the year."

Now as he paced back and forth in his den the Careless One, which was the name the young Fox had earned for himself, limped when he put the foot of that injured leg to the ground. Much of the time he didn't put that foot to the ground at all, but walked with three legs only. However, Tommy was sure that he could use that leg if he wanted to, and that once he was free he would want to.

"He should worry about that," grinned Tommy. "If his mother finds that he can't get enough to eat she'll see that he doesn't starve. You should know that after all she'll see that he doesn't starve. You should know that, after all she has brought him here where he didn't need it."

Down came that foot, and away he sped, straight for the shelter of the brush-grown Old Pasture.

"What are you going to do, just open the door and let him walk out?" asked Sammy.

"No," replied Tommy. "We'll take him over near the Old Pasture. He was born there and his mother and father are still living there."

So Tommy put on a pair of gloves and after some trouble caught the Careless One and, despite his struggles, held him firmly but gently. Then the three crossed the Green Meadows toward the Old Pasture. Just a short distance from this Tommy stopped. He put the young Fox down and released his hold. For a second the Careless One stood uncertain. Then he took a few steps on three feet, holding that injured hind leg up. Suddenly he realized that he was free. Down came that foot and away he sped straight for the shelter of the brush-grown Old Pasture, and he was using all four legs. The cure was complete. There was no doubt about that.

"What did I tell you?" said Tommy.

1,500 Expected for Convention Of Order of Job's Daughters

Washington Members Are Making Preparations for Conclave; Mrs. Elizabeth Warden, Supreme Guardian, to Preside.

Washington members of the Order of Job's Daughters are making preparation to do their part of entertaining the annual supreme session of the organization which is to be held here August 23, 24 and 25 at the Wardman Park Hotel. Approximately 1,500 members and delegates are expected to attend and Mrs. Elizabeth L. Warden, of Owosso, Mich., supreme guardian, will preside at the convention.

There are six Bethels in the Capital and these will be joined by the branches in Maryland and Virginia in acting as hostesses for the conclave. Mrs. Laura Wallace, past grand guardian of the District of Columbia heads the hostess committee. Serving with her will be Mrs. Adah Kennedy, past grand guardian of Maryland, and Mrs. Vera New, past grand guardian of Virginia.

The various Bethels are making plans for the convention, one of the features of which will be an exhibition in which drill teams of the District, Chicago, Ill., and from Wisconsin, will participate. It will be presented on the grounds of Wardman Park as one of the evening programs during the session, and it is expected to be among the most colorful of the ceremonies held.

The committee in charge of the local arrangements for the supreme session includes William Dunham, of the District of Columbia, Francis Crown, of Maryland and Louis Carl, of Virginia. The Job's Daughters are sponsored by the Masonic Order and the Order of the Eastern Star and membership is restricted to daughters of members of those organizations. The guardian councils are composed of adults who are members of the two orders.

Supreme officers, in addition to Mrs. Warden are associate supreme guardian, Edward Schauer, of Hartford, Wis.; vice supreme guardian, Mrs. M. V. Thompson, of Hyattsville, Md., who will be installed as supreme guardian during the session; and vice associate supreme guardian, Edward H. Way, of Boise, Idaho.

Among those who will speak on the opening day of the session, are Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, of the District of Columbia; Eugene Thompson, deputy grand master of Masons of the District; Mrs. Helen Robbins, worthy grand matron, O. E. S., of the District of Columbia, and Mrs. Flora Campbell, right worthy grand treasurer of the General Grand Chapter, O. E. S.

*X WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, JULY 21, 1938 19

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

"The best catcher in baseball" gets the job as manager of the Chicago Cubs. Leo (Gabby) Hartnett is called that by Clark Griffith, who has given 50 years of his life, man and boy, to the study of baseball talent.

POVICH.

Griffith's estimate of Hartnett's skill is not necessary, of course, as complete evidence of the fellow's superior talents. It has long been suspected in big league circles that the fat fellow with the Cubs has been tops among baseball catchers. But the Griffith stamp of approval is by no means insignificant.

But when the Old Fox, whose hate for anything that bears the National League stamp is exceeded only by his fondness for the American League, passes up the whole kit and kaboodle of American League catchers and picks out a National Leaguer as the No. 1 backstop in the land, that is something to ponder. And Griffith is emphatic in his rating of Hartnett.

"He is the best!" said the Old Fox no longer ago than the All-Star game at Griffith Stadium last summer. "Lord, he's wonderful to watch. I'd pay my way into a ball park just to see him work behind the plate! Sure, he's big and slowing up, but he's still the best. I rank him with Kling and Bresnahan and . . . well, there aren't any others in Hartnett's class."

Move Anticipated.

The move by Phil Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, in deposing Charley Grimm and promoting the big, bumptious Hartnett to the managerial job yesterday is not exactly staggering in its surprise. It was anticipated.

It was anticipated as early as last winter when Wrigley signed the veteran Tony Lazzeri as a player, coach and a member of the Cubs "board of strategy." According to Wrigley, Lazzeri, long known as a winning ball player, would inject the fire and dash that the Cub teams traditionally lacked.

That announcement that the Cubs' owner was virtually tantamount to an admission that Grimm, his manager, lacked the faculty of inspiring his ball team. But rumblings of dissatisfaction were immediately heard in Chicago. The fans there saw no need for the acquisition of Lazzeri. They had a fellow on the Cubs who could inject a winning spirit into the club if given the chance.

Name No Accident.

They meant, of course, big, amiable Gabby Hartnett. To a generation of North Side fans, Hartnett was nothing less than an idol. The fleshy catcher didn't come by the name of Gabby by accident. His constant chatter, as he worked behind the plate, his penchant for speaking out, made him something of a leader with the Cubs, to say nothing of his smart catching and his potent bat.

There were early predictions that the Cubs' board of strategy would never work out. Strategical boards never do in baseball. Pictures were drawn of Grimm, Lazzeri and Hartnett conferring in the dugout on tactical maneuvers and Grimm being outvoted by his underlings. Wrigley's idea was ridiculed.

In obtaining Lazzeri there was reason for belief that Wrigley, himself, had been more than mildly convinced that the American League brand of baseball was superior. The impression grew that he favored Lazzeri as Grimm's successor and there were reports that it was only on those terms that Lazzeri signed. But the great furore raised by Hartnett fans cooled Wrigley's fondness for Lazzeri as manager. He didn't quite dare to pass up Hartnett.

Won Two Pennants.

Charley Grimm won two pennants with the Cubs—in 1932 and 1935—but he lost both World Series. No manager in either league ever had quite the favorable working conditions that Grimm had. He had full entre to Wrigley's office and he only had to name a player who could be bought and Wrigley bought him, regardless of the price. Yet Grimm, in a sense, failed to produce.

Dizzy Dean, as much as anybody else, cost Grimm his job as the Cubs' manager. After the acquisition of Dean, Grimm seemingly had the formula for a pennant-winning team. And had Dean not been in storage for two months with his sore arm, the Cubs now might be comfortably out in front of the pennant race with Grimm's job secure.

A Nice Spot.

Hartnett is taking over the Cubs in a great spot. His team is only 5½ games out of the lead, the Giants are crying to get licked, and Dizzy Dean apparently is back in form. The suspicion is that Hartnett can win the pennant with the Cubs.

Around the league Gabby has always been a popular fellow, but the players in both big leagues can blame him for those frequent $10 fines handed out by the league presidents to players detected in friendly conversation with other players or with spectators. Gabby put a stop to that, fraternizing. He stopped it by posing for pictures with a box-seat fan, who happened to be Al Capone. Judge Landis didn't like that a bit.

Stahl Wins Crown.

Smith is on Flaherty's left and Malone is the gent at the extreme right. Flaherty will be interviewed today at a luncheon for the press at Harvey's. He will then immediately start on plans for the Redskins' training.

'Change Is Necessary,' Says Owner

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 20.—Charles Leo (Gabby) Hartnett was named manager of the Chicago Cubs, replacing Charlie Grimm, owner Phil K. Wrigley announced late today. Hartnett will take charge of the club tomorrow.

Wrigley announced that Grimm, manager since midseason of 1932 when he replaced Rogers Hornsby, had been released outright. He will draw salary, however, on a contract which expires December 31.

Wrigley said he had not yet made a new contract arrangement with Hartnett.

"The decision to change was not a sudden one," the Cub owner said. "I have been thinking about it for some time. In fact, I have thought about it so much that I have lost sleep, and have almost lost my appetite.

"Charlie Grimm has done a swell job, but I decided that a change would be best for the organization. Grimm gave us everything he had, but the club has not done as well as we felt it should."

"Contrary to a rather general belief," he said, "I am very much interested in the Chicago National League Baseball club, and this caused me to make a change.

"I had decided a change would be of advantage to the club, and if anything was to be done, it should be done now.

"I believe the man who can do the most for the club is Leo Hartnett."

League's Best Catcher.

Hartnett, regarded as the best catcher in the National League, has been with the Cubs 17 years.

Grimm, one of the greatest fielding first basemen of all time, became manager in August, 1932, when the Cubs front office decided Hornsby could be of no more use.

Under Grimm's leadership, the club moved from six games behind and with a 14-game winning spurt in the final weeks of the season, to clinch the league championship, but lost four straight to New York in the World Series.

Chicago finished third in 1933 and 1934, won another pennant with a 21-game winning streak in 1935, finished in a tie with St. Louis for second place in 1936, and finished in second place last year.

Grimm broke into the major league in 1916 as an outfielder with the Philadelphia Athletics. He went to Durham the next season, had a brief trial with the St. Louis Cardinals, then went to Little Rock in the Southern Association for two seasons before he was picked by Pittsburgh and became a star.

"Retired" in 1935.

The Cubs brought him to Chicago in 1925 and he remained at first base, a defensive giant, until the "miseries" in his back forced him to retire from active playing in 1935.

Despite physical pain, however, Grimm came back for a short time in 1936 when Phil Cavarretta, his find in 1936, slumped suddenly and failed to recover.

Hartnett, for 15 years the big punch in the Cubs' attack, was voted the most valuable player in the National League in 1935.

Gabby Gets Job— Late for Dinner!

"I called her up," Gabby said, "and told her I'd be late for dinner because I'd just been made manager.

"She didn't believe me at first, but when I convinced her, I thought she was going to have hysterics."

Cardinals Beat Giants Twice, 7 to 2 and 7 to 1

Clyde Shoun Allows Terry's Crew Only 4 Hits in Opener; Johnny Mize Drives Out 3 Homers in Nightcap.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, July 20.—The Cardinals became the gas house gang again for a day, and knocked the New York Giants a game and a half out of the National League lead by sweeping both ends of a double-header from Bill Terry's outfit today.

The combination of southpaw pitching, as turned in by Clyde Shoun and Bob Weiland, plus the big bat of Johnny Mize, who clouted three homers in the nightcap, proved too much for the Giants. It was the second time this year the Cards had trounced the Terrymen in a twin bill.

Shoun tossed a four-hitter in the first game, while his mates tagged Cliff Melton and Walt Brown for 11 safeties. A 5-run rally in the third, sparked by Terry Moore's homer, put the game on ice for the Gas House Gangsters. The New York runs came on homers by Hank Leiber and Bob Seeds.

In the nightcap, Weiland fanned ten and was rarely in trouble. Mize hit his first homer in the opening frame with two mates on board, and followed that wallop with a four-bagger each in the fourth and eighth with the sacks empty. Clyde Castleman was the losing pitcher. Mel Ott hit a homer for the Giants.

By dropping both ends of the bargain bill the Giants fell to a full game and a half back of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who split their double-header with the Phillies.

Buck Newsom Is Out With Fractured Thumb

St. Louis, July 20 (AP).—Buck Newsom, the St. Louis Browns' leading pitcher, was back home today with a fractured right thumb. He will be lost to the team for 10 days or more.

Buck suffered the injury about two weeks ago, but he paid no attention to it and pitched four games before he had an X-ray picture taken of the thumb.

Bucs Divide Two Games With Phillies

Drop First Contest in 11-0 Shutout, Take Second, 4-1.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, July 20.—Upset, 11 to 0, by the lowly Philadelphia Phillies today, Pittsburgh came back in the second game of a double-header to win it, 4 to 1, and retain its narrow lead over the Giants for first place.

The Phillies ran wild in the fourth inning of the first game after Bob Klinger walked the first batter and threw late twice on attempted sacrifices, to fill the bases.

Before the frame was over Klinger, "Fireman" Mace Brown, ace Pirate relief man, and Sewell, had been batted out of the box, the Phils had ten runs and Gil Brack had equaled a major league record by rapping out two doubles in one inning.

Bucky Jordan, who got three hits in the first contest and two in the second, put the Phils ahead in the third inning of the second game by scoring a run which loomed large with Pete Sivess pitching shutout ball for five innings.

Gus Suhr parked one into the rightfield stands in the sixth, to tie the score. His mates clinched the victory in the next inning by bunching three hits off Sivess and Syl Johnson for two runs, and adding another marker in the eighth.

Russ Bauers pitched steadily throughout, yielding but five hits.

Having already served up two featherweight matches in a row, Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn offers another Monday night at Griffith Stadium with Al Reid meeting Paul (Tennessee) Lee, the Nashville boxer.

The District Boxing Commission yesterday approved the eight-round battle between Reid, the seventh ranking N. B. A. featherweight, and Lee. It will be the third of N. B. A.-sanctioned elimination tournament matches here.

Coming here unheralded on the Archibald-Belloise card, Lee scored a surprising and convincing victory over the tough Chicago stylist, Armando Sicilia, in an eight-round semiwindup.

Lee has fought all of the better-known scrappers, including Belloise, Vince Dell 'Orto, Freddy Miller, former champion; Everett Rightmire, Yucatan Kid, Young Jack Sharkey and Henry Hook.

Lee, who thinks so much of Washington that he has made it his home, said to Matchmaker Ahearn last night:

"If Scalzo and Dupre are two of the best feathers in your tournament—you might as well get that featherweight title ready for me, right now. I'd fight a house full of 'em each night."

Reid needs little introduction to Washingtonians. In his last appearance here the Jewish fighter, who is handled by Sammy Goldman, manager of Tony Canzoneri, administered a thrashing to Tony Dupre, Scalzo's conqueror last Monday night.

But aside from his victory over Dupre, which came a few months ago at Turner's Arena, he boxed two draws with Belloise, and scored his most notable triumph Monday night in New York over Nat Litfin, the youngster who recently walloped Sixto Escobar, world's bantamweight champion.

Lee also scraps on the same style of Reid, and thus does the Monday 8-rounder shape up as another spectacular featherweight bout at the Stadium.

Though unranked by the N. B. A., Lee has a chance to carve a place for himself among the first ten with a victory over Reid.

'Battle Royal' Features Mat Program at the Ball Park.

A new high in mat mayhem, or something, is expected to be set tonight at Griffith Stadium, where Cliff Olson, former world's wrestling champion, meets Jack League, a new matman from Texas, in the feature match, and five grapplers clash in a "battle royal."

While Olson and League will command the attention of mat fans in their headline battle, the "rassle-royal," first ever staged in Washington, may steal the show.

The Olson-League bout should be no ordinary affair, inasmuch as the two wrestlers have been at odds over since they worked up a synthetic hatred for one another in George Bothner's New York gym a few seasons ago.

The story, as told by Olson, is that League tried to use "unfair" tactics on Cliff while the Minnesotan was training for a "championship" bout. A fist fight was reported.

Two weeks ago Promoter Turner matched Olson against League in a special 30-minute match, and they wrestled to a draw. Last week after League had pinned Bill Middlekauf, he met Olson at the entrance to the tunnel leading to the dressing room and again their feud was "revived."

The battle royal, an innovation in Washington but successful in the East and on the Pacific Coast, will find Paul Bosch, Reb Russell, Mike Brennan, Felix Slavitowski and Sammy Menacher—all experienced performers.

Two other bouts are on the card. Hank Barber, the former Dartmouth athlete, meets Wally Dusek, a cousin of the four Dusek "rioteers." Ed Meske, the Ohioan, makes his 1938 debut in a bout with Al Getz.

According to the rules mapped out by Promoter Turner for his "battle royal" four of the wrestlers will occupy posts in the ring just before the bout starts. The fifth may stand wherever he desires. Cyclone Burns, of Baltimore, will referee. A wrestler is "through" either when pinned or tossed out of the ring, Turner stated.

No holds will be barred in the "battle royal."

Nationals' Second Sacker Put Out at Third

Al Simmons Hits Homer, Starts Rally

By Shirley Povich.

Nor rain, nor mud nor the Detroit Tigers could halt the Nats yesterday. In a setting usually associated with regattas, with water underfoot and in their faces, and the umpires showing a kindly tolerance, the Nats waded into the pitching of two Detroit hurlers and licked the Tigers, 7 to 2.

Umpire in Chief Bill McGowan, grimly determined that the game be played despite a young cloudburst that made a bog of the infield, waited for 20 minutes after regular game time for the skies to clear and then sent the athletes out into a drizzle to start the contest.

Sharp Fielding Helps.

With seeming unconcern for the treacherous footing of the pitchers' mound, where he was ankle deep in goo, Wesley Cheek Ferrell came up with one of his better pitching performances. He held the Tigers to nine hits and only once during the proceedings—in the sixth inning—did he evoke the boos of the 3,000 customers who, at the finish, were applauding the unpopular fellow.

Like the Tigers, the Nats also were held to nine hits, but they benefitted from 10 bases on balls yielded by Baron Poffenberger and Roxie Lawson, who had none of Ferrell's mastery of the wet ball. Four of the walks they issued figured in Washington runs.

In scoring his twelfth pitching triumph of the season, Ferrell was helped by brilliant bits of fielding support in the sixth inning when the Tigers threatened to wipe out his 3-1 lead and swat him off the premises and into an early shower.

In that fifth inning, the first three men to face Ferrell—York, Fox and Morgan—slammed out singles and cut the Nats' lead to 3-2. They made a fourth straight hit when Christman beat out a bunt on the sodden turf and filled the bases with none out.

Then the Tigers' uprising collapsed suddenly—almost evolving into a triple play. Pitcher Lawson, attempting to bunt, tapped a soft line drive to Buddy Lewis who rushed in to make the catch at his shoetops with his gloved hand. In an attempt to double Morgan off second, Lewis pulled Buddy Myer off the bag, but Fox, who had dashed home on Lawson's bunt, was en route to the dug-out and an easy double-play victim when Ossie Bluege raced over to third to take a throw from Myer.

Simmons' Bat Booms.

With a pair of men still on base, Ferrell loaded the bags by passing White, but with the dangerous Bill Rogell at bat, Jimmy Wasdell snatched a hot smash out of the mud between first and second and beat Rogell to the bag to retire the side and protect Ferrell's 3-2 lead.

The game produced a twin awakening for the Nats. In addition to Ferrell, another receding hero—Al Simmons—emerged from a slump. Simmons, with the catcalls of the wolfish customers dinnig in his ears, authored the longest wallop of the day—a tremendous line drive home run into the leftfield bleachers, his twelfth of the season, which touched off a game-clinching three-run rally of the Nats against Lawson in the seventh ining.

Baron Poffenberger, Mickey Cochrane's pitching choice, wasn't around long. After the Nats arrived at bat in the first inning, the first man out was Poffenberger himself. Cochrane took him out, with the Nats possessing a 1-to-0 lead. Poffenberger having forced the run in by walking Simmons after filling the bases on infield hits by Case and West and a walk to Lewis.

Wesley Drives in Run.

The Nats picked up a second run in the inning against Lawson, and in the third the Tigers cut a one-run chunk out of Ferrell's 2-0 lead when Rogell doubled against the rightfield wall. But the Nats got that run back in the fourth when Bluege singled, Wes Ferrell walked and Case singled.

Lady's Favor Wins Hamilton Hotel Purse, Feature at Hagerstown

6-Year-Old Mare Takes Race Easily

Frowned On in Betting, Winner Pays $23.60 Ticket to Few.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Fair Grounds, Hagerstown, Md., July 20.—Lady's Favor, H. M. Simpson's mare, after being shipped to Delaware Park for little more than the ride, found light weight and Jockey Leon Garrett's riding to her liking and ran off with one of the best fields of the meeting in the Hamilton Hotel Purse. Frowned on by a majority of the bettors, the 6-year-old daughter of Mars paid a $23.60 mutuel while winning by three lengths.

Justa Flight did a lot of hustling to get to the front, only to have Garrett and Lady's Favor go past him like the breeze. The Flying Ebony gelding lasted to be second ahead of Royal Business.

The winner had been away from the winner's circle since she had to share a purse as the result of a dead heat with Buck Langhorne at Charles Town. She turned in time of 1:52 3-5 over the mile and sixteenth course. The track was fast despite the fact that the afternoon was marked by light, intermittent showers.

Mahi set the early pace but fell victim to too much hustling and Justa Flight took up the burden of the running only to bow to Lady's Favor's closing rush. Shot Up had some trouble in the running. Palumbo being forced to pull up sharply when in close quarters.

Jockey Lou Machado drew a suspension for the remainder of the meeting and possibly longer as the result of fouling in the first race. The stewards blamed Machado, riding Asterisk, for crowding Mr. Fingers into the fence. The gelding suffered a cut stifle, and Jockey Willie Obert, his rider, bruised his leg. Machado's case was referred to the Maryland Racing Commission.

The race was won by Roman Boy, a first-time starter, in the colors of P. H. Faulconer. A son of Ha Ha, the colt was a hot paddock tip, and led throughout, to pay $5.60. Some Groucher was second, with Asterisk third. The latter was disqualified, moving Mr. Fingers into third money.

Those who teamed Roman Boy with Lead Please, the second race favorite, cashed a $21.90 daily double. Lead Please came to the inside to get by Lilteen and win by two lengths going away. Anya was third. Lead Please, ridden by Machado, paid $4.80.

Dear Al:

The local jockey colony drew five new members today. George Miller, J. W. Frye, H. Gower and R. Klein arrived from Thistledown, while J. Butler got in from Canada. Jockey Alfred Gaither left for Baltimore today. He was called home because of a death in his family. Jockey Mannie Berg received word that he has been suspended by the Maryland Racing Commission until August 27. Jockey Lou Machado, suspended today, will be lucky if he gets off with less. Betting here has picked up since last week. Contrary to some opinions, the Hagerstown running surface is a good one. All tracks are dangerous when deep in mud as was the case here early last week. The head-on crash of Miss Adeline and Glowing Coal last week was caused by horsemen who tried to catch Miss Adeline while she was running loose. They inadvertently shied her from the outside fence to the center of the track and in front of the on-coming field. Miss Adeline fell the first time because she stumbled. She was notorious for her bad knees, which led to her being sold for $50 before she ever reached a track. Starter Gregory has been going along pretty smoothly here. Topsie H. beat his gate the other day, but the mare was standing and shot out of the gate just before he pressed the bell. I understand there is a mare racing here which is in foal. She has been performing well, too. Her big moment comes next spring. Here's some I will be trying to root home tomorrow.

BILL.

First race—Schley Buck turned in a good effort last out despite some poor racing luck. With clear sailing this one should score. Boulder Dam is fit and likes this track. Packaway to take care of the minor award.

Second race—Disown is probably the favorite and the probable winner in this race. Needs only the right handling. Aella, first on the reserve list, would have to be dealt with if in action. Baby Witt has worked well but seems too highly placed.

Third race—Buckley's Pride is far down the also eligible list but horses thus placed in the entries have gotten in before. This one would tie this field in knots I believe. Cautious Bo likes the course and is dangerous. White Sweets should better Charles Town races here.

Fourth race—Ruth Lerner hasn't shown me the speed here that she did at Delaware Park but I'm waiting for the awakening. With light weight this looks like the spot. Adriatic downed better than these at the other track. Xmas Carol has speed when the checks are down.

Fifth race—Gemwick was poorly handled last out and closed with a rush. With better handling I look for a victory. Dun Lucky, with Buddy Root riding, appears to be a threat. Meridian Time has been too consistent to disregard at the light weight.

Sixth race—Helen Bab, will have Palumbo to do the booting and I expect a winning effort. Stepee's last was a beaut and deserves attention. Sea Finn made his move too soon last out and will be a threat if handled properly.

Seventh race—Petee Lad picks up weight and meets a tough customer in Pretty Lass but I'm going to string along. The latter is in good shape. Elise has plenty of speed and could surprise.

Eighth race — (Substitute — Lula Khayyam had plenty of trouble in her last. If this race is used, she should take the main money. Cats Cradle and Topsie H. for the remainder.

Down In Front

By Richards Vidmer.

Now You Tell One.

New York, July 20.—Not the least amazing thing in connection with the most amazing flight of Douglas (Come Again) Corrigan to Ireland, by way of California, is his election to the very exclusive Liars Club, of Burlington, Wis. And if his story that he thought he was headed west when he was flying east serves as sufficient qualification for membership, I would like to make a few nominations of my own.

VIDMER.

How about Lawson Robertson, for instance? The Pennsylvania coach insists that there once was a decathlon duel between a strong man named Shaun, known as the Bullock, and a speed demon named Con, known as the Greyhound. It seems they battled right down to the pole vault with Shaun winning all the field events and Con taking all the track events, and that finally Shaun triumphed when he yanked up an oak tree by the roots, dashed down the runway and vaulted so high that he went through a cloud and came down wringing wet.

The late Don Skene certainly should have qaulified. He could spin tall tales by the hour, even oftener if the hour was late enough. Just as a sample, there was his story about the sure thing fight manager who sent his battler into a small town contest with his right glove weighted with 200 pounds of leaded tire tape, cement soaked gauze and part of a percheron's shoe.

Scatter the Enemy.

But the first man to qualify for a football story should be the press agent of the University of Kentucky, whose name escapes me at the moment. He came up here a couple of years ago and told about the great halfback from the bluegrass country that they called Man o' War Davis.

"He's terrific," said the P. A., without a smile. "There's nothing he can't do and he does a lot of things you wouldn't believe unless you saw them yourself. Why, just a couple of weeks ago we were playing Clemson. It was a tough game, a scoreless tie, and then finally Davis got loose.

"He broke past the line of scrimmage, shook off the secondary men and was headed for a touchdown. Only two men are between him and the goal line. One was closing in from the right, one from the left, and they would reach him at just about the same instant. What was he to do? He couldn't do anything but go straight ahead and it looked as though he would be cornered. But what did he do? I'll tell you. Just as he got to them, he tossed the ball in the air, stiff-armed one with his right hand, stiff-armed the other with his left, caught the ball again and galloped on with a clear field before him."

Then I would like to nominate James J. Johnston, not because of his display of imagination in connection with Bob Pastor's murderous abilities, but because of the story he tells about the wrestler who, finding himself all snarled up and on the verge of being thrown, suddenly saw a neck within reach, sunk his teeth in it and let out a terrific howl of anguish as he suddenly realized that it was his own.

Speed to Burn.

The late George Daley might also have qualified unintentionally, for he was fully convinced that his memory was not at fault when he maintained that once Ty Cobb had scored from first on a bunt without an error being made.

"Cobb was on first," George used to say, "and the hit and run signal was on. He got a good start for second. The batter bunted to the third baseman who threw him out, but Cobb rounded second, almost reached third by the time the first baseman got the ball, and continued home when it was thrown to third to head him off. The third baseman whipped the ball to the catcher, of course, but it was too late. Cobb beat it with a hook slide. It's hard to believe how fast Cobb really was."

And as another entry there is Raymond Wise, of Washington, who once told me about a smart jockey that beat him out of a bet. It seems the horse that this jockey was riding was facing the wrong way when the barrier was sprung, but with a sudden burst of inspiration he gave his mount the whip and set off in the wrong direction. He had the track all to himself, with no horses to come around or hinder his ride. He met the field, head on, at the halfway mark, but rode right through it and reached the judges stand ahead of the real winner—Wise's choice.

"But it was a mile race," Raymond concluded, "and that other horse had completed the distance, and so they had to give him the decision."

There are, of course, a great many more nominations for the Liars Club from the sphere of sports, but these will do for the time being. In comparison Come Again Corrigan seems like the man for whom Diogenes was searching all the time.

Mrs. Giles Wins Beaver Dam Play; Gartner Shoots 67.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

A pro sweepstakes event attracting 16 of the city's leading links tutors is on the Sunday afternoon golf card at East Potomac.

Four foursomes will tee off, starting at 2:30 p. m., with the low scorers winning a pot that will include an ante from each entry and a purse from the host course manager, Tommy Doerer, jr. The public is invited to the renewal of the popular Sunday afternoon exhibitions of last year, with the field doubled.

Play will be over the lengthened and toughened B and D courses, scene of the Public Links championship next week, and the East Potomac golfers are sure their revised nines, measuring 6,697 yards, will stand up before the pro brigade's subpar tactics.

Beaver Dam Event To Mrs. K. S. Giles.

Mrs. K. S. Giles, Indian Spring, won the low net prize in the ladies' guest tournament at Beaver Dam yesterday, the Four Corners Club southpaw shooting an 89 over the lengthy layout, and deducting a seven handicap for an 82. Mrs. J. T. Powell, Manor, was second with 98—13, 85.

Mrs. H. P. Sharp, Indian Spring, won the selective holes event in a draw from Mrs. Frank Kennedy, Indian Spring, and Mrs. Powell.

Mrs. Charles E. McGowan and Mrs. Albert Haas tied for low net in the nine-hole event for the club members, with Mrs. George Luce winning the low putts award and Mrs. Charles Range and Mrs. Charles Griffin splitting the low and high score on blind holes prizes.

Gartner Shoots 67, Including Nine 3's.

William (Grumpy) Gartner, aide to Al Treder in the Manor Golf Shop, set a mark for his boss to shoot at yesterday, a three-under par 67 that included nine 3's over the 18 holes.

With the new 444-yard fourth hole now in play for the first time, Gartner's score is a new unofficial record over the layout that measures 6,315 yards. Harvey Johnson had a 66 when the course was revised in May.

Four par threes, four birdie threes and an eagle three on the fifth hole were included in Gartner's card, that found him over regulation figures on the first, third and fourteenth. Eddie Stevens, Ralph Gibson, Fred Whelan and George Ault played—and payed.

His card:

Out .... 5 3 4 3 3 4 3 3 5—33
In .... 4 3 4 3 5 5 3 3 4—34, 67.

Columbia Host To State Event.

A new event to the Maryland State Golf Association's schedule, a one-ball, selective drive and alternate shot tournament, will be played today over the Columbia course and should draw a sizeable field from this city and Baltimore.

The event will be a two-man team affair, with the participants allowed one-half the combined handicap. The choice of tee shots and alternate shots until the next tee will be played.

Contestants must have a Maryland State Golf Association handicap card. The entry fee for the one-day event is $1. Merchandise prizes will be awarded.

Virginians Booking.

Glen Isle Plays Host.

The Prince Georges Athletic Club nine will meet the strong Glen Isle team Sunday at 3 p. m., on the latter's diamond.

A Day for Ping Pong, Boys!

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Johnny Allen (right) and Frank Pytlak were all set to give the Yanks a shellacking yesterday, but rain changed their plans, and here the Indian hurler and the only receiver he'll throw to decide from their hotel window that they'd better play ping pong, or something.

Women Urge Teams of Ten

Local Golf Body May Revise Play.

A radical change in the style of play of the Women's District Golf Association team matches for next year was recommended at a meeting of the team captains, headed by Mrs. Noble J. Waldron, District team captain.

The principal recommendation was that any club entering the team competition must put a first team of ten players in play or be barred in the second or third team classes. The vote was unanimous to place the revised system of play before the new administration.

Last year's first team play was a two-club affair, with only Indian Spring and Chevy Chase entering, compared with the nearly full slate of second and third teams.

Heretofore the play has been in teams of six. Several of the clubs declined to enter the first team play, as on paper their line-ups would be considered weaker. But under the ten-women teams, the captains felt the addition of four players would equalize the possibility of top-heavy strength in the first four or five players.

Should the proposal be passed at the annual meeting, next year's schedule would be the biggest in the several year history of the team matches, and should every member club of the association enter three teams, or 22 players, the competition would rival any women's golf association in the country.

Another recommendation was for a standing committee for team problems, to be composed of a delegate from each club.—M. W. W.

Maryland Poloists, War Department, Reach Semifinals

The Maryland Polo Club and the War Department team advanced to the semifinals of the Southeastern Circuit polo tournament here yesterday.

Playing in the rain, the Maryland club defeated the Quantico Marines, 7 to 6, in two overtime periods. The Marines had come from behind to tie the score at 6-all in the regulation time.

The War Department defeated the Fauquier-Loudoun Polo Club, 10 to 9. The winning team had a two goal handicap.

Next Sunday the West Shore Team of Camp Hill, Pa., and the Third Cavalry of Fort Myer will play to enter the finals and a week later the Maryland Club and the War Department will determine the other finalist.

Sandlot Pickups

One of the classiest exhibitions of mound work that the National City League has offered up this season was brought to our attention recently . . . John DeBettencourt has started and finished six consecutive games for the Fairfax Farms Dairy nine, which won the League A crown with six wins and no defeats . . . In other words, John won the first-half title single-handedly . . . And he is very stingy with his hits, usually allowing four or five . . . Kleins will tell you all about it, as they mustered exactly five in the title tilt.

• • • •

Another young lad by the name of Dizzy DeZerne has been doing himself proud during the past two weeks . . . Dizzy, you know, was Central's ace hurler, but he could not seem to get going in the Interhigh series . . . But it is a different story now . . . In his last start DeZerne allowed only three hits to the Deoudes Celery nine as his club, the No. 10 Police Boys, won, 3-0. . . . He is the big reason why the Police crew is leading the National City Junior League.

George Barry, captain and centerfielder for the Federal Bureau of Investigation nine, is still stinging the ball at a merry pace . . . He got three hits in four trips to the plate, but his club lost, 11 to 6, to the District Commissioners. . . . In this same game, there were seven home runs made, the largest number collected in any one engagement this season. . . . Busher, centerfielder; Deavers, second baseman; Noone, leftfielder, and Guethler, rightfielder, all of the District Commissioners squad, and Beall, first baseman; Routon, shortstop, and Luther, rightfielder, of F. B. I., were the circuit smackers. . . .

Thirdbaseman Preston, of Procurement Division, slammed a double and two singles in four attempts to lead his mates to a win over the Government Printing Office nine in a Departmental League tussle. . . . Shortstop Gartland duplicated Preston's feat for the losers. . . . I. Bethel had a perfect day at bat collecting a homer, double, and single in three tries to aid the Ramblers Athletic Club in downing the Stewart nine, 6 to 4. . . . Joe Marceron, Tex Tavern mask wearer, sent four pitched balls back into safe territory in five appearances at the plate as the Gambrill Athletic Club team bowed, 10 to 8, in an Independent set-to.

Phil Daugherty Signed.

Chicago, July 20 (AP).—The Chicago Cardinals, National Professional Football League team, announced today the signing of Phil Daugherty, former Santa Clara University center, and the release of seven players.

West's 3-Run Homer Wins in 9th.

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, July 20.—Max West hit a home run with two men aboard in the ninth inning to give the Boston Bees a 4-to-3 win over Johnny (No-Hit) Vander Meer and the Cincinati Reds in an arc-light game here tonight. Vandy allowed the Bees five hits.

tional League in 1935. He was credited with much of the success of the Chicago pitchers who took their regular turn down the 21-game stretch that won the National League championship in 1935.

Roly-poly Gabby was forced out several times in 1936 with injuries but maintained a batting average of .307.

Hartnett's slugging and exceptional throwing to the bases caught the eyes of major league scouts at Worcester, Mass., late in 1922 and the Cubs brought him up at once. He clicked the first year and has been one of the main attractions at Wrigley Field ever since.

Today marked the first managerial change to occur in the Cubs' line-up since Wrigley took over the club presidency. Grimm was hired by the late William Veeck, who preceded Wrigley as president.

Wrigley's announcement was made in the presence of both Grimm and Hartnett.

The chewing gum magnate, who inherited both the Cubs and his business from his father, said he called Grimm to his North Side home at 3 p. m. to tell him that he had decided to make a change.

"I waited so long," he said, "because I couldn't decide what was best for the team."

Grimm told newsmen he hoped to remain in baseball and would "stick around at least a few days to give Hartnett any help he may need in getting started."

Charlie Hails Successor.

There was no animosity apparent between the two men, and at conclusion of the conference Grimm said to his former catcher:

As the two shook hands, Grimm remarked:

"Nothing will come between our friendship."

Hartnett made no announcement except to say that as manager tomorrow he would not catch both games of the double-header with Brooklyn.

No mention was made of the money Hartnett will receive nor of the arrangements to dispose of Grimm's contract.

(Each day, Arch McDonald distributes 10 points among the Nats whose play was most helpful to the Washington Club. At the end of each month The Washington Post will award to the leading player a gift in token of the honor of being The Post-Wheaties "Man of the Month.")

George Case, consistent figure in the Nats' batting attack in recent weeks, neared the lead in the Man of the Month contest yesterday, reducing Buddy Myer's margin to three points. The point awards following the Nats' triumph over the Tigers yesterday are:

To Wes Ferrell, five points, because he held the Tigers in check with a nine-hit ball game, because he walked only five despite handling a wet ball, and because he drove in one of the Nats' runs with a fly ball to the base of the centerfield stands.

To Case, two points, because he collected three of the Nats' nine hits, scored the first run and figured in another.

To Rick Ferrell, one point, because he helped to clinch the game by driving in two runs with his two bagger in the seventh.

To Al Simmons, one point, because he hit the game's longest ball, a homer into the leftfield stands in the seventh to boost the Nats' lead to the comforting figures of 5-2.

To Buddy Lewis, one point, because he made a brilliant play on Lawson's bunt in the sixth when the bases were full and the Nats leading by only a run, and because he turned it into a double play.

The Score.

'Deac' Parsons and Welsh Win In West Virginia Tennis Play

19-Year-Old Boy Wonder Beats Blickle, His Mentor; Rockville Ace Trims Brown.

By the Associated Press.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., July 20.—Once again Deacon Parsons, of Huntington, moved ahead of his old teacher today as "Deac" won his match in the State Open tennis tournament and Eddie Blickle didn't.

The 19-year-old boy wonder, who holds plenty of titles won in this year's tournaments, had to move around a bit to defeat Dewitt Smith, of Washington, D. C., but he did it, 6—4, 6—3.

The victory put Parsons in the quarter-finals. Smith earlier had eliminated Herbert Stansbury, of Beckley, 6—3, 6—2.

Blickle, Huntington High School coach, ran into something tough in Fred West, of Lynchburg, Va., who took the three-set match, 5—7, 6—2, 6—3. Long rallies in which each of the men ran his heart out featured the two-hour ding-dong match. Blickle was seeded eighth in the tournament.

The defending champion, Barney Welsh, of Rockville, Md., moved through his third-round match, 6—4, 6—4, despite the stubborn opposition of R. N. Brown, of Elkins.

For the third straight day, rain put the tournament at sixes and sevens. It was almost noon before anyone could go on the courts and in midafternoon the players had to hunt for shelter again.

The second shower left Paul Lingo, of White Sulphur, and Elmer Rudy, of Baltimore, still playing in the second. When the rain started yesterday the first set was 7-all. Rudy finally finished it today, 9—7, and was leading, 3—2, when the boys had to stop once more.

Another of yesterday's half-finished contests was settled as Dr. Maurice Fleiss, of Clifton Forge, Va., finally won out over young Bill Pugh, of Charleston, 6—5, 5—7, 6—4.

In second-round matches of the women's tournament Sara Moore, of Washington, D. C., easily defeated Mrs. Martha Hugus, of Wheeling, 6—0, 6—1, and Mrs. Stanley K. Robinson, of Washington, the former Margaret Carspecken, of Morgantown, won, 6—2, 6—4, over the surprisingly determined play of Mrs. Pell Miller, of Charleston.

To wind up the first round, delayed by the heavy rains, Margaret Graham, of Washington, advanced to the second round when Nellie Christian, of Richmond, Va., defaulted, and Mrs. John McCuskey, of Wheeling, won a long, steady match from Dolly Kithill, of Charleston, 6—2, 6—2.

Wheat Prices Drop 1 3/8 Cents In Late Sales

Decline of Securities Is Depressing Factor.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 20.—Jolted by heavy late selling, the Chicago wheat market fell 1⅜ cents a bushel today to within ⅛ cent of the season's bottom prices record.

Securities setbacks were largely responsible, together with increased pressure of hedging in connection with the movement of newly harvested domestic wheat. Persistent smallness of overseas demand for United States wheat was an addition factor, and so too were reports of sharp curtailment of domestic flour buying.

At the close, Chicago wheat prices were ⅝ to 1 cent lower, compared with yesterday's finish; September, 68½@69¾; December, 71⅜@71½. Corn, ⅛ to ¾ cent down; September, 59½@59⅝; December, 58¼. Oats, ⅜ to ⅛ cent off. Rye, ⅛ to ⅝ cent loss. Provisions, unchanged to 12 cents drop.

New York, July 20 (AP).—Cotton eased today under foreign selling and owing to declines in the stock market. December reacted from 8.76 to 8.68 and closed at 8.73, with final prices 5 to 7 points net lower.

The market opened lower with disappointing Liverpool cables partly offset by unwanted rains in the cotton belt west of the Mississippi River. Persistent Liverpool selling supplied contracts during the morning while demand was indifferent in view of the action of securities. Rains in parts of Texas were considered beneficial. The weekly weather report said that cotton had made satisfactory progress except that rain is needed in parts of the western belt.

The Market

A Special Correspondent.

Rail and Utility Buying Prevented a Bad Decline as Amusement Stock Slumped.

New York, July 20.—The stock market was saved from a bad day today, thanks to spirited buying in the rails and utilities. The industrials, which had led the advance of the last few weeks, had a bad session, their weakest department being the amusement shares which were called upon to accept a heavy volume of selling when the Government filed an anti-trust suit here against eight major film companies, seeking to force them to divest themselves of control of theaters.

These cross current contributed to a highly irregular day, the composite average showing a net loss of 0.18 but with the rail and utility divisions showing a great majority of plus signs. Trading of 2,509,440 shares was less than on the previous day but was enough to keep the brokerage fraternity in a cheerful frame of mind.

Industrial Active.

The good behavior of the power and carrier shares pushed the market into new high ground for this year. Opening very active and with numerous big blocks of stock which ran as high as 8,000 shares, it was apparent from the first time that the list was going to give the street an exciting day. For instance there was an early drive against the steel shares and both United States Steel and Bethlehem gave up nearly 2 points. Other industrials took this cue and offerings were so widespread that the ticker was forced a minute late in recording transactions.

A rise was resumed in the second hour with the rails in the van. However the buying on this move was largely confined to the lower priced carrier shares, the higher grade issues showing little bouyancy. There was a break about noon, with the ticker three minutes late but with the rails and utilities holding better than the average. After much churning about, the list turned strong in the final hour, with the power and light shares setting the pace.

Amusements Drop.

The most sensational price changes of the day were the losses sustained by the amusement shares. These included: Warner Brothers, 1⅛ and the preferred, 3¼; Universal Pictures preferred, 3; Twentieth Century Fox, 2, and the preferred 2¾; RKO, ⅛; Paramount, 1¾, the first preferred, 10, and the second preferred, 1¾; Loew's, 3¾, and Columbia Pictures, 1½.

Optimism concerning the general railroad outlook was sufficiently strong to keep the rail average at the close slightly above the preceding day, although in many cases final prices for carrier securities were somewhat under the day's best. In some of the important issues there were gains at the close of a fraction to around 4 points, the latter in Norfolk & Western, at 167. Chesapeake & Ohio and Chesapeake Corporation shares closed with gains of 2¼ and 3 points, respectively. The C. & O. advance attracted attention because of the effect on the August 1 appraisal of Alleghany Corporation collateral.

Rail Volume High.

As far as the rails were concerned, it is interesting to note that their volume today was 333,370 shares, or about 13 per cent of the day's business, a percentage that is far above normal.

Listed bond trading presented the contrast today of softness in United States Treasury securities and strength in almost all other important groups. The Treasury bonds were marked slightly lower as buyers of the new RFC notes made funds available for payment. Low-priced railroad bonds were most active in the corporate division, with gains ranging from fractions to 4 points. In the foreign bond department movements were small and irregular. Turnover was $11,800,000.

Treasuries Are Lower.

The downturn in Treasury obligations attracted attention, as these money market issues have been stable of late. Long term Treasury bonds were off 2-32 to 7-32 point in modest trading, and similar recessions appeared in guaranteed bonds of the farm and home corporations. Counter trading resulted in small declines also for Treasury notes and bills. Best rated utility, railroad and industrial bonds were steady and quiet. The new issue of Industrial Rayon Corporation bonds found ready buyers and underwriters foresee no difficulty with a small unsold remainder.

Intermediate priced railroad securities were in keen demand and these obligations moved upward readily. Among the borderline bonds a little unsettlement prevailed, but the default issues were in favor, especially where grain carrying is apt to improve the situation. Rail and utility holding bonds were uneven. Industrial convertibles changed only fractionally, and commodity issues were dull. Local traction bonds lost a little ground.

California Business.

New York, July 20.—Business activity in California, after a sharp decline earlier in the year, has held fairly steady in the past two months, according to the Business Outlook just published by Wells Fargo Bank. The bank's index of California business stood at 93.6 in June as against 94.5 a month ago and 113 a year ago.

Steel Activity Up 4 Points to 36% Capacity

New York, July 20.—Steel ingot production has risen 4 points to 36 per cent of the country's capacity, the largest increase within one week since March, 1936 excepting postholiday periods, and the highest rate thus far in 1938, says Iron Age in its weekly survey of the industry.

With automotive buying for new models still largely in the future, railroad buying still at a minimum and likely to continue so at least until the matter of wage reductions has been settled, farm machinery plants preparing for summer shutdowns of two or three weeks, and building construction activity not yet receiving the full impetus of Government spending and lending, the improvement in steel buying that has occurred is traced largely to miscellaneous sources.

"With the meeting in Washington this week of leading steel company executives, called by the Government, the wage question is the dominant issue in the future determination of the course of steel markets and the matter of profits or losses for steel producers.

Higher Prices Foreseen.

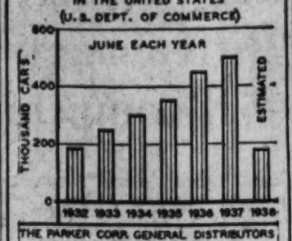
If wages are to be reduced, which some in the industry now believe to be unlikely in view of Government opposition, the only recourse is higher prices, as it would require a steep gain in operations to offset present high costs. It is estimated that a 10 per cent wage cut would not nearly cover the reduced net yield of $5 to $7 a ton, which most companies will sustain because of lower prices and basing point changes.

Based on an average hourly rate of about 82 cents for the first five months of this year, a 10 per cent wage reduction would bring a theoretical saving of $3.28 a ton of finished steel if 40 man hours of labor a ton is used. However, some mills estimate as low as $2 a ton, calculations being complicated by the greater amount of labor required per ton when operations are reduced. The United States Bureau of Labor statistics estimates 46.48 man hours when operations are between 20 and 25 per cent, ranging down to 34.43 man hours at 55 to 60 per cent.

Rising scrap prices will add to steel-making costs, although mills have not yet bought heavily. Advancing quotations are partly due to bullishness among scrap brokers and the fact that good scrap is scarce, as many yard inventories are being withheld for sale in the hope of higher prices. Activity in scrap has temporarily subsided at Pittsburgh, where No. 1 heavy melting scrap is unchanged, but this grade has gone up 50 cents a ton at Chicago, Cleveland and Buffalo. The Iron Age scrap composite price has risen to $13.42.

Steel bookings are gaining with many producers, but do not in all cases exceed those of the comparable period in June. Although structural steel awards of 7,800 tons for the week are lower than usual, reinforcing bar lettings totaled 20,000 tons. New structural inquiries total 16,000 tons, and those for reinforcing bars are nearly 12,000.

Automobile Output Drops 65% in Year



THE PARKER CORP. GENERAL DISTRIBUTORS INCORPORATED INVESTORS

Boston, July 20.—The estimated number of cars produced in this country in June dropped 65 per cent from a year ago and was close to the smallest June production in recent years. Also, during the first half of this year less than half as many cars were produced as in the first six months of 1937.

Bartlett Named Board Head

New York, July 20 (AP).—Edward E. Bartlett, jr., was today elected chairman of the board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange by the votes of 708 members. His candidacy was unopposed. Bartlett will fill out the unexpired term of 31-year-old William McMartin, jr., who soon after his election as chairman resigned and was appointed to the exchange presidency at annual salary of $48,000.

The new chairman, who will serve without salary, is known in stock exchange circles as a "liberal," although his service as a governor extends back to the time the exchange administration was said by critics to be dominated by the so-called "old guard" faction which was eliminated in the drastic internal reorganization early this year.

Bartlett is a special partner in the firm of E. A. Pierce & Co., one of the largest commission wire houses in the exchange. He has been a member of the exchange since 1926 and was president of the cotton exchange from 1923 to 1925 and holds membership in that organization. He is 53 years old.

Willys-Overland Cuts Coupe Prices

Toledo, Ohio, July 20 (AP).—Price reductions as high as $26 on the standard coupe, and ranging throughout the line, were announced today by Wyllis-Overland Motors, Inc., to cover current and future production of 1938 cars at the factory. The cuts also are effective on all Willys passenger cars in dealer stocks.

The new prices bring the price of the Willys standard coupe model, delivered at Toledo, but not including Federal and State taxes, down to $499. Sedan models are also reduced, with a $10 price cut made on the de luxe four-door sedan model.

Bob Burns Says—

They say there's nothing that fits a man for holdin' down a job like the school of experience. That's the reason I feel so sorry for these old vaudeville comedians that have-ta take up another line of work. In vaudeville, they learned that the main thing was to have a good opening and a good finish and the middle didn't make much difference.

When vaudeville dropped out, one of these comedians applied for a job on an engineering party and the boss told him to line up three stakes in a straight row. When the actor drove the three stakes down, the boss looked at 'em and says "Why, those stakes are not in a straight line."

The actor looked at 'em and said "why, they certainly are. The two end ones are straight. The middle one is out some."

Rail Head Says Labor Is Killing Golden Goose

18 Unions Biting Feeding Hands, Fouling Own Nests, Enochs Avers.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 20.—H. A. Enochs, chairman of the Carriers' Joint Conference Committee, told 1,000 representatives of 18 railroad labor unions today they were "slowly killing the goose which lays the golden eggs."

Assailing what he called "a feeling of antagonism for employers" among railroad labor organizations, Enochs reiterated the position of railroad management that there was no alternative to the 15 per cent wage slash proposed for an estimated 900,000 employes of class 1 carriers.

Talks to Executive Union.

Enochs presented his case to the unions affiliated with the Railway Labor executives Association, following a series of separate conferences on the proposal with the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

"No industry is now or has been assailed by its organized employes in the same manner or to the same extent as has been the carriers by its employes," Enochs said. "You are consistently biting the hand that is feeding you; you do all you can to harass, to destroy, to discredit the management of the carriers; you belittle and demean your employer, and thus you are befouling your own nest, the place of your livelihood . . . You are developing a state of mind among railroad employes that will sometime react against them, as well as against your organization."

Enochs has contended the roads were financially unable to continue wage rates.

Labor Fights Cuts.

After conferences with both labor groups, he said the management had heard nothing "which changes our opinion a 15 per cent wage cut must go into effect."

A. F. Whitney, president of the Trainmen's Brotherhood of 140,000 workers, asserted his group would "go down the line" against any reduction.

Enochs scheduled another meeting with association representatives for tomorrow and arranged to meet with the trainmen again Friday.

U. S. Judge Calls Charges Against Turrou 'Fantastic'

New York, July 20 (AP).—Branding charges against former G-man Leon G. Turrou as "to fantastic to believe," Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell today denied a motion by counsel for Johanna Hoffmann, spy suspect, for appointment of a commission to take testimony of witnesses in Germany.

George C. Dix, attorney for the former hair dresser on a German liner, based the motion on an affidavit charging Turrou had a monetary interest in the disappearance of Dr. Ignatz T. Griebl and Karl Scheuter, indicted with Miss Hoffmann and 15 others in the investigation of a spy ring in the metropolitan area.

U. S.-Bermuda Airline Carries 1,200 in Year

Baltimore, July 20 (AP).—Imperial Airways carried 1,200 passengers between the United States and Bermuda during its first year of operation over the route, Paul E. Bewshea, commercial manager here for the British air line, said today.

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Calif., July 20.—The day of miracles is at hand. The producer of "Love Finds Ann Hardy" refuses to allow his name to be printed saying, "no one is interested in me." Such modesty should get an Academy Award. He used to turn out pictures in seven days—good, not great.

HEDDA HOPPER

The current Hardy entertainment was made for $185,000. Without fanfare of exploitation, it is booked ahead of star attractions, and breaking records everywhere. Proving it can be done, even in Hollywood.

The only London hits this season are three American plays—"Amphitryon 38," with the Lunts; "Golden Boy" and "Idiot's Delight." Our own Lee Tracy whips across land and water to take over the leading part in the latter. With him goes his bride, the former Helen Thomas. And I'll wager it will be many years before England allows him to return. Their gain, our loss.

For the same role in the picture, Clark Gable is learning dance routines daily from Albertina Rasch. All blondes in town are fighting to get into it. Alice White may make a comeback as one of them.

And instead of having themselves done in oil, film stars are now letting Jean Ramsay immortalize their dogs in water color. She's done Stu Erwin's Scottie, Shirley Temple's Chin-Chin, C. Aubrey Smith's Great Dane, Boris Karloff's Bedlington, Henry Stephenson's Dalmation, Allan Jones' horse, Smoky; Gene Autrey's horse, The Champ. Also Bette Davis' three dogs—though Jean Bette added a fourth, a Pekinese—and my Dachshund, Wolf.

Rose Russell, while playing in "The Citadel" in London, has taken over Little Hailings, a country place owned by a major general. She bicycles to the studio daily. Last year one of our glamour girls tried to rent the place and appeared at the front entrance in shorts. She wasn't even allowed to go through it, and quite right, too. I'll say this for them—they have a time and place for everything.

Lunched with furrier Dick Jaeckel, at Cock 'n' Bull. He had just had a cable from Marlene Dietrich saying, "Heard in Paris you'd bought up all best models. Want to do over four fur coats. Cable which styles I should use." He sent her a complete list and description, ending up with, "If you do it there, you'll have to pay duty on the entire value of the furs, plus alterations."

Alice Faye and Tony Martin Lamazing. We were amazed when Alice told us she isn't singing in "By the Dawn's Early Light."

To Attend Convention.

Dr. E. M. Gustafson, of Washington, executive secretary of the National Chiropractic Association, will leave for Toronto, Ontario, this week to attend the association's annual convention and educational conference.

Green Puts A. F. L. Behind Barkley In Kentucky Race

The American Federation of Labor last night ...rsed Senator ... ben W. Barkley, Democratic majority leader, in his fight for renomination in Kentucky, where he is opposed by Gov. A. B. Chandler.

John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chairman, previously had urged organized labor in Kentucky to support the Barkley campaign.

He said he had written Edward H. Weyler, secretary of the Kentucky State Federation of Labor, that Barkley's "record in support of American Federation of Labor sponsored legislation is, indeed, unusual and exceptional. His service for labor . . . merits the support of the American Federation of Labor . . . in his campaign for re-election to the United States Senate."

'Mistake' Shooting Hearing Set Today

Williamsburg, Va., July 20 (AP).—Trial Justice J. W. Moore will hold a preliminary hearing at 10 a. m. tomorrow in the case of Noel Bush, 60, retired Army officer, charged with "felonious shooting with intent to kill" Dr. John B. Porterfield, his son-in-law.

Several days after the shooting early in the morning of July 13, Commonwealth's Attorney Peachy said Bush admitted intentionally shooting Dr. Porterfield, who is State health officer for the peninsula area. Dr. Porterfield first said when taken to a hospital that Bush mistook him for a burglar and shot him.

Guard Camp for WPA.

Washington WPA workers will be allowed to attend National Guard encampments for two weeks this summer. They will be permitted to work overtime when they return, to earn missed pay, Michael J. Fohan, director of operations, said yesterday.

New Quakes Feared In Greece; 20 Dead

Athens, July 20 (AP).—Frightened inhabitants were warned today that more shocks might follow a morning earthquake which scattered wreckage across much of ancient Greece.

Estimates were that 20 persons were killed and 100 injured in today's shock, strongest felt in this country in modern times.
